DNIESTER SEPARATES TROOPS OF GERMANY AND FORCES OF CZAR

Two Armies Now Face One Another Across Wide and Crooked Stream, Each Making Futile Thrusts

AUSTRO-GERMANS STILL HAVE LEMBERG AS GOAL

Four More British Vessels Are Torpedoed--Former German Cruiser Breslan Is Reported Damaged

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 12.—Another big battle is being fought along the line of the Dniester river in Galicia in which Russian forces are pitted against those of Austria and Germany. Those German troops which had crossed the Dniester at Zurawna having been driven back, and the Russians in eastern Galicia and Bukowina also having been forced to withdraw to the river, the two armies now face one another across the wide and crooked stream, each making thrusts in efforts to gain the initiative for an offensive.

The Austrians in their official report claim to have succeeded in crossing the river east of Herodenka, a movement which, in view of their recent experience near Zurawna, might prove dangerous.

LEMBERG AS GOAL.

The Austro-Germans, however, still have Lemberg as their objective, and they are now likely to allow any reverses they have suffered near Zurawna and east of Przemysl to put them off. So that fighting as severe as any witnessed in recent weeks may be expected during the next few days.

Heavy fighting also continues in the Baltic provinces and on the east Prussian frontier, in which both sides claim advantage. With the view, doubtless, of preventing the Russians from sending reinforcements to either of their wings, the Germans yesterday attacked along the Rawka river, between Bolimow and Sochaczew, the scene of important battles last winter. In yesterday's attack the Germans claim to have broken into the Russian positions and to have taken 2,000 prisoners.

At points between Rheims and north of Arras the French continue their attacks, which they report to have been successful, but which the Germans, however, invariably state have been repulsed.

BIG FIGHTING LINE.

Although no big forward movement has been made, fighting is almost continuous along the line from the sea to Champagne and in the Woevre. The British and Belgians are playing an important role in these operations, for to them falls the task of holding large German forces on their front by threatening an offensive and thus preventing the Germans from sending relief to those troops which the French are assailing.

The Italian campaign, according to latest advices, is progressing satisfactorily in the view of the Italian war office. The Austrian frontier town of Gradisca is in the possession of the Italian forces, who in this direction have Gorizia as their objective. The important towns of Rovereto and Monfalcone, a short distance from Trent, have already been taken by the Italians or are on the point of being occupied and the advance all along the Austrian-Italian frontier is being pushed with energy.

Unofficial reports state the allies are steadily progressing on the Gallipoli peninsula, but no details are given and official confirmation is lacking.

Today's report of German submarine activity shows one steamer and three trawlers were sunk. Since last Saturday German submarines have sunk fifty-four vessels, of which seven were neutral.

The others comprised two French, two Belgian, three Russian and forty British. Of the British vessels thirty-two were fishing craft. In addition two fishing smacks were sunk by a Zeppelin.

Former German Cruiser Damaged, Says Petrograd

(By Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD (Via London, June 13).—The Turkish cruiser Medulla, formerly the German cruiser Breslau, was damaged, just how severely is not known, in an artillery duel with two Russian torpedo boat destroyers near the Bosporus Friday night, according to a Russian official statement. It is stated that the vessel was struck by seven shots, that an explosion was heard aboard and that fire was seen at her stern.

Optimistic Statement Is Issued by Germans

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, June 12.—(Via London.)—Army headquarters today gave out this report:

"Western arena: Attacks of the enemy yesterday in the dunes northeast of Dixmude and near Minneskensyere, on the eastern ridge of the Lorette heights and in the Souchez district were repulsed with loss.

"In the close range fighting to the north of Ecurie the French twice brought in fresh troops. In the afternoon we succeeded completely in driving the enemy out of our positions. An advance made by the French during the evening broke down under our infantry fire and the retreating enemy suffered heavy losses. Near Serre to the southeast of Hebuterne we are again advancing from our positions.

"Eastern arena: On the Dubysa river, the Zoginie and Betingola districts, Russian advances failed. North of Prasnysz our troops yesterday stormed Russian position where they took 150 men and some machine guns and mine throwers.

"On the Rawka river, between Bolimow and Sochaczew, we penetrated a position of the enemy. Up to the present time 500 Russians have been taken prisoners.

"Southeastern arena: East of Przemysl the situation remains unchang-

THE PRICE FELL WHEN SHIPMENTS DWINDLED

BY RALPH SMITH

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Senator Hoke Smith tonight gave out the following statement regarding the British "Order of Council" which is interfering with American commerce:

"The public mind was justly filled with horror at the sinking of the Lusitania. But we should not for this reason forget that Great Britain and her allies have utterly disregarded the rights of American citizens, have placed a heavy burden upon the legitimate commerce of this country, and have injuriously curtailed cotton markets.

"Just before the war began, middling cotton was selling at 13 1-2 cents a pound. We normally sell abroad two-thirds of our cotton crop. For a while our entire foreign market was cut off. Our domestic market was seriously impaired by the disorganized condition of our finances.

"Too much praise cannot be given to the administration for the manner in which our currency laws were amended and threatened liquidation prevented. Now the reserve banks are in a position where they can issue, if necessary, from $700,000,000 to $800,000,000 of reserve notes fully secured, and our domestic market for cotton is removed from strain.

"Last fall exports were hampered by the enormous insurance rates of transoceanic shipments. The war insurance bureau established in the treasury department reduced war insurance rates, which were ranging from 2½ to 20 per cent, down to 2 and 3 per cent.

"Still during the latter part of October the price of cotton did not rise. The markets of Germany, Austria and northern Europe consume over 3,000,000 bales of cotton annually. This market remained closed, buyers of cotton thought it would continue closed, and the lessened demand, coupled with the threatened surplus, carried cotton down to 6 cents a pound, with a limited market even at that price.

SHIPMENTS CHECKED.

"Shipments of cotton to Germany, Austria and northern Europe were prevented by the constantly circulated reports that Great Britain intended to put cotton on the contraband list and seize vessels carrying cotton.

"October 22 the British secretary of state, at the instance of a committee of senators, conferred with the British ambassador and urged the British government to give a definite statement with reference to cotton shipments. October 26 the British ambassador presented to the state department a letter which contained the following language:

"'Last night I received a reply from Sir Edward Grey in which he authorizes me to give the assurance that cotton will not be seized. He points out that cotton has not been put in any of our lists of contraband, and that, therefore, so far as Great Britain is concerned, in the free list and will remain there.'

"The communication of this assurance from Great Britain made it practicable for cotton merchants to secure vessels and to finance shipments of cotton to Germany, Austria and to northern Europe.

COTTON PRICE WENT UP.

"The market was thus opened. Cotton buyers realized the broadening market for cotton. During the months of December, January and February large quantities of cotton were shipped abroad, and the price rose from 6 cents a pound to 10 cents a pound. During March middling cotton sold up to 10 1-2 cents a pound.

"Thus we have a clear illustration of how the closed market depressed the

Claims He Now Controls Nine-Tenths of Population and Seven-Eighths of All Territory in Mexico

PRESIDENT WILL READ VILLA STATEMENT SOON

What Effect, If Any, Two Documents Will Have on Mexican Policy--Have Not Been Determined

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Wilson had before him tonight the first reply to his recent statement regarding Mexico. It consisted of a lengthy "proclamation to the people," issued yesterday by General Carranza, asserting the right of the constitutional government to recognition by the United States and other foreign powers. Lack of recognition is declared to be the one difficulty remaining in the way of restoring constitutional government in Mexico and the statement asserts:

"At this time we believe ourselves to be in a position to overcome this last difficulty because the constitutional government is now actually in definite possession of sovereignty, and the legitimate exercise of sovereignty is the essential condition which should be taken into account when deciding upon recognition of a government."

General Villa's answer also reached Washington today but was not delivered at the state department. Until it is presented the Villa agency declined to make public the text.

Department officials declined to comment on the abstract of the Villa statement carried in press dispatches, or upon a copy of a letter from Villa to Carranza also received at the agency, which urges that differences be forgotten and suggests a personal meeting between the two leaders to arrange for co-operation and restoration of peace.

BEFORE PRESIDENT.

General Carranza's proclamation was promptly laid before President Wilson, and state department officials would not discuss it. The document recites a history of the revolution, beginning with the Madero uprising and what is termed the economic and social inequality of the colonial epoch. During the long the revolution, it asserts, is due to attempts at compromises with the elements of the old regime at Ciudad Juarez.

President Madero's failure the document attributes to the opposition from Orozco, Reyes and Felix Diaz of the old regime, and Zapata, instigated by their adherents and partisans, it contends, consummated the movement with the co-operation of "a group of foreigners favored by the old regime who surrounded Henry Lane Wilson, former American ambassador to Mexico, and under the pretext of saving Mexico City from war.

The statement explains that as governor of the state of Coahuila, General Carranza assumed representation of the republic in accordance with the constitution which by its own terms "will not lose its force and vigor even though through treason, rebellion, its observance be interrupted."

The schism of Villa and his followers, which later occurred, the statement attributes to the further intrigue of the old regime.

Although it was thought, the constitutionalist element had lost the support of the people when they withdrew from Mexico City, the statement asserts, in fact it has now control of over seventeen-18ths of the national territory. Administration, it is claimed, are being organized in twenty out of twenty-seven states of the republic, and the Vera Cruz government controls all the ports of the gulf and Pacific ocean with the exception of Guaymas, and all ports of entry on the northern and southern frontiers, with the exception of Piedras Negras, Ciudad Jaurez and Nogales; that more than thirteen millions of the fifteen millions population of Mexico are subject to constitutionalist authority.

OPPOSITION DECREASING.

Opposition to the Carranza forces, it is asserted, is day by day decreasing, and the resistance of Villa is limited to acts of brigandage. In a short time occupation of Mexico City is assured, it is stated, when harmonious government will be established in all states and territories based on welfare and justice.

The constitutionalist government has done all in its power, it is stated, for the people, especially the poor, by forbidding the export of necessities and has punished abuses and protected the lives of those within its territory.

Work of relieving the civil population, the statement asserts, now be facilitated by recent victories which have enlarged the sphere of activity of the constitutionalist government.

As to future relations, Carranza asserts that one of his initial acts as first chief was to apprise the United States of his attitude, facing rebellion and usurpation. He feels that his labors have been retarded by lack of understanding in the United States and other nations. The press, under the cientific inuuence, it is claimed, prejudiced foreign nations against him and this he has been unable to combat, lacking the ordinary means offered when diplomatic relations exist between nations.

"If, as we hope and wish," Carranza's proclamation continues, "for the benefit of the Mexican people and of the foreigners resident in the country, the governments of other nations recognize the constitutionalist government they will lend by this act of justice an effective moral support which will not only strengthen the friendly relations which Mexico has always cultivated with these nations, and enable them to discuss their common affairs, thus reconciling their mutual interests, but also will more rapidly consolidate peace and establish the constructive constitutional-

GOVERNOR TO RESUME FRANK HEARING MONDAY

Argument on Commutation Petition Barely Got Under Way Saturday

Arguments before Governor Slaton on Leo M. Frank's petition for a commutation of his sentence from death to life imprisonment will be resumed in the governor's office at the capitol Monday morning at 9 o'clock, and it is expected the hearing will continue throughout the day.

Governor Slaton has indicated his willingness to hold a night session Monday if one is necessary to complete the hearing. It is possible, however, that such a large portion of the arguments will remain unuttered at the adjournment late Monday afternoon that the governor will adjourn the hearing until Wednesday morning. He goes to Athens Tuesday, where he is scheduled to deliver the alumni address at the University of Georgia commencement.

Although the hearing consumed three and a half hours Saturday it hardly got well under way. Only one speech of any length was made at that session, Ex-Governor Joseph M. Brown having spoken for about an hour in opposition to Frank's petition. Attorney W. M. Howard took some time to outline the range which his argument would take and Governor Slaton asked a number of questions of both Mr. Howard and Solicitor Dorsey. Brief speeches in opposition to Frank's petition were also made by M. M. Sessions and Herbert Clay, of Marietta.

It was announced Saturday that C. E. McGregor, of Warrenton, would like to be heard on Monday in opposition to the granting of the petition. He probably will follow Solicitor Dorsey, who will submit a written brief opposing clemency for Frank and also make an argument against it. It is expected the solicitor will take up the greater part of the morning session with his argument.

Mr. Howard will make the principal and perhaps only argument for Frank. He is expected to argue at length and to carefully analyze the testimony of James Conley at Frank's trial and other evidence which he will contend clearly indicates Frank's innocence and Conley's guilt.

Although the plan of the defense Saturday was for Mr. Howard to make the final argument for Frank it was said that Attorneys Harry A. Alexander and M. J. Yeomans might have something to say before the hearing closes. This, however, was not considered probable.

Governor Slaton announced Saturday that he would spend Sunday studying the record in the case. He also announced his purpose to visit and inspect the pencil factory where Mary Phagan was murdered and said he would invite counsel for both Frank and the state to accompany him on his visit. He did not indicate when he would go through the factory.

If the hearing concludes Monday it is considered quite likely that Governor Slaton will announce his decision the latter part of the week.

Another Frank Meeting Held at the Capitol

Anonymous circulars distributed on the streets resulted Saturday afternoon in another meeting on the Capitol steps to protest against a commutation of the death sentence against Leo M. Frank. The meeting was called for 3 o'clock and at that hour there were probably seventy-five or 100 persons gathered on the Washington street side of the capitol.

NOTE MAKES FAVORABLE IMPRESSION IN BERLIN

Opens Way for Satisfactory Settlement of Issues, View of Press

BERLIN, June 12.—(Via London, 12.) The text of the American note was published today in the Berlin afternoon newspapers. Definite statements as to the attitude of the German government with respect to the note are not yet available, but in circles which, while themselves not officially responsible, are often good barometers of the sentiment in responsible quarters, the note seems to have made a distinctly favorable impression and is believed to offer the possibility of negotiations on which satisfactory settlement might be reached.

The conciliatory tone of the note apparently has evoked a responsive attitude here. Individuals, who in the earlier stages of the negotiations displayed stiff-necked adherence to their own views, which made discussion almost impossible, are now willing to talk of compromises in which the compromise would not be all on one side.

The official viewpoint probably can be correctly appraised only after conferences of the imperial chancellor, Dr. Von Bethmann-Hollweg; the foreign secretary, Herr Von Jagow, and representatives of the army and admiralty, the naval and general staff. The emperor, it is believed, will speak the final word.

It is understood that these conferences will begin immediately. The answer will certainly not be drafted, and the lines of the German policy probably will not be definitely decided upon, before Dr. Anton Meyer-Gerhard, the special envoy from Count Von Bernstorff, the German ambassador at Washington, had arrived and made his report.

LIKE FRIENDLY TONE.

Both The Lokal Anzeiger and the Vossiche Zeitung hail the second American note as opening the way for further negotiations between Germany and the United States, which both profess to believe will straighten out the situation. These papers admit that the note contains little that is new, but they rejoice at its friendly tone.

The Vossische Zeitung says:

"There is no differences of opinion about desirability of saving lives. The note opens the way for negotiations between Germany and America regarding what Germany can do and what America must do to protect life in the future."

The Lokal Anzeiger says:

"From the wording of the note, as it is now published, one sees that the announcement sent out broadcast by the enemy that the note would be an ultimatum—omitting else was to be expected—were wholly baseless. The form is friendly and it contains no asperity, as has been announced. The new note is really a roundabout expression by President Wilson of his original standpoint, and it will be a matter of further negotiations, during which the German arguments will be repeated and their justification proved.

"It would be premature to go into details, especially of a technical nature, now: it is enough to be satisfied that the Wilson note is so constructed as to admit the possibility of additional negotiations. He himself shows a desire for such negotiations. He suggests that the German government produce further proofs substantiating the claims regarding the Lusitania, and declares himself ready to act as an intermediary be-

EISEMAN BROTHERS' BLDG. LEASED BY C. W. M'CLURE

Ten Cent Store Will Pay $25,000 a Year for New Home

For a consideration of approximately $250,000, the Eiseman Brothers building, 11 Whitehall street, has been leased for ten years by the Gershon Eiseman estate to C. W. McClure's Ten Cent store company. The lease was signed several days ago by Mr. C. W. McClure in Baltimore.

Mr. McClure states that he will move both his wholesale department, 49 South Broad street, and his retail Whitehall street store into the Eiseman building; he states the McClure company will be in its new quarters ready for business about September 1.

Approximately $25,000 a year will be paid for the lease, said Mr. McClure.

The wholesale and retail McClure stores are under a lease of two years longer each, said Mr. McClure; these buildings will be sub-let.

GERMAN AVIATOR HELD IN LUSITANIA PROBE

Man Taken in Custody at Cincinnati Is Rushed to Washington

(By Associated Press.)

CINCINNATI, June 12.—Heinz Hardenberg, said to be a member of the aviation corps of the German army and who is believed to be wanted in connection with the investigation into the Lusitania disaster by a Federal grand jury in New York, was taken into custody here today by agents of the department of justice.

Hardenberg was taken in custody by Special Agent John S. Menefee, of Cincinnati, when the former in company with his employer, Paul Haase, a manufacturer, called at the general delivery widow at the postoffice to inquire for mail.

An hour later Menefee left with Hardenberg for Washington, where the latter will be turned over to officials of the state and justice departments.

It was not known by Menefee whether officials at Washington want Hardenberg as a witness or to otherwise question him.

Immediately after being taken into custody Hardenberg was taken to Menefee's office, where an attempt was made to question him as to his knowledge of Gustav Stahl, one of the men now before the federal grand jury in New York on the charge of having sworn to a false affidavit lodged with the German embassy and later transmitted to the state department to the effect that the Lusitania was a warship and that it had four guns on its deck when it last sailed from New York.

Menefee, it was said, learned that Hardenberg was acquainted with Gustav Stahl and that the two men met in New York shortly after Hardenberg arrived in this country, five weeks ago. Hardenberg also told Menefee that Stahl had told him that he (Stahl) was at work on the day designated by Stahl in his affidavit filed with the state department as the day upon which he visited the Lusitania and saw the cannon on board.

BRYAN DECLARES NOTE WAS REVISED AFTER HE RESIGNED OFFICE

Change Not Sufficient, However, He Says to Justify Him in Asking Permission to Withdraw His Resignation

NOTE IS DELIVERED IN BERLIN, CABLES GERARD

More Optimistic Feeling in Official Quarters That German Answer Would Forestall Possibility of War

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Official announcement of the delivery of the American note to Germany, reiterating insistence that submarine warfare conform to rules of humanity and international law, was received today from Ambassador Gerard at Berlin.

The message came at the close of a day marked by a more optimistic feeling in official quarters that the German answer would forestall any possibilities of war between the two nations, and also avoid a breach of diplomatic relations.

Apparently there was a general relaxation of tension in the international situation. President Wilson spent part of the day at golf and let it be known that later in the month he planned to take a short vacation at Cornish. No answer to the American rejoinder is expected for ten days at least.

Former Secretary Bryan, who resigned rather than sign the second note to Germany, issued another statement today, declaring that the note was materially revised following the presentation of his resignation. The revision, Mr. Bryan averred, softened the note, but was not sufficient to justify him in withdrawing his resignation.

NOTE CHANGED.

"It is true," said Mr. Bryan, "that I saw the final draft of the note just before my resignation took effect, but it contained an important change I had no knowledge of this change at the time my resignation was tendered and accepted.

"This change, while very much softening the note, was not however sufficient, in my judgment, to justify me in asking for withdrawal of the tender of resignation. As Germany had suggested arbitration, I felt that we could not do less than reply to this offer by accepting a willingness to apply the principle of the peace treaties to the case."

"What was the change in the note?" Mr. Bryan was asked.

"I cannot discuss that," he replied.

It was suggested that the clause added to the note was that saying the United States would entertain any evidence Germany might have that American officials had not thoroughly performed their duty in examining the Lusitania before her departure to see that she was not armed. To this question Mr. Bryan only smiled at the suggestion.

Secretary Lansing also declined to discuss changes made in the note.

The claim referred to follows:

"If the Imperial German government should deem itself to be in possession of conclusive evidence that officials of the government of the United States did not perform these duties with thoroughness the government of the United States sincerely hopes that it will submit that evidence for consideration."

"Irrespective whether that clause was inserted or not," Mr. Bryan was asked, "does it not open the way for further negotiations with Germany?"

"I can only reiterate what I have said, that the note was softened." Mr. Bryan replied, "but not sufficiently to justify me in asking permission to withdraw my resignation."

In his statement tonight Mr. Bryan replied to published charges of inconsistency because in the case of the first note after the Lusitania disaster and refused to sign the second.

THIRD NOTE PROMISED.

"The two notes," he said, "must be considered in connection with the conditions under which they were sent. The first note presented the case of this government upon such evidence as we then had. It was like the plaintiff's statement in a case, his claim being based upon the facts as he presents them. I did not agree entirely with the language of the first note but the differences were not so material as to justify a refusal to sign it. Then, too, I was of the opinion that certain things would be done which would make it easier for Germany to acquiesce in our demands."

Mr. Bryan then repeats in his statement the three things he has emphasized in his proposal, namely that the United States tender its office to employ the principle of investigation embodied in thirty treaties with other nations, take action which would prevent American citizens from traveling on belligerent ships or American ships carrying contraband, and that this government should propose a joint conference with American trade with neutrals.

"No one will be happier than I," said Mr. Bryan, "if the president's plan results in a peaceful settlement, but no one was in a position to say what effect our note would have upon Germany or what results would follow if she in anger broke off diplomatic relations, and I was not only unwilling to assume the responsibility; for the risks incurred—risks which no one could with any degree of accuracy measure—but felt that, having done all I could in the cabinet, it was my duty to undertake outside the cabinet the duty upon which I have entered. I have no doubt that the country will unanimously support the president during the war, if so great a misfortune should overtake us, but I believe that the chances of war will be lessened in proportion as the country expresses itself in favor of peace—not 'peace at any price'—but peace in preference to a war for the redress of such grievances as we have against Germany—at least against war until we have given Germany the opportunity which we are pledged to give Great Britain, France and Russia—to have every difference of every character submitted to an international commission of investigation."

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan left tonight for Old Point Comfort to remain until Tuesday, after which he expects to announce his plans for the immediate future.

Senator Smith Commends Tone of Wilson's Note

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—Before leaving for Georgia tonight Senator Hoke Smith made the following comment on the president's note to Germany:

"The letter is an agreeable surprise to those who feared it might be an ultimatum. While firm, it is in splendid temper and invites a continuation of cordial relations. Without yielding in the insistence that safety be accorded to our citizens and their property from German submarines, it happily affords opportunity for further consideration of some of the details by which this may be accomplished. Germany has practically agreed to discontinue the submarine warfare against merchant and passenger vessels if Great Britain will discontinue her illegal interference with neutral commerce. It would be cause indeed for rejoicing if such a result might be accomplished."

German Paper Believes Bryan Is Playing Politics

Berlin, June 12.—(Via London.)—The Vossiche Zeitung alone has published so far what purports to be a short summary of the latest American note. The newspaper makes this comment:

"The note happily contains nothing of that sharpness which, according to dispatches from London, it was to contain, nor is there even a threat to break off diplomatic relations. On the contrary, the text does not lack a certain warmth and an acknowledgment of the legality to be expected on the German side.

"The line of thought and the tone of the note fail to make it easily understandable how it brought about the break between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan. After the declarations made by Mr. Bryan one expected a note would increase the danger of a German-American crisis. Mr. Bryan, who stands at the head of th American peace societies and likes to hear the people call him the 'prince of peace,' apparently desires to appear as the rescuer of the nation from this danger. This for the sake of internal political reasons; in order to win for himself friends among the peace advocates among the German-Americans, the Irish and the Hebrews, perhaps looking ahead to the next presidential election.

"As for Mr. Wilson, he seems to hope to play the role of arbiter between Germany and England, and through his great success in foreign politics to strengthen his position at home."

Referring to Robert Lansing, the Vossiche Zeitung says: "This gentleman cannot be regarded as an unconditional Anglophile; he once wrote in a letter that he was tired of being England's messenger boy."

Wilson's Note Worthy of Great Nation, Paper Says

PARIS, June 12.—Referring to President Wilson's note to Germany, La Liberte today says:

"It is in every way worthy of a great country conscious of its dignity, its rights and its duties. It has not the tone of an ultimatum, since it is couched in courteous terms, but it is energetic and requires Germany finally to cease recourse to false expedients."

Austrian Newspaper Makes Attack Upon United States

(By Associated Press.)

ZURICH (via London), June 12.—Official opinion in Austria, which latterly has been none too friendly to the United States, is manifest in a vehement attack which appears in the leading Vienna newspaper, the Neu Freie Presse, against America for supplying war munitions to the entente powers.

Additional importance attaches to the article, which is published with the full sanction of the government, if it is not directly officially inspired, since the entire contents of the Austrian newspapers are subjected to a rigid form of censorship before the forms are put on the press.

Declaring that Americans have sold a billion dollars' worth of munitions of war to the enemies of Austria and Germany, while the ministers of the American churches are praying for peace, the paper says:

"Those who bring munitions cannot bring peace. The land where so many voices are demanding the breaking off of relations with Germany can hardly be a Bethlehem, from which the world can gain a new salvation.

"If America refuses to submit the Lusitania dispute to arbitration, she embitters relations with Germany and raises questions of might. She is pursuing a policy which threatens her neutrality. A munitions war is being waged by America; public sentiment is already against Germany; Germany soldiers are being killed or wounded by American ammunition. Much more than this cannot happen and the difference would be scarcely noticeable."

Bryan's Retirement Taken Coolly by Austrians

(By Associated Press.)

ZURICH, Switzerland, June 12.—William J. Bryan's retirement has been taken very coolly in Austria, judging by the Austrian newspapers which have reached Zurich.

These discuss the matter in guarded and moderate tones. Generally they are of the opinion that nothing is likely to happen really to endanger the relations between the United States and Germany. The papers say that if President Wilson really desires peace Germany certainly will do her best to aid him, and that in any event it is better to await developments before expressing further opinions.

First U. S. Note Based Upon Germany's Own Naval Orders

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The reference made by President Wilson in his first note to Germany regarding the sinking of the Lusitania, to the "humane and enlightened attitude hitherto assumed by the imperial German government in matters of international right, and particularly with regard to the freedom of the seas," was based, it was learned today, upon the instructions of August 3, 1914, which the German government sent to its naval commanders. The president's purpose was to show a complete change of the German attitude over the treatment of neutral shipping during the war.

The German prize rules now are in the possession of the state department and perhaps will figure specifically in future diplomatic correspondence on the subject of the Lusitania should there be no breach of relations.

While no mention is made of the rules of submarine warfare, the extent and method of the exercise of the right of search and stoppage of ships is prescribed with precision and provision is made for the safety of passengers and crew.

After outlining the purpose of visiting and searching vessels, the regulations add:

"All measures are to be carried out in a form whose observance, even against the enemy, will comport with the dignity of the German empire, and with a regard for neutrals conformable to the usages of international law and the German interests."

The method of signalling ships to be halted is prescribed and it is directed that "two successive blank charges are to be fired and if necessary a shotted charge over the ship." If the signals are not obeyed, "If the ship does not then stop or makes resistance, the captain will compel her to stop," the instructions continue.

After specifying what ships may be captured and destroyed, the regulations continue:

"Before destruction all persons on board, with their personal effects, are to be placed in safety and all the ship's papers and other articles of evidence which, in the opinion of the interested parties are of importance for the judgment of the prize court, are to be taken over by the captain."

French Newspapers Praise President Wilson

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 12.—The Temps in an editorial today on the American note to Germany, says the note brings the question back to the grounds from which German diplomacy endeavored to divert it. The paper continues:

"President Wilson maintains firmly and with conviction the same ideas already twice expressed. He refuses to admit that his elevated conception of right may become the subject of compromise, and he exposes it anew in clear and precise terms that permit no more evasive replies. Mr. Wilson replies in the name of his country: 'I do not bargain with the sacred rights of humanity.'"

The Journal des Debats, in discussing the note, says:

"The United States, representing in the case the civilized world, places the sacred rights of humanity above considerations of military order to which Germany subordinates everything. They are resolved, so far as concerns American subjects, to have those rights respected.

"The essence of the note is, first, measures required by humanity must be taken, and afterward, if it is desired, will come discussion of a new regulation of naval warfare. If Germany insists on putting herself outside the pale of humanity, she will suffer the consequences."

FLAG DAY EXERCISES WILL BE HELD MONDAY

Local Elks Have Arranged Fine Program for Annual Event

Flag day exercises, annually observed by Elks throughout the United States, will be held Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the Elks' home on Ellis street.

The American flag is of more than ordinary significance to every Elk. The order is purely American and no lodges are allowed to be organized outside American boundaries.

Addresses will be made by Preston Arkwright and Dr. W. W. Memminger and a history of the flag will be given by Courtland S. Winn.

Overture—Bro. S. A. Albright's orchestra.

Prayer—Bro. W. A. Roane, chaplain.

Columbia Gem of the Ocean—Orchestra.

Song—Officers and members, "Auld Lang Syne."

Violin solo—Mrs. Annie Mueller.

Oration—Bro. W. W. Memminger.

Benediction—Bro. Rabbi David Marx.

HORSE GUARDS WILL ADVERTISE ATLANTA

The Governor's Horse guard, of which O. L. Rudisail is captain, will advertise Atlanta from its special train en route to Seattle and the California exposition.

The chamber of commerce will co-operate with the Horse Guard on this advertising campaign and will furnish the necessary printed literature.

The chamber has up with the Panama exposition authorities the matter of naming an Atlanta day at the exposition, and it is proposed to have the date come when the Horse guard and Shriners are in San Francisco. The Shriners will go with the Horse guard.

TWO YOUNG WOMEN GET LAW DEGREES

—Photograph by McCrary & Co.

MRS. B. CASTLETON, who spent two years at the Atlanta Law school in order to help her husband, who is an attorney.

They Will Not Be Allowed to Practice, Although They Receive Diplomas Admitting Them to Bar

Two women are among the 1915 graduates of the Atlanta Law school who will receive their diplomas Monday night.

One is Mrs. B. Castleton, who took law mainly that she might have an understanding sympathy in the work of her husband, an Atlanta attorney.

The other is Miss Agnes L. Klein, who decided that a law course would make the best foundation for a career as insurance actuary, which she intends to follow.

For two years they have been in school here, and both have been leaders in their class. Mrs. Castleton won the prize for the highest average in the senior class, and Miss Klein has also attained an enviable record in scholarship.

While degrees conferred on graduates of the Atlanta Law school admit them to the Georgia bar, Mrs. Castleton and Miss Klein get theirs with the proviso that they will not insist on practicing. This is because the law of Georgia does not allow women to practice in the state.

At the approaching session of the legislature, however, a bill is to be introduced admitting women to the bar. Hope is strong with the two women graduates of the Atlanta Law school that it will be passed.

"Although," says Mrs. Castleton, "it will not make much difference to me. I didn't study law to be a lawyer, but because I think a wife should be intelligently informed in her husband's work, so that she can give him that encouragement and sympathy which is only sincere when based on a real understanding of his profession."

RETAIL MERCHANTS WILL NOT CLOSE WEDNESDAY

It Is the Retail Grocers Who Will Have Weekly Half-Holiday During Summer

Through a typographical error it was stated in The Journal Friday that the members of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' association would close their stores on Wednesday afternoon during the summer season.

It is the retail grocers, and not the Retail Merchants' association, that will close on Wednesday afternoons, and the correction is made to prevent a misunderstanding on the part of the general public.

The grocers in closing this summer will follow the same plan they followed last summer, and Atlanta housewives are getting accustomed to the plan and are giving their orders accordingly. The grocers request them to co-operate, so that the weekly half holiday for their employes will be made a success.

NEGRO VALUES WIFE'S BODY AT TEN THOUSAND

Dispute Over Undertaker's Claim Taken to Court for Settlement

Sheriff Mangum's office faces the possibility of being turned into a morgue for the $10,000 body of Sylvia Wimbish, a negro woman, because of a bail-trover proceeding brought Saturday evening by C. W. Wimbish, the dead woman's husband, against J. M. Robinson, a negro undertaker, demanding that Robinson surrender the body, valued at $10,000, to Wimbish.

Robinson got the body shortly after Sylvia passed away Friday, and states that he is going to keep it until a bill for $40 for embalming and other things is paid; Wimbish, a South Carolina negro, arrived in Atlanta Saturday, and announced that D. T. Howard, another negro undertaker, was to get Sylvia's remains, and that Robinson was to get nothing.

Argument and threats being unavailing, Wimbish sought the aid of the law and swore out a bail-trover for the body in the superior court late Saturday afternoon. Deputy Sheriff J. W. Chambers served Robinson with the papers—but Mr. Chambers didn't demand the custody of the contested remains. Instead, Robinson, who said he was going to keep Mrs. Wimbish at all costs, was given until Sunday morning to make bond, and this bond is $20,000—twice the $10,000 valuation placed by Wimbish upon his late wife.

This bond, at the "professional" rate of $5 a $100, will cost Robinson $1,000 to make, but, come what may, this undertaker states he's going to place principle above profit and make the bond and hold on to the body until his bill of $40 is paid. If Wimbish, on the other hand, makes the $20,000 bond first, he'll get the body; in either case, the corpse will have to be held until a judge of the superior court can settle the dispute Monday. In case neither Wimbish nor Robinson make the required bond, it will be the bounden duty of the sheriff to take charge of the remains and hold them in custody until the superior court settles the case."

EXERCISE AND GRECIAN BEAUTY
WHAT IT MEANS

Many thousands of women are now-a-days paying attention to physical culture and the proper exercise of their body muscles, while thirty years ago or fifty years ago there was no thought expended on this science, which is quite necessary to physical beauty. The reason the Greeks, both men and women, excelled in beautiful and symmetrical forms was because of the attention they paid to the proper exercise. Then, too, they were untrammeled by corsets, shoes and the inconveniences of clothing. To the ranks of some women the idea of physical exercise conveys only the idea of physical fatiguing work. Mild exercise continued day after day is best for the body and spirits and health. Without proper exercise there can be no health, and without health there can be no real beauty.

There is no stronger proof of the sound remedial value of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription than that it restores the wasted form to its wonted roundness.

The mighty restorative power of Dr. Pierce Favorite Prescription speedily cures all womanly troubles to disappear—compels the organs to properly perform their natural functions, corrects displacements, overcomes irregularities, removes pain and misery at certain times and brings back health and strength to nervous, irritable and exhausted women.

It is a wonderful prescription prepared only from Nature's roots with glycerine, with no alchol to falsely stimulate. It banishes pain, headache, backache, low spirits, hot flashes, dragging-down sensations, worry and sleeplessness surely and without loss of time.

ATLANTA'S PLAYGROUNDS WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Superintendent and Assistant for Each of Thirteen Recreation Places

Two thousand little children will be made happy Monday by the opening of Atlanta's thirteen city playgrounds.

At 9 o'clock in the morning the American flag will be raised over each of the playgrounds and the kiddies will begin their business of play with the swings and "shoot-the-shoots" and other things that the city has provided for them. Each playground will be under the personal supervision of a superintendent and an assistant, appointed from among the women teachers of Atlanta's schools.

Mrs. F. M. Tibbets, supervisor of playgrounds, anticipates a most successful season this summer. She is gratified that there are two more playgrounds this year than last—the one at the Ivy street school and the one at the Ira street school.

Each of the playgrounds will be open each day from 9 to 11:30 in the morning and from 3 to 6:30 in the afternoon.

Mrs. Tibbets says that the parents of the children may use the playgrounds for picnics and outings this season.

Coal Miners Strike

CLARKSVILLE, Ark., June 12.—More than 200 coal miners employed by the Pennsylvania Mining Company, at Jamestown, struck today and immediately joined the mine workers' union for five years. The company is said to be the largest non-union concern in the southwest.

Mr. Phillips had Stomach Trouble for More than Five Years.

Mr. W. R. Phillips, Jr., 153 Moreland avenue, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "I had the catarrh and stomach trouble for more than five years, and I faithfully tried all the medicines I saw advertised, and found they all failed to cure me. I then heard of Peruna. I purchased six bottles, and after their use I soon discovered that I was well, safe and sound. I now weigh two hundred and ten pounds, and have never been sick since I took Peruna. It surely is the best medicine for colds, stomach trouble and catarrh that I ever heard of."—(Advt.)

THOMAS RIVERS MAKES GREAT RECORD IN SCHOOL

Young Georgian Has Taken Three First Honors in Three Institutions

Thomas M. Rivers, a young Georgian, and almost an Atlantian, has just completed the phenomenal record of taking three first honors in the three educational institutions in which at various times he has been a student. At the closing exercises held in the Academy of Music in Baltimore Tuesday, June 8, Mr. Rivers, now Dr. Rivers, graduated with the highest honors in a class of ninety from the Johns Hopkins Medical school.

This record becomes the more remarkable when it is known that every one of the ninety Johns Hopkins graduates went there from class A colleges and universities all over the United States. The fact that he led his class gives Dr. Rivers the refusal of all appointments offered by the institution to its graduates. With it goes the right of scholarship and interne service in Johns Hopkins hospital, and Dr. Rivers has elected to pursue higher medical studies there for a period of one year, after which he will give another years attention to study as a specialist in childs diseases.

Dr. Rivers is a son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rivers, of Jonesboro, Ga., and a nephew of E. Rivers, of Atlanta. He is twenty-six years of age. He began his education in the schools of Jonesboro and went through the Jonesboro academy or high school where he began his class leading record. Leaving the Jonesboro academy, with first honor, he went to Emory college at Oxford and from there graduated with first honor in 1909. In the fall of 1909 he went to Johns Hopkins Medical school, remaining there two years, and then for a two-year period became assistant pathologist in St. Thomas hospital, Panama city, Panama. He went back to Johns Hopkins in 1913 and has just completed his four-year period.

When the class standing was posted for the first time Christmas, 1914, covering the four-year period, Dr. Rivers was at the top and there he has remained. Previous to his graduation he was offered the most attractive positions in leading Baltimore hospitals, but declined them to finish his medical education along the lines indicated. In addition to his other honors Mr. Rivers was recently chosen president of his class, showing the regard in which he is held by the student body.

Mr. Rivers' record of three first honors from three separate institutions of higher learning has won him warm congratulations from many friends. As a result of his fine standing at Johns Hopkins, he has been elected to membership in the Phi Kappa Beta society, which is a national honor society, and also in the Alpha Omega Alpha society, the national medical honor society. No higher honors than these could have come to any graduate.

DR. THOMAS M. RIVERS, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rivers of Jonesboro, and nephew of E. Rivers of Atlanta.

CLARKSTON BOY SCOUTS GIVEN FLAG AND PIANO

CLARKSTON, Ga., June 12.—The troop of Boy Scouts, which has been in training for a year, was presented last night with a handsome silk flag by the Baron DeKalb chapter, D. A. R., and a piano by the Ladies' Civic league, Colonel George M. Napier delivering the presentation address. Talks were also delivered by Prof. Pease and Mr. J. R. M. Dillon.

Scout Master Candler Weaver and the assistant master, Emerson Bush, were requested to continue their work among the boys for another year. The scouts gave an exhibition of signal code work. The talks given by some of the scouts were exceptionally good.

MICHAEL MANIC TO BE BURIED MONDAY

ATLANTA VETERANS HAD BIG TIME AT RICHMOND

Georgia Delegation Made Great Hit, Says A. C. Bruce Just Home

Atlanta veterans who have returned from the Confederate reunion in Richmond are loud in their praise of the hospitality they received and the good time they had.

"The arrangements were splendidly carried out and everything possible done for our comfort," said A. C. Bruce, one of the veterans. "The city held great historic interest for us, and we enjoyed every minute of our stay, despite the rain and bad weather. The great center of attraction was the Jefferson hotel, headquarters of the veterans, the Daughters of the Confederacy and the Ladies' Memorial association.

"Paymaster General J. M. Williamson, of Memphis, Tenn., had his headquarters in the hotel and it was a unique spectacle to see him discharging his duties. All he required was the name, regiment and rank of the veteran, but so efficient he was that he told me he paid out about $85,000 in three days.

"The Georgia delegation made a big hit. Governor-elect Nat E. Harris' speech reflected great glory on our state."

Tax Dogs and Provide Free Text Books for Pupils, Brittian Says

Instead of appropriating more funds to make the terms of Georgia grammar schools one or two weeks longer, it would be much wiser if the state legislature would supply with this money free text-books in the primary grades, says State School Superintendent M. L. Brittain in his annual report, now being printed.

"The suggestion will not be heeded unless you are more courageous than some of the past legislatures," the report continues, "but I feel it a duty to say that the school book bill of all of our children—white and black—could be paid by a simple dog tax."

In advocating this dog tax Mr. Brittain says it would help in every way, "aid the lagging sheep industry, diminish the danger from hydrophobia, give the comfort and standing of the state's protection to the worth-while dog and take it away from the prowling, vagrant cur."

Mr. Brittain's report in this connection continues as follows:

"I recommend that as soon as the state is financially able to do so that a beginning be made to furnish the pupils of the first grades with books and that legislation be enacted now, authorizing all boards of education to rent and supply texts at cost or less, if possible."

A cocked hat!

Everybody is doing it. Doing what? Praising Wilson.

Tyrus Cobb is still leading the baseball procession, which shows that there are men occasionally who can make good and stay that way.

Another Pan-American Congress.

It is deeply significant of the growing friendship among the republics of the New World that there convene in Washington this year, under the auspices of the Government of the United States, two great Pan American gatherings. The first of these, held during the week of May the twenty-fourth, assembled representative bankers and business men from the two Americas and was concerned with problems of commerce and finance. The second, which will be conducted in the fortnight beginning December the twenty-seventh next, will bring together the representative scientists of Latin America and the United States and will consider questions of broad educational and economic importance.

The term "science" as applied to this Congress is very comprehensive, including such subjects as agriculture, irrigation, forestry, mining and metallurgy, applied chemistry, public health, international law and sundry other matters that pertain to the conservation of natural and human resources. The European war has given rise to many problems which affect the common interests of the nations of this hemisphere and for the solution of which scientific thought and methods must b engaged. The development of industry and commerce leans more and more largely on scientific knowledge, so that a council of this character may be expected to yield results of practical value.

The Pan American Scientific Congress, as the meeting is designated, will have the additional effect of weaving closer intellectual ties between the New World nations. The fruits of co-operation among thinkers are to be prized even more than those of co-operation among traders. The Financial Congress has pointed the way to new undertakings. The Scientific Congress will develop new ideas, and it is from ideas, after all, that creative action springs.

Then the United States must figure on the immense saving in war type that is bound to follow the end of the war.

From the silence in Mexico, it must be inferred that the leaders are still trying to decide which one fits President Wilson's qualification of a leader.

A Gleam in Mexico.

There is no predicting what a day may bring forth among the snarling factions of Mexico. Since the split in the Constitutionalist ranks the leaders who once could have established the country's affairs on a basis of order and freedom have been fighting for supremacy of self; and none of them, unfortunately, has been able to achieve a decisive victory or to rally a decisive following. The war has been one of futile waste, and all its sacrifices thus far in vain.

Recent reports, however, from the Villa and the Carranza camps bring a gleam of hope that the warring chieftains may compose their differences. In a note to President Wilson, Villa expresses willingness "to invite a new union of all Mexicans . . . to work together to insure the triumph of the revolutionary principle;" and another note from Villa to Carranza suggests a conference with a view to uniting and reorganizing the forces which, though opposing one another, are all pledged to the cause of just government. Carranza's inherent testiness and quixotism have made him especially difficult to deal with, but he now gives evidence of being willing to consider honorable compromises.

This improvement in temper on the part of the revolutionary leaders is apparently due to President Wilson's recent warning and appeal. How long it will last or to what definite results, if any, it will lead remains to be seen. It is certain, however, that the thoughtful elements of Mexico, as of all Latin-America, are now convinced that the United States has no selfish designs whatever toward that country, and that whatever the United States does will be done with a sincere desire to serve the Mexican people.

It is to be hoped that the promise of some sort of working agreement among the factions will materialize. They can accomplish nothing for their country until they do unite; but remaining at odds, they will bring on anarchy and compel action from a power that can act constructively.

Evidently the Dardanelles don't believe in force.

With two ex-presidents behind him solidly, and even Huerta noncommittal, the support of the president might be said to be unanimous.

Mr. Bryan's Antics.

HAVING read the President's latest words to Berlin, the country is at a loss to explain Mr. Bryan's wild antics in this matter on any other ground than moral incapacity or political cunning. In deserting the Administration at its hour of gravest need, Mr. Bryan indicated that he did so rather than sanction a policy which threatened war. He sought to convey an impression that the note was a roaring ultimatum, unfair to Germany and ill-advised for the United States. In the light of that document itself the public wonders to what phrase or tone Mr. Bryan could object. It is merely a reiteration of the note of May the thirteenth which he approved and signed. Far from being bellicose, it is temperate and courteous and offers no occasion for hostility unless Germany is resolved upon overriding the plainest law of nations and the simplest principles of humanity. If Mr. Bryan is sincere in protesting against this note, he has persuaded himself that this republic has no rights as a neutral, no duties in the cause of world justice and that the American people are no longer a nation of free citizens but a flock of Prussian sheep.

"Persuasion," says Mr. Bryan in his mystical utterance, which has been likened very aptly to "a page from the Book of Mormon," "persuasion employs argument, courts investigation and depends upon negotiation." By this he means, if he means anything, that our Government should rely solely upon soft persuasion in dealing with rampant murder; that it should trust solely to argument in protecting the life of its people; and that it should daily through interminable negotiations with an assassin who in the meantime goes his slaughterous way unchecked. That is the method which Berlin would have us adopt. It is the method which all outlaws would like to see in practice. But it is not the method that appeals to American character or that will meet the solemn issues of the Lusitania crime.

"Some day," says Mr. Bryan, gazing tearfully into the seeds of time, "some day the nations will place their trust in love, the weapon for which there is no shield." This sort of babble has as much to do with the serious business in which our Government is now concerned as would a recipe for fudge or a theory of the fourth dimension. It is not idealism; it is simply drivel. Mr. Bryan has lost his bearings, either mentally or morally. If he is not incredibly stupid, he is outrageously hypocritical. President Wilson is as deeply devoted to peace as was ever Mr. Bryan, but the President knows that peace without justice and honor means calamity and shame. He knows that we face a definite problem of the year 1915, not a vague dream of some unbegotten Utopia. He is thinking of America and of humanity, while Mr. Bryan is thinking of himself and of the tinfoil millennium in which he poses.

By what process of conscience or reason could Mr. Bryan have reached the conclusion that it was his duty to forsake the Administration at this crucial juncture? Search as we may the note from which he dissented, we can find no syllable to which any thoughtful, loyal American could object. But assuming that Mr. Bryan's conscience has attained a seraphic height unreachable by ordinary mortals, the question remains, on what ground of manly honor could he undertake to prejudice the public against the note in advance of its publication and to enter a plea on behalf of Berlin against the President of the United States? That is a part which the bitterest Republican or the most ardent German-American would scorn to play. Mr. Taft has urged the country to stand behind the President, and Mr. Roosevelt more recently has taken the same position. But Mr. Bryan abandoned the Administration and sought to create a division of public sentiment at the very hour when united support was most needful.

Fortunately, American opinion has spoken so promptly and so overwhelmingly on the President's side that the German Government can cherish no delusion as to Mr. Bryan's influence. Nor can Mr. Bryan himself. Whatever his motive may have been, he must now realize the futility of his course. It is significant, indeed, that within forty-eight hours he has reversed his tactics. He began with what was virtually a warning against the war danger of the President's note. He went so far as to liken the policy of this Government to the course which Austria pursued against Serbia. But now he is commending the Administration's peaceful temper and, amusingly enough, is congratulating himself on what he terms a change of tone in the jingo press. It would be hazardous, however, to predict what his next word or move may be. For, his shifts within the last few days show that he can add colors to the chameleon and "change shapes with Proteus for advantages."

If there was ever a doubt that Mr. Bryan was unfitted for the duties of Secretary of State, or for any other office of high administrative trust it is now dispelled. Circumstances made his appointment to that position practically inevitable, but his own cast of mind made his discharge of its duties impossible. The country's foreign affairs have been handled successfully simply because Mr. Bryan was Secretary of State in name only, the real work being left to more capable hands. He has been harmless because he has been impotent. It is none the less fortunate, however, that the Government is quit of even his nominal presence, for loose thinking and irresponsible action are dangerous things to be near the helm of State, even though they be tethered by wise judgment.

Mr. Bryan has knocked himself most effectually into a cocked hat.

Our Need for Aeronautic Defense.

It has been well said that at this stage of the world's history the aeroplane is almost as essential to the defense of a nation as the submarine, the fast cruiser or the coast battery. The European war has demonstrated that aircraft are indispensable for scouting and are very valuable as an aid to range finding in artillery fire. They have rendered distinctive service both in the western and eastern fields of battle and at the Dardanelles. It is evident, indeed, that had either Germany or the Allies been without these auxiliaries, the course of the hard-fought campaigns would have been markedly different.

An army unequipped with aeroplanes would be exposed to all manner of peril from an enemy that was well supplied with them; it would be largely in ignorance of the enemy's movements and open to the enemy's observation. Likewise a navy, however strong, would be at grievous disadvantage and coast defenses would be correspondingly ineffective, without the aid of aviators.

Both the army and the navy of the United States are conspicuously deficient in this important particular. The National Guard and the Naval Militia have no aeronautic service whatever. Realizing the seriousness of these conditions, the Aero Club of America has proposed "a public aeronautical subscription, similar to the French and German subscriptions of 1912-13, to raise funds with which to develop aviators, acquire a squadron of aeroplanes for the National Guard and the Naval Militia of each State, and to get one hundred aeroplanes for the mail carrying service to inaccessible places—the aero mail carriers to form a reserve of trained aviators for military service in case of need."

Commenting on this proposal, the New York Times says:

"The French and German subscriptions were very successful, and resulted in an appreciable increase in the efficiency of the military aeroplane service of both countries. The Governments of both those countries, however, have been alive to the usefulness of the aeroplane since the heavier-than-air flying machine was invented. The popular subscriptions supplemented the work they were doing. The best efforts of the Aero club can do nothing more than that in this country; the Government must go to work practically on its own account to secure an air scout service."

The last Congress allotted for this purpose a million, three hundred thousand dollars. That fund, however, is merely a beginning, and a small one. The next Congress should make prompt and adequate provision for the development of this important auxiliary to the national defense.

Contentment may be better than riches, but they ought to go together.

A War "Ad."

Skin—Officer requires four inches by three inches of skin to cover wound and expedite his return to duty; opportunity for unselfish patriot. —Box S, 377.

A day later the "ad" was displaced by this notice:

Skin—Officer wishes to thank the numerous persons who've offers of skin he appreciates. He almost regrets his inability to accept more than one.

There is a hearty heroism in the little drama which those few lines suggest, a mingling of sacrifice and gentle humor which does credit to all the hearts in the play. One can imagine the scores and hundreds of persons who eagerly offered themselves and were disappointed no doubt over losing the chance to serve through suffering. As for the wounded officer, a volume could not have expressed his gratitude so deeply or touchingly as the one droll remark: "He almost regrets his inability to accept more than one." Thackeray would have been proud to have thought of such a line.

Many a man who humbly speaks of his own insignificance gets mad if other people allude to it.

The things that come to those who wait are seldom what they were waiting for.

It's an easy matter to be popular with your friends. All you have to do is agree with them in everything.

Editorial Echoes.

The civilizing influence of baseball is being felt in Europe as never before. The cry that comes from the trenches for the "pink sheets" with the "box scores" shows the human touch of the sport, and the games that have been played between battles have drawn the attention of thousands who never before heard the cries that attended the progress of the sport from inning to inning. Baseball is virile as well as human, and the European soldiers are unable to withstand its allurements. Interest in the sport is rapidly spreading, and it may yet supersede some of the play customs of the older countries. It is a splendid safety valve for animal spirits, and may possibly be found an antidote to the impulse to fight. With little difficulty we may visualize the spread of this most potent American influence for peace. The international quality of the game is well attested by the roster of any professional team in the United States. Men of all races play it, and find in it ample scope for their best efforts. The sooner the nations of Europe take up baseball and give over some of their other outdoor occupations the better it will be for humanity.—Omaha Bee.

HOW SCIENCE BOOSTS BUSINESS

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

SCIENCE and industry in the United States must co-operate more and more closely. There are two reasons for this: The immediate and obvious one is that the European war has deprived us of many products for which we had depended upon Europe, and which we must now devise means of producing for ourselves. The fundamental and lasting reason is that we have wasted all of our immense resources that we can afford to waste, and from now on must utilize every by-product with scientific thoroughness.

Few persons realize the immense strides which scientific research as an adjunct to American industry has made within recent years. There are about a hundred establishments in this country which maintain efficient chemical research laboratories, and at least five of these companies are spending more than $100,000 a year in research.

The extent to which our modern industry is built upon scientific research is little understood. Because our supply of dyestuffs from Germany has been cut off, the public has suddenly become aware that the development of a dye-making industry in this country depends on our chemists. But an investigation conducted by the American Chemical society shows that no less than nineteen industries in this country are literally founded upon chemical research. The corn products industry, with its varied output, has produced at least a hundred commercial products which are the direct result of chemical research. Chemical experiments in the use of cotton seed oil have added between $10 and $12 to the value of every bale of cotton grown. It was a chemist who discovered that the great beds of phosphate rock in this country could be converted into fertilizer, and thereby founded a new industry. In the preservation of foods, which makes possible such an enormous saving of perishable foodstuffs, a chemist is the guide of every successful establishment.

Thus in many industries the scientists of the United States have been of inestimable value. That the co-operation of science and industry in this country has not been perfected as it has in Germany is due solely to the fact that we have had such an enormous supply of natural wealth. The need for avoiding waste has not been apparent. In enterprise and in that combination of keenness and self-confidence which are required for successful research, American scientists have always ranked high. The country which produced Franklin, Morse, McCormick, Westinghouse, Bell and the Wrights does not lack the talent to make it a leader in industrial research. And, indeed, some splendid achievements are in the annals of industrial research in this country.

In the marvelous series of discoveries which reduced the price of aluminum from $90 a pound to 22 cents, and made it available for hundreds of everyday users, the scientists of this country played a splendid part. Aluminum was discovered in Germany in 1828 by Wohler. In 1855 it still cost $90 a pound. In 1886 it had been reduced to $12. Then the American, Castner, devised a process which brought the price down to $4 a pound, in 1899. But the metal was still a luxury, with few industrial applications. Then Hall, in America, and Heroult, in Europe, simultaneously discovered a way of dissolving aluminum out of its ores and precipitating it by electricity. It was then that the great reduction company at Niagara Falls was formed and the real production of aluminum began. In 1911 40,000,000 pounds of aluminum were produced, and the market price was 22 cents a pound.

Another striking triumph of science applied to industry in this country was the achievement by means of which Frasch made the United States one of the greatest producers of sulphur in the world. In Calcasieu Parish, La., are great deposits of sulphur lying 1,000 feet below the surface, and covered by a layer of quicksand 500 feet in thickness. Never was greater wealth more ingeniously defended from the hand of man. A French company, an Austrian company and several American companies had tried various ingenious ways of getting at these sulphur deposits, and all had ended in failure, if not in disaster. Then Frasch conceived the idea of melting the sulphur where it lay, and pumping it to the surface. He forced super-heated water through a pipe to the sulphur beds and brought the melted sulphur to the surface through an inner tube. Twenty boilers of 150-horse power were used in the initial experiment, and it was a success. One of these wells alone was recently producing 450 tons of sulphur a day.

The temper of the American people is unalterably practical. Americans cannot appreciate science for science's sake. Therefore, the future of scientific research in this country is bound up with industry. Our scientific achievements in the future will undoubtedly take place in the splendid laboratories of our great industrial concerns. With the need for utilizing our resources to the fullest, and of supplying ourselves with products which we can no longer obtain from Europe, opportunity and necessity are conspiring to give industrial research in this country a tremendous impetus. Therefore, the question of how business and industry can best co-operate is of the greatest importance.

The relations of these two diverse but complementary elements are by no means ideal. The manufacturer usually regards the scientist as a wizard, and expects him to produce magical results in a short time. Then, too, co-operation between the universities, which are the established fonts of scientific knowledge, and the great industries, is rendered difficult by the fact that the manufacturer desires to keep secret all that he learns, while the prime object of the universities is to diffuse knowledge.

One interesting solution of this difficulty is embodied in the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research of the University of Pittsburg. A manufacturer having an industrial problem to solve becomes the donee of a fellowship in this institute. The manufacturer pays the salary of the chemist who is engaged in the investigation, and the institute furnishes the facilities. The Mellon institute, although a part of the university, has its own endowment and expends over $150,000 a year for salaries and maintenance. The manufacturer has the advantages of this organization for a relatively small expenditure. All of the discoveries made by the fellows are the property of the company and may be patented by the company. Furthermore, the fellow is bound to keep such discoveries secret if the company desires.

By this arrangemet the Mellon institute is conducting chemical research for a number of large industrial concerns, and the chemists connected with it are having a splendid opportunity to do advanced research work and form valuable connections with the industrial world.

Despite its promising beginning, industrial research in this country is in its infancy. Numerous problems confront it. For example, the exact chemical constitution of glass has never been discovered, and many of the problems of our glass manufacturers depend upon the solution of this problem. Few industries have received more aid from science than our sugar refineries. Yet American sugar manufacturers do not use their by-products. They neglect the opportunity to manufacture alcohol from molasses. The moisture content and degree of infection in sugars, which are the two chief points in grading sugar, have never been scientifically determined.

The rubber industry is in need of much help from science. The chemical difference between para and plantation rubber, which accounts for the superiority of the latter, has never been discovered. Waste vulcanized rubber, which is now thrown away in immense quantities, awaits only a process of separating the sulphur from it to become valuable in many ways. These are only a few of the problems that are to be solved through better understanding and co-operation between American men of science and manufacturers.

"A MIDSUMMER NIGHT'S DREAM"

As I read the play and seek to divine its process of construction, I seem—and the reader must take this for what it is worth—to see Shakespeare's mind working somewhat as follows:

He turns over his repertory of notions, and takes stock.

"Lyly's model has had its day, and the bloom is off it; I must not repeat the experiment of 'Love's Labour's Lost.' . . . I have one that I can do great things with mistaken identity, but I cannot possibly express the fun of that further than I did in 'The Comedy of Errors;' and the fun there was clever, but a trifle hard, if not inhuman . . . But here is a wedding; a wedding should be human; a wedding calls for poetry—and I long to fill a play with poetry. (For I can write poetry. Look at 'Venus and Adonis!' . . . Still, mistaken identity is a trick I know, a trick in which I am known to shine. . . . If I do only make it poetical. A pair of lovers? For mistaken identity that means two pairs of lovers. . . . Yet, steady! We must not make it farcical. It was all very well to make wives mistake their husbands. That has been funny ever since the world began; that is as ancient as cuckoldy, or almost. But this is a wedding play, and the sentiment must be fresh. Lovers are not so easily mistaken as wives and husbands—or ought not to be—in poetry.

"I like, too"—and fancy the young dramatist continuing—"that situation of the scorned lady following her sweetheart. . . . I did not quite bring it off in 'The Two Gentlemen of Verona,' but it is none the less a good situation, and I must use it again. . . . Lovers mistaking one another . . . scorned lady following the scorner . . . wandering through a wood (that's poetical, anyhow). . . . Yes, and by night; this play has to be written for a bridal eve. . . . A night for lovers—a summer's night—a midsummer's night—dewy thickets—the moon. . . . The moon? Why, of course, the moon. Pitch darkness is for tragedy, moonlight for softer illusion. Lovers can be pardonably mistaken—under the moon. . . . What besides happens on a summer's night, in a woodland, under the moon?

"Eh? . . . Oh, by Heaven! Fairies! Real Warwickshire fairies! Fairies full of mischief—Robin Goodfellow and the rest. Don't I know about them! Fairies full of mischief—and for a wedding, too!

"Fairies, artificers, and minister of all illusion . . . the fairy ointment, philters, pranks, 'the little western flower.' These and wandering lovers, a mistress scorned—why, we scarcely need the moon, after all!

"Then—for the man's fancy never started to work but it straightway teemed—we can watch it opening out new alleys of fun, weaving fresh delicacies upon this central invention. 'How, for a tangle, to get one of the fairies caught in the web they spin? Why not even the fairy queen herself? . . . Yes, but the mortal she falls in with? Shall he be one of the lovers? . . . Well, to say truth, I haven't yet given any particular character to these lovers. The absolute jest would be to bring opposite extremes into the illusion, to make Queen Mab dote on a gross clown. . . . All very well, but I haven't any clowns. . . . The answer to that seems simple; if I haven't, I ought to have. . . . Stay! I have been forgetting the interlude all this while. We must have an interlude; one interlude in 'Love's Labour's Lost' proved the making of the play. . . . Now suppose we make a set of clowns perform the interlude, as in 'Love's Labour's Lost,' and get them chased by the fairies while they are rehearsing? Gross flesh and gossamer—that's an idea! If I cannot use it now, I certainly will some day. . . . But I can use it now! What is that story in Ovid, about Midas and the ass's ears! Or am I confusing it with another story—which I read the other day, in that book about witches—of a man transformed into an ass?"—Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch, in the June number of The North American Review.

DIARY OF A SOLDIER IN THE TRENCHES

BY JEAN GIGOT, as Recorded by Walter S. Hiatt.

IN THE TRENCHES, April 27.—When we are not actually trying to kill the Germans, who are eternally camped in front of us, digging their trenches ever closer, always trying to tunnel some new scheme to destroy us, and we doing the same on our side, we act like human beings if we get the chance. Most of us ruined financially, all of us wet, miserable, unshaven often, with just enough strength left after six days in the trenches to wait for the recuperating period of six days behind the lines, we are kept in heart because of those waiting for us at home.

With death certain for most of us, once in a while we even dare to hope that ourselves will some day get home. Most of us envy the wounded, for if they are lucky enough to get carried back before they die they are sure of a respite; perhaps, if badly wounded, they may never have to come back!

There was Pierre, a father of a nice family, who got a photograph from home—one of his little girl, Marie. She had had it taken for him, and her brown eyes just shone out of the paper. No wonder he was proud of her. He passed it around, showed it to all of us fellows of the company section. For weeks he had been bragging about that girl, and it was just as if she was one of our own family.

Before the war he had been working hard, laying up money for her dowry—she would have a proper husband, she would.

Pierre called to the fellows in the next trench, "Want to see my girl?" Of course they said "Yes." So Pierre held up a rag of a white handkerchief and shook it at the Boches, as we call the Germans, in the trench in front of us, to ask them not to shoot. This is one of the ways we have of making little truces. Things were pretty dull; there hadn't been much fighting for a couple of days; only the sharpshooters were busy.

Out he climbed from our trench and started to run across to the next one. It was only sixty feet, and he was in a hurry. He might have crawled, but he was too busy thinking about his girl. A German sharpshooter from the trench in front shot him through the heart.

We let him lie there all day in that little open space, on the rough ground, with his photograph quite near, just out of reach of his hand. All day long we thought about Pierre. We knew what it would mean when the news got home. Whenever we looked over and saw him there and watched the tiny piece of tissue paper over the face of the photograph stir in the wind, we felt sorry.

Somehow the news got along the line of trenches, for a quarter of a mile say, and by afternoon everybody knew about the Pierre who would be missed at home. Our adjutant told the captain, and the captain told the colonel, and the colonel must have told the artillery lieutenant.

When dusk came young Jaudec, who makes a specialty of dragging in the wounded and searching the dead, so he can send home news of them, crept out toward the place where Pierre lay. The Germans saw him and began firing. That made us mad—and it takes a lot to make us mad, we are so calm—and we began firing at the little streaks of blue-white flame showing us the German eyelets. Jaudec came back all right, but we didn't stop firing. Then the fellows down the line took it up, and soon all hands were at it. A little later we got word to lie low, that the big artillery was going to chip in. Then the bombs began to drop, flying only a few yards over our heads.

What happened we had seen dozens of times before, but this time there was a reason. The artillery had the range of the German trenches, and about one shot of two fell true. After each terrific explosion, shaking and rocking the earth like an earthquake, a huge mass of earth rose a hundred feet in the air, and we could distinguish clearly the heads, bodies, arms, and legs of the enemy soldiers shooting skyward, together with the pieces of tents, rifles, shovels, timbers, and other equipment.

The explosions were accompanied by the most agonizing cries, shrieks not of men but of pieces of quivering flesh. When I think now of what happened it makes my own flesh creep, and I know that I myself will sooner or later be mangled that way by the Germans. Yet at the time not only myself but every one of us, peeping from our apertures, laughed like madmen and applauded each time a shell struck its mark. In a short hour all was over, and the German artillery replied, as is the silly custom. But the only man of ours killed that day was Pierre, and his death was avenged.

ed. The army under General von Linsingen has attacked the enemy who was advancing toward our wing. Zurawna, which had been cleared the day before yesterday has been retaken and the enemy driven beyond the bridgehead near Mosciska, northeast of Zurawna.

"Attacks by the enemy near Halusz and upon Stanislau were repulsed."

Lemberg Now in No Danger, Russians Think

(By Associated Press.)

PETROGRAD, June 12.—Russian successes near Zuravno, Galicia, on the left bank of the Dniester river, and Ugartsberg, on the right bank of the Dniester, are highly gratifying to military circles and have resulted in the expression of a distinctly optimistic feeling in the press and among the people.

Military men believe that Lemberg is in no immediate danger. They think that in face of the defeats on the Dniester and the failure to progress from Mosciska eastward to Przemysl the Germanic forces are entrenching along the present position and have abandoned, temporarily at least, an attack on Lemberg.

Fifteen thousand Testaments, prepared by American school children, were forwarded to the front today for distribution to the soldiers.

Von Mueller Would Ban Schnapps of Every Kind

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, June 12.—Admiral von Mueller, chief of the private marine cabinet, has sent to the president of the German association the following open letter against the misuse of spirituous beverages:

"I have recently had an opportunity to hear the emperor speak of the alcohol question.

Belgians Say German's Big Guns Are Active

(By Associated Press.)

HAVRE, June 12.—A Belgian official announcement given out today reads:

"The artillery of the enemy was active throughout yesterday, bombarding our advanced position. Our bateries dispersed groups of soldiers of the enemy on the fortifications near Terstelle and Waeleweyden."

French War Office Gives Out Statement

(By Associated Press.)

PARIS, June 12.—The following official communication was issued by the war office tonight.

"In the region to the north of Arras there has been an artillery engagement, particularly violent on the plateau of Lorette. The enemy in this sector—at Noulette-Ecurie—has sought by a continuous bombardment to impede the organization of those positions which we have gained. Our artillery replied against the trenches and batteries of the Germans.

"In the region of the Toutvent farm, southeast of Hebuterne, the enemy delivered this morning a counter attack which was easily checked.

"There is nothing to report on the rest of the front except an artillery action of a somewhat lively nature in the sector east of Rheims and on the Perthes-Beausejour front."

Official Statement of Austria Claims Victories

(By Associated Press.)

VIENNA, (Via London, June 12.)—The text of the official statement issued by general headquarters today follows:

"Between the Dniester and the Pruth, the army of General Pflanzer again attacked several Russian positions. The villages of Jezierzany and Neidzwiaha, north of Obertyn, were stormed.

"Our victorious troops, advancing toward Czernolica, have crossed the Dniester east of Horedenka. We captured Zale Swycky, against which town the Russians yesterday and in the course of the night made desperate attacks, all of which failed, with very heavy Russian losses.

"An attack by a Cossack regiment also collapsed under our fire.

"In Bukowina, the Russians were forced to give up their last positions on the Pruth and retreat across the frontier. The Russians have suffered severe losses. The army of General Pflanzer yesterday captured 5,000 men.

"South of the upper Dniester, the fighting is still proceeding. A Russian counter attack against Stanislau has been repulsed. Zurawna, which was evacuated owing to the approach of Russian reinforcements, was retaken yesterday by the allied troops.

"There have been isolated infantry and artillery engagements on the Ikonzo river. The Italians have gained a footing on the eastern bank at Monfalcone and Karfreit (Caperetto) which, however, are in front of our battle line. At dawn yesterday hostile forces climbed the heights on the east bank near Placa, but were repulsed.

"On the Carinthian frontier, our troops have repelled attacks on the passes near Monte Paralda and have occupied this mountain. An Italian attempt to recapture Monteplano failed.

"The enemy is slowly sending forces to several frontier districts—Cortina d'Ampezzo, Fiera di Primiero and Borgo."

Brave Fight Is Put Up By Italian Regiment

(By Associated Press.)

UDINE, Italy, June 12.—(Via Paris.) The twelfth regiment of Bersagliera, who virtually fought four days continuously against the Austrians defending Tolmino, had the heaviest losses of any Italian detachment since the beginning of the war.

Colonel de Rossi, twice wounded, refused to be removed from the fighting line until he saw all his men safe. Colonel Negretto, second in command, was killed.

Colonel de Rossi was promoted to the rank of general before the war broke out, but asked the king in person to postpone his promotion as he desired to lead his regiment under fire. When King Victor Emmanuel visited him at the hospital to confer a medal, Colonel Rossi said he was proud of his Bersaglieri. Although outnumbered, he told the king, his men succeeded in repulsing the Austrians and none was taken prisoner.

Italy and Allies in Accord as to Belgrade

(By Associated Press.)

ROME, VIA CHIASSO AND PARIS, June 12.—It is understood that Italy is in accord with the allies upon the friendly representations from Belgrade concerning the Serbian advance into Albania, expressing the desire that the question be left for solution by the peace conference after the war. It is stated that neither Italy nor the allies oppose the Serbian military advance toward the Adriatic across Albania, but prefer that Serbia should not divert part of her forces from the main objective of the campaign, namely, to fight Austria.

YEOMANS WILL WORK FOR ORPHANS' HOME

M. J. Yeomans, representative elect from Terrell county in the Georgia legislature, who takes his seat when the legislature assembles, has prepared and will introduce a bill providing for the establishment and maintenance by the state of a home for orphan, destitute, dependent and neglected children.

The substantial provisions of the bill are as follows:

That the home shall be under the care, supervision and control of the governor and five trustees appointed by him for terms of four years each.

That the governor and trustees be authorized to accept as a donation from any municipality, city or county a site of not less than 200 acres, together with a building or buildings if any suitable ones are offered.

That it shall be the duty of the superintendent, elected by the governor and trustees, to formulate a course of instruction in the elementary branches of an English education, including instruction in agricultural and the industrial and mechanical arts.

That the superintendent shall be authorized to place children in homes, under the proper guarantees and restrictions for their welfare and protection.

That $50,000 be appropriated to build the home and maintain it for one year, dependent and neglected children.

CANADIANS HAVE ALL ARRIVED IN FRANCE

OTTAWA, Ont., Jne 12.—Every battalion of the Second Canadian division has safely arrived in France, it was announced today by Major General Hughes, minister of militia. No details as to the movement of the troops have been received, nor is information available here as to their whereabouts in France.

Destroyer Is Launched

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The destroyer Wainwright, built for the government by the New York Ship Building company at Camden, was launched today. Ten-year-old Evelyn Wainwright Turpin, of Jamestown, R. I., was sponsor.

The Wainwright is a sister ship to the destroyer Jacob Jones, launched at the same yard two weeks ago. It is named after Richard Wainwright, who was killed near New Orleans in 1862, while in command of the United States ship Hartford.

WILL PROTECT FOREIGNERS.

Carranza then asserts he thinks it his duty to call to the attention of the factions persisting in resistance to the constitutionalist government the futility of their attitude and inform the nation of "the political course which the constitutionalist government will observe in the execution of the program of social reforms contained in the decree of December 12, 1914."

This course is set forth in part as follows:

"The constitutionalist government will grant the foreigners resident in Mexico the guarantees to which they are entitled according to our laws and will amply protect their lives and guarantee their liberty and the enjoyment of their legal property rights, granting them indemnity for damages which the revolution may have caused them in so far as such indemnities may be just. These will be liquidated by a procedure which will be instituted in due time. The government will likewise assume the responsibility of such financial obligations as may be considered legitimate.

"The first care of the constitutionalist government will be to re-establish peace under a regime of law and order so that all inhabitants of Mexico, nationals as well as foreigners, may equally enjoy the benefits of real justice, and may take an interest in co-operating towards the support of a government which springs from the revolution. The commission of crime will not go unpunished. In due time a law of amnesty will be issued which will respond to the needs of the country and the necessities of the situation and which will not be applicable to the person granted amnesty from the full responsibility which they may have incurred.

"The constitutional laws of Mexico, called the reform laws, which establish the separation of church and state, and which guarantees to the individual the right of worship according to the dictates of his own conscience without disturbing public order, will be strictly observed. Consequently, no one will suffer in his person, liberty or property on account of his religious beliefs. The church buildings will continue to be the property of the nation, according to existing laws, and the constitutionalist government will grant anew for worship these structures that may be needed.

NO CONFISCATION.

"In the settlement of the agrarian problems there will be no confiscation. This problem will be resolved by the equitable distribution of land which the government still possesses, by the restoration of these tracts of which communities of individuals have been illegally dispossessed, by the purchase and expropriation of large tracts wherever necessary, and by other means of acquisition authorized by the laws of the country. The constitution of Mexico prohibits special privileges; therefore, all kinds of property, whoever may be the owners, and whether in actual use or not will in the future be subject to a proportional payment of taxes according to a just and equitable revaluation. All property which may have been legitimately acquired from individuals or from legal government, and which does not constitute a special privilege or monopoly, will be respected.

"The peace and security of a nation depends upon the intelligence of its citizens. Therefore, the government will take pains in developing public education."

The declaration adds that the proposed government would carry out provisions of the decree of December, 1914, stipulating that upon triumph of the revolution the first chief, invested with executive authority would convoke elections for a national congress which would call an election for president.

The constitutionalist agency reported tonight that the Carranza army advancing on Mexico City was within sixty miles of the capital.

What effect, if any, it will have on President Wilson's Mexican policy can only be conjectured. The statement by General Villa, already received in Washington, is expected to be laid before the president Monday.

Villa's Reply to Wilson's Warning Is Friendly One

(By Associated Press.)

EL PASO, June 12.—General Villa's reply to President Wilson's warning is friendly. It explains that Villa makes that statement in his own name, believing he can affirm it "in the name of all factions whose political tendencies are represented by the conventionalist government and supported by the armies" under his command.

Villa declares he was impelled to reply because of Mr. Wilson's high spirit of justice, and "the consideration and respect in which he is held both inside and outside his own country, especially by the middle class and poor people of Mexico, a consideration and respect which I also hold for him."

Villa then reviews the assassination of Madero and Suarez and the efforts of the constitutionalists to overthrow the Huerta regime. He refers to the "moral aid given by the people of the United States," in these circumstances for which he expresses the gratitude of the Mexican people.

"I am pleased to know," says the Villa note further, "that President Wilson recognizes that the American people and the American government have no right to take any part in the settlement of our internal affairs."

Villa characterizes as "disgraceful" the division among Constitutionalist leaders after the triumph against Huerta, which he attributes in part to "personal ambitions of some persons," but declares that certain principles were involved which "we are still fighting."

The Villa note charges that "false ideas, for mercenary purposes, diffused by those who sought to retain power indefinitely without laws, reduced us to the most outrageous anarchy in the capital;" that it was "the lack of a sense of responsibility by Senor Carranza that brought us to strained relations with countries friendly to us."

The note reviews the request of the chiefs of the division of the north and different army corps, backed by a great portion of the civil population that the first chief of the constitutionalists act as president ad interim, open courts and call a general election to organize a constitutional civil government. It declares that instead a military convention was convoked, and reviews the Aguascalientes convention and subsequent events.

"We believed this system of government would ruin our country," says the note, "and insisted that constitutionalist reforms must be made by a congress elected by the people."

Villa declares he denied the authority of Carranza because the latter prevented fulfillment of the revolutionary program—"the restoration of our supreme law." He asserts that foreigners are protected in territory under his control, quoting from the report of Duval West to attest it.

Villa maintains that in the midst of an active military campaign his civil government has, developed instruction for the poor, reorganization of courts of justice, reformed mining laws, enacted laws for the minting of money, drafted a measure for agrarian laws, and laws for the exploitation of natural resources and restored railroad service.

350 LITTLE BELGIAN REFUGEES REACH PARIS

PARIS, May 30.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Three hundred and fifty little Belgian children refugees have just arrived in Paris from the region of the Yser, which has lately been the scene of bitter fighting. Most of the 350 are orphans. In other cases their parents refused to leave their fields, but were anxious that the children should be taken away from the constant danger of bombardment.

For months most of these children have lived in ruined houses, in caves, in barns, and even with the soldiers in the trenches. Colonies for them have been arranged in southern France, where they will be looked after by Belgian nuns.

FRENCH STEELWORKER FLEES GERMAN PRISON

PARIS, May 30.—(Correspondence of Associated Press.)—Monsiuer Jaquet, a steelworker of Longwy, with 15 companions, has just returned to France by way of Switzerland, having escaped from a German prison after nine months of captivity.

There were 17 in the party that broke out of the civilian prison camp at Rastadt and made their way to Switzerland through the Black Forest, two of them dying of fatigue and privation on the way.

STRICKEN FAMILIES IN FRANCE NEEDING AID

Dr. F. E. May Receives Statement From War Relief Committee

Dr. F. E. May, of Atlanta, executive secretary of the Georgia war relief committee for France and the allies, received yesterday afternoon from the war relief headquarters in New York the following statement concerning the dire need of stricken families in the north of France:

"It is well known how the German advance toward Paris was checked by the French and British troops in the early days of September, 1914. The German front at that time extended right through the department of the Marne and Meuse, reaching as far south as a line rough drawn through the following places: Esternay, Frere Champenoise, Vitryle-Francois, Sermaize-les-Bains and Vaseincourt. During the days when the issue of advance or retreat hung in the balance, this line was the scene of very hard fighting. Often a village was taken and lost three or four times by the French troops before the Germans were compelled to retire.

"It is natural to expect that where the fight raged fiercely along this line of villages considerable damage would be done by shell fire, by wanton acts of corps, and seizure of stock. This has, indeed, occurred, but in many cases whole villages have been almost completely destroyed through more or less wilful burning.

"At the Esternay end of the line the Germans were pushed back more quickly, and as the villages are somewhat widely separated the damage done is not so great as in the Vitry-Francois-Sermaize district, where the French advance was only slowly accomplished. There a large after village have been almost demolished, leaving in some cases hardly more than piles of broken bricks to mark their site.

"What makes their lot even worse is the fact that they were forced to be absent during the period when the rye crop should have been sown, and consequently little has been put in."

Dr. May is receiving contributions of money, clothing, or any other supplies which may be sent direct to him at the committee headquarters in the Grand Opera House building.

ONE LITTLE DROP FALLS PER SECOND

Day and Night Process of Extracting Wonderful Earth Product Goes On.

The method of extracting Vitalitas from the peculiar earth substance in which it exists is by no means rapid, nor is it complex. At the laboratories where large quantities of the liquid are being produced the process may be studied with deep interest. There are long rows of glass percolators filled with crude Vitalitas just as mined with the exception that it has become oxidized due to contact with light and air and has crumbled into small pieces. The substance is moistened with distilled water, and from the percolators the dripping process then begins and is kept up with the regularity of the beat of the human pulse. Drop by drop, day and night, the dark golden fluid enters retainers. Save the distilled water used in the percolation process, nothing is added to Vitalitas nor is anything taken from it. It is perfect as it is, and it is the most wonderful known curative nature has given to mankind.

Taken into the system, Vitalitas helps to overcome many diseased conditions of stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood. It cleanses, purifies and reinvigorates. The good it does is constitutional, and not merely temporary.

A display showing in miniature how Vitalitas is extracted is now in progress at Jacobs' pharmacy, 23 Whitehall. You can write for information.

Face Eruptions Have Deep Significance

Often They Indicate Impurities Deep in the Tissues.

The results shown by S. S. S. in clearing the skin reveal how searchingly and how deeply this famous blood purifier attacks blood troubles. Facial eruptions are more often significant of impaired nutrition resulting from faulty elimination of body wastes.

Most people realize this to be true. And yet it is a difficult matter to convince such people they should avoid those harmful drugs such as mercury, iodide of potash, arsenic and so on.

S. S. S. gives just as good effect without the destructive results, because it is more searching. It goes deeply into the circulation wherever the blood flows, but it does not remain to clog the system. And its effect is complete and thorough as indicated by blood tests. One of the strange things today is that so many people are wedded to the notion that mercury is the one antidote. It is not so. There is in S. S. S. a product of nature that is rated one of the most potent principles known for the complete elimination of blood troubles.

Wherever you go there are people who know this to be true from their own experience, for it has been clearly shown there is one ingredient in S. S. S. as essential to health if the blood be impure as the nourishing elements of the grains, sugars and salts of our daily food. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today of any druggist, but insist upon S. S. S., accept no substitute. And if your case is peculiar or of long standing, write to the Medical Adviser, The Swift Specific Co., 101 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, G a.

SEEK EIGHT-HOUR DAY FOR CITY EMPLOYES

Council Will Be Asked to Act Under Provisions of Referendum Law

The first attempt to put into effect the city initiative, referendum and recall law may be made shortly when the city council will be asked to call an election for the passage of an ordinance the main provision of which specifies an eight-hour day for all city employes, those of the fire department excepted.

The ordinance has already been drafted. It was officially adopted Wednesday night by the Atlanta Federation of Trades, and it also has the support of the Georgia Federation of Labor.

Under the provisions of the referendum act, which has never before been exercised, a petition signed by ten per cent of the registered voters of Atlanta—based on the previous year's registration—makes it mandatory upon the city council to call an election for a specific purpose. In the election itself, a majority vote is necessary for the adoption of the ordinance.

As last year's registration was about 15,000, the number of signatures required in the present case would be 1,500. Petitions are now being circulated for signatures, and, provided they are obtained, council must call the election for a date thirty days after the petition is presented to it.

In addition to the eight-hour law specified in the ordinance, provision is made for a scale of wages. The ordinance, which is brief, follows in full:

"An ordinance prescribing that the hours of work of all city employes shall be limited to eight hours out of each twenty-four hours, and that no employe shall be permitted to work more than eight hours in any twenty-four hours unless in case of emergency involving life, limb or health of its citizens, and which might result in loss, damage or impairment of the city's service, and that in the event of such emergency and during its continuance the proper department head may suspend said eight-hour provision.

"That council shall provide for the proper readjustment of service, time of all employes, making said eight-hour provision uniform among all said city's employes.

"That no common laborer of said city shall receive less for his work than the highest prevailing wage paid for his particular grade of work. And all skilled mechanics engaged in work for said city shall receive for their said work the highest prevailing wage paid to skilled mechanics for the same character of work.

"That no contract for public work for said city shall be given unless on the specifications on which bids are submitted, it shall be stated, that such successful contractor, awarded said work, or any sub-contractor, shall pay to all common laborers the highest prevailing wage paid in their particular grade of work; to all persons doing the work of a skilled mechanic and engaged on such public work shall receive the highest prevailing wage in his particular grade of work, and that all employes employed by said contractor or sub-contractor shall not be required to work in excess of eight hours in any twenty-four hours.

"That any contractor given any city work or any sub-contractor who shall violate any of the provisions of this ordinance shall forfeit to said city the penal sum of $500 for each and every violation thereof.

"All employes of the fire department of said city shall be exempt from the provisions of this ordinance, it being recognized that their work is of an emergency character as herein stated.

"That upon the submission and passage of said ordinance all conflicting ordinances or laws are hereby repealed."

HANS BAUDER, OF ZURICH, HELD GUILTY OF FRAUD

(By Associated Press.)

BERNE, Switzerland, June 12.—Hans Bauder, a banker of Zurich, was today found guilty of fraud in 144 cases, amounting to more than 900,000 francs ($180,000). He was sentenced to seven years in the penitentiary.

Bauder is the son of a Swiss clergyman. He was arrested in Chicago on February 21, 1913, at the request of the Swiss government and extradited on the charge of fraud in connection with the sale of worthless mining and other stocks.

Dr. E. A. Kraft, Who Has Resigned His Position as Atlanta's City Organist

Will Return to Cleveland, Ohio, as Organist of Trinity Cathedral--Remains Here Until October 1

Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft, city organist, announces his resignation from that position, to take effect October 1, next. Dr. Kraft has accepted the post he formerly held for seven years in Cleveland, O., that of organist of Trinity cathedral, where he goes at a salary of $4,000 a year with a five-year contract, which is one of the highest paid positions of this nature in America.

Dr. Kraft will continue the free Sunday organ recitals as usual at the auditorium until October. Although the Atlanta Music Festival association has not yet selected his successor, it is expected the concerts will be given regularly throughout the coming winter, as heretofore.

During the two years Dr. Kraft has occupied the position of city organist in Atlanta, he has made scores of friends and has proven himself a musician of the highest ability combined with fine artistic judgment and temperament.

During his residence here he organized the Georgia chapter of the American Guild of Organists, of which he was made president. His successor as head of this chapter will be elected before his departure in the fall.

LAW STUDENTS PUBLISH FIRST COLLEGE ANNUAL

Article on "Common Carriers" by R. C. Alston Is Feature of Publication

The Atlanta Law School "Brief Book," an annual published by the students of the Atlanta Law school, has made its first appearance, in the shape of a neat and interesting book of seventy-two pages bound in handsome leather.

In addition to the usual features of college annuals, with the pictures of the students and faculty and various student organizations, etc., the publication carries a number of special articles, including an article by Robert C. Alston, on "The Common Carriers and the Cummins Act." Mr. Alston was one of the earliest graduates of the Atlanta Law school, and is now general counsel for the Southern Express company, and other large corporations, and is an authority on common carriers.

The board of editors who prepared the annual are as follows:

Senior Editors—J. Walter LeCraw, W. C. Mather and Astor Merritt.
Junior Editor—Francis X. Pavesich.

The "Brief Book" is dedicated to Hamilton Douglas, Sr., dean of the law school, and a memorial page is also given to Charles B. Reynolds, the late member of the Atlanta bar who held the chair of real property up to the time of his death.

J. N. LANDERS ENTERS RACE FOR COUNCIL

Will Oppose Councilman S. L. Dallas Who Now Represents Seventh Ward

At a meeting of the Seventh Ward club held recently J. N. Landers formally announced his candidacy for the city council in opposition to Councilman S. L. Dallas, who has represented the ward two years.

Mr. Landers is a resident of the Battle Hill section, which has not had a representative in council since it was brought into the city.

Friends of Mr. Landers are preparing to wage a vigorous campaign in his interest, and the following committee has been named to take charge: R. B. Burnett, chairman; Thomas C. Harris, vice chairman; A. A. Craig, secretary; J. E. Harrison, treasurer, and W. F. Brandt, publicity manager.

Shipment of Mayflower Brand Brings God Price in Pittsburg

Of course, it happened in Pittsburg, the home of multi-millionaires, who appreciate good fruit and are willing to pay for it. This time it was the famous Georgia peach which brought the money. According to a report received by the Georgia Fruit exchange from its selling agents in Pittsburg, a carload of Mayflower peaches shipped by Pearson Brothers at Fort Valley and sold through the exchange, netted the shipper $1,166.70. This is a new record for early Georgia peaches. There were 474 crates of peaches in this car and each netted the shipper a profit of $2.47.

This carload of peaches, which was select stock, carefully picked and packed, left Fort Valley on May 29th and was sold in Pittsburg on June 2 and 3 by the agents of the Georgia Fruit exchange. The details of the sale showing the wonderful profit made by this member were received at the office of the exchange Saturday.

Last week brought to a close the shipments of Mayflower and this week the Greensboros will go on the market.

General Manager B. J. Christian, who has been in south Georgia all this week, returned to his office on Saturday, and reports the outlook splendid for the cleanest crop of Georgia peaches ever marketed.

DECATUR TRADE BOARD IS OPPOSED TO MERGER

By a vote of four to two, the board of directors of the Decatur board of trade has paced itself on record as opposing the proposed merger of DeKalb and Fulton counties. A resolution was adopted by a vote of four to two recommending to the members of the board that they use their efforts to defeat the plan for uniting DeKalb with Fulton county.

While it has been and is the policy of the board not to take part in any political movement, it was the opinion of the majority of the directors that the proposed merger was not a political question, but affected the existence of the county of DeKalb and Decatur.

JOSEPH MAERZ, noted pianist, who will be heard at the free organ concert Sunday afternoon.

MR. W. D. RHEA, FORMER ATLANTA RESIDENT, DIES

Was for Long Time With International Agricultural Corporation

A telegram was received by Lee Ashcraft Saturday night telling of the death in New York at 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon of Mr. W. D. Rhea, formerly of Atlanta.

Mr. Rhea lived here for about five years. He was with the International Agricultural corporation of 1601 Hurt building, leaving Atlanta last fall to make his home in New York. In Atlanta he was a member of the Capital City club and the Transportation club and was popular among a wide circle of friends.

Funeral and interment will take place in Nashville, Tenn.

Peaches at Cornelia

CORNELIA, Ga., June 12.—The frist peaches of the season were placed on the local market this week, all the early varieties are ripe now and are being marketed as fast as possible. The peach crop in this section is said to be better than in many years and the car shipments will be far in excess of any year since peaches have been grown commercially.

GEORGIA DENTISTS MEET IN ATLANTA THURSDAY

Three-Day Convention at Piedmont Hotel--Interesting Program Arranged

The forty-seventh annual convention of the Georgia State Dental association will be held in the convention hall of the Piedmont hotel of this city next Thursday, Friday and Saturday, June 17 to 18 inclusive.

Several hundred dentists, representing the entire state, will attend the convention. There will be clinics and addresses by some of the leading dentists of America, and dental manufacturers will install very elaborate exhibits, showing the most approved up-to-date dental apparatus, material, etc.

The convention will be called to order at 10:30 o'clock Thursday morning by the president, Dr. E. A. Tigner, of Milledgeville, Ga., and there will be welcome addresses by Governor Slaton, Mayor Woodward and Dr. M. D. Hull.

GEORGIA LEADS SOUTH IN PROPERTY VALUES

Governor Slaton Saturday received a clipping from a West Virginia newspaper which contained statistics on the property values of the leading states in the union. This clipping placed Georgia ahead in the southern states with values amounting to $2,382,000,000; West Virginia second with values of $2,303,000,000, and Virginia third with values of $2,289,000,000. New York leads the country with values of $25,000,000,000.

PREPARATIONS COMPLETE FOR VACATION SCHOOLS

Summer Institutions Will Be Opened June 21, It Is Announced

Preparations for the opening of vacation schools June 21 have been completed and the board of education is ready for this innovation in the Atlanta public school system, which is expected to save a year's time, each year, for more than a thousand children, who fail of promotion during the regular scholastic year.

The following school buildings will be used for the vaction schools: State street, Georgia avenue, Calhoun, Walker, Moreland avenue, Hill street, and Boulevard.

Miss Laura M. Smith, director of the summer schools, announces that a "senior teacher" will be in charge of each school and will have associated with her several grade teachers.

This corps of workers will be furnished with the necessary information relative to each child's needs and every effort will be made to give individual instruction and fit the child for the next higher grade.

The number of pupils now listed for the vacation schools is 1,100, and of that number 157 are coming in order to be able to skip a grade, and thus save time for themselves and give room in the schools for additional children.

Miss Smith announces that the children who may attend the vacation schools are listed in three groups as follows:

1st. All children who have failed of promotion in one or more subjects, provided there is a strong possibility of thus preparing them for the next higher grade. Attendance is required of all children under this head.

2nd. Those chilren wdo upon recommendation of the school last attended, are to be given a chance to skip a grade by doing this extra work in the summer. Such children will be strongly urged to avail themselves of the opportunity of thus saving a year's time.

3rd. Children who have lost time on account of illness, or some other unavoidable cause, may also apply for admission to the summer schools and be given ah admission ticket if there is a chance of their being able to make up the work in this way. In such cases, application should be made to the directors of the vacation schools, Chamber of Commerce building.

Before the opening of the summer schools on Monday, June 21, notice will be sent to each pupil who is expected to attend. In event any non-promoted child fails to receive such notice, he is requested to report on the above date to the nearest vacation school.

The teachers who have been selected for the vacation school work will meet at 10 o'clock Monday at the office of the board of education, where the plan of the schools will be mapped out in detail.

Senior teachers: Miss Mary W. Postell, Miss Mamie L. Pitts, Mrs. Jennie Bloodworth, Mrs. Eva Thornton, Miss Lula Kingsberry, Miss Meta Scarlett, Mrs. S. M. Albright, Mrs. C. J. Maddox.

Teachers: Miss Katie King, Miss Annie Frank Bass, Miss Fannie Spahr, Miss Ethel Belcher, Miss Fannie Thrasher, Miss Josie Webb, Miss Rose Hooper, Miss Martha Foster, Miss Lottie Moyer, Miss Mollie Ray, Mrs. Osborne Douglas, Miss Vena Maughey, Mrs. M. E. Laird, Mrs. A. D. Connally, Miss Ellen Bittick, Miss Dona Bailey, Miss Dollie Orr, Miss Ida Hurtel, Miss Laura Graham, Miss May Taylor, Miss Julia Bellingrath, Miss Gussie Carr, Miss Susan Stephens, Miss Mamie Wilt, Miss Sadie Nolan, Miss Carrie Booker, Miss Lillian Johnson, Miss Davidde Mobley, Mrs. Gertrude Cloud, Mrs. E. S. Howell, Mrs. R. B. Whitworth.

COTTON SEED CRUSHERS OPEN MEETING MONDAY

The largest delegation that ever left Atlanta to attend a convention of the Cotton Seed Crushers' association of Georgia, pulled out of the Terminal station last night, over the Central of Georgia railway, en route to Tybee Island, Ga., where the eleventh annual convention of the association will be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

This special train was headed by President P. D. McCarley, Secretary E. F. Chivers, of this city and forty members of the association living in Atlanta. They were joined here by a score or more members living in Athens, Winder, Cartersville, LaGrange, Moreland and other nearby cities. The train will pick up extra cars at Macon before reaching Savannah.

The opening session will take place in the Hotel Tybee on Monday morning, at which time addresses of welcome will be delivered by Hon. A. P. Wright, of Tybee Island, and Mayor Davant, of Savannah, and response delivered by John T. Dennis, of Elberton.

President McCarley's address and a talk by Dr. E. Lee Worsham, state entomologist, will be features of the opening session.

OLD GUARD MEMBERS GIVE ANNUAL BARBECUE

Organization Spends Pleasant Afternoon at Home of Walter Andrews

The annual barbecue of the Old Guard was given by that organization Saturday afternoon at the country home of Colonel Walter P. Andrews on Peachtree road. There was a large attendance and the event was pronounced the most enjoyable of the kind ever given by the guard.

There were dancing and refreshments, as well as informal talks by several of those present, and some discussion of the Old Guard's western trip.

Colonel Andrews made a talk in which he reviewed the history of the Old Guard, which is the oldest military organization in Georgia and has represented the state in many sections of the country.

Talks were also made in response by Colonel George M. Napier and Major Ed L. Wight.

Tobacco Habit Easily Conquered

A well-know New Yorker of wide experience has written a book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit may be easily and completely banished in three days with delightful benefit.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Calmness, tranquil sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many benefits reported. No more of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette or chewing tobacco to pacify the morbid desire. The author, Edw. J. Woods, L718, Station E, New York City, will send his book free on application, to anyone who writes him.—(Advt.)

BERRY COHEN RETURNS FROM NEW YORK TRIP

Atlanta Boy Made Journey to Gotham and Back on His Motorcycle

Berry Cohen, nineteen years old, is back in Atlanta, after his first trip of any length away from home. The trip was to New York City and he made it on a motorcycle, carrying another boy on the rear of the machine over half the distance.

Berry is known by local motorcycle fans as the "dare-devill." He won this title in a motorcycle endurance run to Birmingham several months ago, the first time he had been over 200 miles from the city of his birth.

On May 4 the wanderlust hit him and with Joe Shapiro, better known as "Battling Superior," he decided to go to New York. They made the trip on Berry's Indian over the Atlanta Journal-New York Herald National highway. Joe left Berry at Atlantic City, but the latter pushed on to Springfield, Mass., arriving there six days after leaving Atlanta, a record for the 1,400 miles.

Berry stayed three days in New York City, returning by leisurely installments to Atlanta, which he reached last week. On the days he ran he averaged 250 miles.

Berry says he thinks New York is a great town and deserves the title of "the Atlanta of the North." He spent his three days in the city riding around the streets, and says he probably saw more of New York in that time than the average New Yorker sees in all his life.

The Newest Overland

$325 Less Than Last Year

The 1916 Overland is essentially the same as the 1915 Overland—the famous Model 80 that sold for $1,075.

But the price is $325 less.

The stream-line body is the same as the $1,075 model of last season.

It has the same magnificent finish; that deep, rich tone of dark Brewster green with fine hair-line striping of clear ivory-white.

It has the same powerful, economical thirty-five horsepower, four-cylinder motor, but weighs less.

It has high-tension magneto ignition.

It has the same underslung rear spring. It has the convenient arrangement of electric control buttons on the steering column.

It has the same easy-working clutch which any woman can operate; the same "easy to handle" shifting levers; the same "easy to steer with" wheel; the same positive brakes.

It has 33-in. x 4-in. tires which is unusual on a car at this price.

In detail, finish, mechanical fineness, comforts and conveniences, this newest Overland gives you all there was in the $1,075 Overland and even more power.

And it costs you but $750—$325 less than last season's large 35-horsepower Overland.

Special Keystone at Vaudette--Chaplin at Alamo Number 1, "Who Pays?" at Montgomery and Alpha--Strand Offers "Wormwood"--Edeson and Hart Among Stars at Alamo Number 2--Barbara Tennant in Boxer Play at Victoria, Grand Has Great Program

Stars of the week at local motion picture theaters include Ruth Roland, Marguerite Clark, Charlie Chaplin, Barbara Tennant, Chester Conklin, Pearl White, W. S. Hart, Robert Edeson and other favorites, some new, some old, but all leaders of the silent drama.

Ruth Roland is the star of "The Pursuit of Pleasure," the second drama in Pathe's "Who Pays?" It will be shown Wednesday of this week at the Alpha and at the Montgomery. Marguerite Clark is another Montgomery attraction, and Mary Fuller, Edna Maison and such favorites are booked for the Alpha.

"Wormwood" is the big offering of the week at the Strand, an all-star cast playing this film adaptation to Marie Corelli's famous novel. Several other features, including "Up From the Depths," a Mutual Masterpicture, are at the Strand.

The Victoria has three World Film features besides its regular assortment of Mutual releases. One of them, "The Marked Woman," stars Barbara Tennant, a stage beauty of note.

What is described as the most stupendous comedy ever produced is at the Vaudette Monday. It is a special-extra Keystone, "The Cannon Ball," and is full of explosions and bangs.

Myrtle Tannehill, Robert Edeson, W. S. Hart and other prominent movie personages feature the Alamo No. 2's program. Hart and Edeson appear in "On the Night Stage," a Mutual Masterpicture. Edeson also plays in "Man's Prerogative."

The Grand has its usual high-class features.

STARS OF THE WEEK ON EVERY SCREEN. 1. W. S. Hart in "On the Night Stag," Alamo Number Two, Wednesday. 2. Jackie Saunders, star at the Alama Number One. 3. Scene from "Wormwood," Strand Monday and Tuesday. 4. Marguerite Clark in "Wild Flower," Montgomery Monday. 5. John Barrymore in "The Romance of Elaine," Vaudette Tuesday. 6. Hazel Dawn in "Gambler's Advocate" at the Grand. 7. Scene from "The Marked Woman," Victoria Monday. 8. Mary Fuller in "A Daughter of the Nile," Alpha Monday.

GRAND OFFERS FINE PROGRAM FOR WEEK.

A stupendous picture feature in which Irvin Cobb, the renowned humorist and author, appears, "The Arab," and a collection of other massive photo-dramas, including a repetition of that most amazing of all, "The Juggernaut," is the combination to be offered by the Grand theater this week.

"The Arab" will be exhibited Monday and Tuesday. It will be followed on Wednesday by "The Millionaire Baby," a rippling Selig drama released through the Vitagraph-Selig-Lubin-Essanay combination.

"The Millionaire Baby" is an Anna Katherine Green story, and the leading role is portrayed by Harry Mestayer.

Thursday "The Juggernaut" will return. Thousands of Atlanta theatergoers packed the commodious Grand theater when it was shown several weeks ago. It created a sensation that has not been equaled by any other photo-dramatic offering since the day moving pictures were introduced in Atlanta. It is predicted by picture experts that it will draw even bigger crowds on this second engagement.

Jesse L. Lasky's photodramatic production of "The Arab," in which Edgar Selwyn, the author and original star, plays the title role, tells the story of a Christian massacre in Syria. The leading character is that of Jamil, the son of a great desert sheik, who falls in love with the daughter of the Christian missionary and rescues her, her father, and the children of their mission school from the general destruction.

The Turkish governor of the Syrian town, in which the massacre is ordered by the sultan, is also in love with Mary, the missionary's daughter. The scheme of the governor is to persuade the desert tribe, of which Jamil's father is sheik, to ride down on the town after the massacre so that he can blame them for the killing and thus escape the vengeance of the American government.

The old sheik, who has been parted from his son, agrees to this if the governor will find Jamil and send him back to the desert, but when Jamil learns the motive of the governor's interest he has already fallen in love with Mary, and, for her sake, becomes the defender of the Christians.

Hazel Dawn, of "Pink Lady" fame, and more recently seen in the comedy film success, "Niobe," returns in another notable production. This latest Paramount relase presents the gifted star as "Charlesaa" in "Gambler's Advocate," by Ronald MacDonald, a powerful combination of tense drama and tender ardmance.

"Gambler's Advocate" is a tale of politics and love, of crime and misunderstanding, of no small thrills and shivers, and yet with much sweetly sentimental situations calculated to speed the passing hou rof relaxation and recreation. Seldom has a photoplay contained so many divergent elements of appeal, and the resultant variety of interest is certain to commend the subject aside from its inherent attractiveness derived from its possession of Hazel Dawn as the star.

SIXTEEN-YEAR-OLD STAR IN "WORMWOOD" AT STRAND.

Four big features are offered at the Strand theater this week, Marie Corelli's "Wormwood," Monday and Tuesday; "Who's Who in Society," George Kleine's famous comedy, Wednesday; Valli Valli in "The High Road," Thursday and Friday; and a Mutual Moster picture, "Up from the Depths," Saturday.

The story of "Wormwood," based on Marie Corelli's famous novel and play, is strikingly dramatic and holds with a real grip from start to finish. Then, too, the acting and mounting of the Fox feature is above praise. The Pont Neuf bridge at night, and a portion of Notre Dame cathedral, are both marvels of realism. The lighting and photography is exquisite. Ethel Kauffman, a sixteen-year-old girl, is the star, taking the role of Pauline, the winsome, pathetic heroine, suddenly confronted with raw tragedy. John Saimolin, as Gaston Beauvais, the absinthe fiend, gives a wonderful rendition; and the other parts are equally filled.

"Who's Who in Society" is one of the most rollicking comedies George Kleine ever produced. The cast is headed by Della Connor, a Broadway star, and the story of the plot abounds in laughable situations, finely executed in the Kleine studios. On the same day, Wednesday, with this feature, the Strand shows "The American Navy in New York Harbor," a Pathe special.

"The High Road," with Valli Valli, at the Strand Thursday and Friday is the latest release of the R. A. Rolfe company on the Metro program. This famous play, in which Mrs. Fiske appeared in Atlanta two years ago, is too well known to need retelling. With Valli Valli in the leading role, it is produced with all the intensity and dramatic charm which has made it one of the greatest successes of the film world.

Gladys Brockwell and Courtenay Foote are the stars in "Up From the Depths," the Mutual Master picture at the Strand Saturday. "Up From the Depths" is the story of the underworld, in which Miss Brockwell takes the role of Daire Vincent, the innocent girl whom the revivalist betrayed and later, in better moment, rescued from degradation.

SECOND DRAMA IN "WHO PAYS?" SERIES AT ALPHA WEDNESDAY

The second drama in the series of separate and distinct novelettes in the "Who Pays?" series will be shown at the Alpha theater Wednesday.

It is entitled "The Pursuit of Pleasure," and its theme is this: When a young man or young woman, ignoring home ties, training and ambitions, is lured away along the Primrose path and runs the gamut of sensations, selfishly sacrificing all who stand in his way to his own greed and luxury—Who Pays?

"The Pursuit of Pleasure," like "The Price of Fame," which created a sensation at the Alpha last week, stars Ruth Roland and is filmed by the Pathe company. In this series of twelve dramas on the twelve most vital questions of life each story is complete in itself. Plot, characters and all are different in every one, only the stars are the same and the general idea of "Who Pays?" is presented as the climax to a thrilling tale.

Other stars at the Alpha this week are Mary Fuller, Billie Ritchie, King Baggot, Marie Walcamp and Edna Maison. Mary Fuller is featured Monday with Moore in "A Daughter of the Nile," a three-act Victor drama. On the same day "Tongues of Flame," adventure thirteen of "The Black Box," starring Anna Little and Herbert Rawlinson, is shown.

Frank Lloyd and Helen Leslie are starred Tuesday in a two-act Laemmle drama, "In the Shadows," and lovers of good comedies will get a treat that day when Billie Ritchie presents "Billie's Blighted Career," an LKO comedy in two reels.

King Baggot appears twice this week at the Alpha, Thursday in "A Strange Disappearance," a three-act feature filmed by the Imp company and also starring Jane Gail; and Saturday in "The Riddle of the Silk Stocking," an attraction which is matched with "In the Shadows of the Pyramids" the same day, one of the "Under the Crescent" dramas.

ROBERT EDESON, W. S. HART AND OTHER STARS AT ALAMO 2.

Several strong dramas are booked at the Alamo No. 2 this week, beginning Monday with "When the Mind Sleeps," which stars Myrtle Tannehill, and going through Friday when Robert Edeson appears in "Man's Prerogative," a Mutual masterpicture.

"When the Mind Sleeps" is a three-reel Broadway favorite feature, a recent release, and no better star could have been picked to portray the subtle tenderness of the leading role than Miss Tannehill, who is one of the most talented actresses that ever played on Broadway.

Tuesday the Alamo No. 2 offers another episode of "The Goddess," the wonder serial with Earl Williams and the beautiful Anita Stewart, which is attracting much comment because of its unique plot and the delicate way in which it has been produced.

"On the Night Stage" is the title of the tense drama in which W. S. Hart and Robert Edeson are the stars. It is at the Alamo No. 2 Wednesday. "On the Night Stage" is a five-reel Mutual masterpicture. The scene in which Hart is shown battling with a gang of thugs is one of the most dramatic that has ever been shown on the screen.

In "Man's Prerogative," the four-reel Mutual masterpicture at the Alamo No. 2 Friday, there is set forth the old question of a double moral standard for men and women. Robert Edeson plays the part of the man of the world who marries the authoress (played by Mary Alden), and then wrecks their lives with his devotion to the pretty little artist's model, a role taken by Billie West.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN AND OTHER FUNNY FOLK AT ALAMO NO. 1.

With the pick of Keystone comedies, Mutual releases and Pathe features, the Alamo No. 1 is preparing for an attractive program this week, the exact nature of which will be announced daily in The Journal's Guide.

Among the Keystones will be several comedies featuring Charlie Chaplin, whose name is synonymous with laughter to movie fans. Other Keystones will feature Mabel Norman, Chester Conkling, Ambrose, Fatty Roscoe Arbuckle and similar stars of slapstickery.

The Mutual pictures will be late Reliance, Thanhouser, Domino and Broncho films, with Mutual favorites in the leading roles. Several stirling Pathe features will make up the bill.

GEORGIA GOLD NUGGET ADORNS STAR'S CRAVAT

It was a nugget of gold wrought into a stickpin. The nugget was found by Farnum in one of the Dahlonega mines, while a scene in "The Plunderer" was bing taken. It was presented to him by the mine manager and he declares he intends to wear it always.

VAUDEVILLE AND GOSSIP OF THE SCREEN

"WHO PAYS?" DRAMAS START AT MONTGOMERY WEDNESDAY

The Montgomery theater starts the famous "Who Pays?" series of the Pathe company Wednesday of this week with the second drama, complete in itself, "The Pursuit of Pleasure."

"Who Pays?" is a series of twelve strong pictures, each with different plot and different characters, based on twelve vital questions of life. Ruth Roland and Henry King are the stars and the pictures are perfectly produced in the Pathe way. One will be shown every Wednesday at the Montgomery.

"The Pursuit of Pleasure" is drawn from a verse of Omar's:

"Ah, my beloved, fill the cup that clears
To-day of past regrets and future fears."

The philosophy of the old tent maker is adapted to a story of a woman who ignored her birthright, the privilege of bearing children, of how she repented and of how it was too late, famified by contributory circumstances in the form of a clergyman of the hell-fire-and-brimstone variety, a disillusioned husband and an age of civilization that isn't.

Monday and Tuesday at the Montgomery are the days for the queenly little star, Marguerite Clark, each day in a different picture, Monday in "Wild-fire," Tuesday in "The Crucible." Her prime favorite with Atlanta movie fans, Marguerite Clark's appearance in these two well known plays is sure to draw the crowds.

Owen Wister's dramatic story, "The Virginian," has been pictured and is shown at the Montgomery Thursday. Steve, the school mistress, Lin McLean, Balaam, Trampas, Shorty, the Virginian himself, all these well known characters are shown in movie land with the same fire and sincerity that made the book so successful.

BIG SPECIAL KEYSTONE AT THE VAUDETTE ON MONDAY.

The film is "The Cannon Ball," the first big Keystone special released by Mack Sennett, the "master mind" of the Keystone studies, who asserts that it is one of the greatest Keystones ever made. It has never been seen before in Atlanta.

"The Cannon Ball" is in two parts and features Chester Conklin, the little fellow with the uncertain pants, who is affectionately known as "the walrus" by local lovers of Keystones. These are some of the wonderful things asserted about the picture: "Took forty days to make—double expense—full of comedy and melodramatic suspense—enormous quantities of gunpowder and dynamite used—large concrete bridge dynamited—automobile falls forty feet into water—large cannon explodes and carries man through the air on its back—has to tied to post in powder mill with villian shooting cannon balls through the building—building blown up."

This, "the most spectacular comedy ever made," is at the Vaudette Monday. Tuesday the Vaudette begins a new series, "The Romances of Elaine," starring Lionel Barrymore and Pearl White. This feature is said to excell "The Exploits of Elaine" and is sure to appeal to all who followed the popular Pathe serial.

A new chapter in "The Diamond From the Sky" is at the Vaudette Friday. The Vaudette has obtained the exclusive rights to this flying serial in Atlanta, and shows a new installment every Friday. Jack Pickford is the star and Irving Cummings the hero, and the Vaudette is the only place in town you can see them. You will find the story of Friday's chapter in the magazine section of today's Journal.

BARBARA TENNANT STARS IN BOXER PLAY AT VICTORIA.

With three stirling World Film features and the pick of Mutual releases, the Victoria theater offers an engaging program to local movie fans this week.

"The Marked Woman," a photo drama of the Boxer rebellion in 1900, when the American and European legations were attacked by celestial insurgents, supplies the background for the World Film-Davis release, "The Marked Woman," is the Victoria Monday. Mollie Pitcoff, picturesque role of Ola Petcoff, the Nihilist, is played by the beautiful star, Barbara Tennant. In this part Miss Tennant is called upon to exert her well known dramatic abilities to the utmost, as she is successively a nihilist girl in Russia; a fugitive from that country to Inspect in China; the enforced wife of a Chinense prince; finally his widow; and, through all her adventures, the beloved of a gallant young American lieutenant who in the end leads the attack on the rebellious Boxers and saves Olga's life.

Emma Dunn in "Mother" is the World Film success at the Victoria Wednesday. Her compelling characterization of Mrs. Wetherell has been likened to the triumph of Mrs. Fisk in "Tess of the d'Urbervilles."

The program other days at the Victoria will be drawn from Mutual releases and will include all the finest comedies and dramas. Watch The Journal's Daily Guide for the list of pictures.

ANNA PAVLOWA LATEST STAR TO ENTER MOVIES

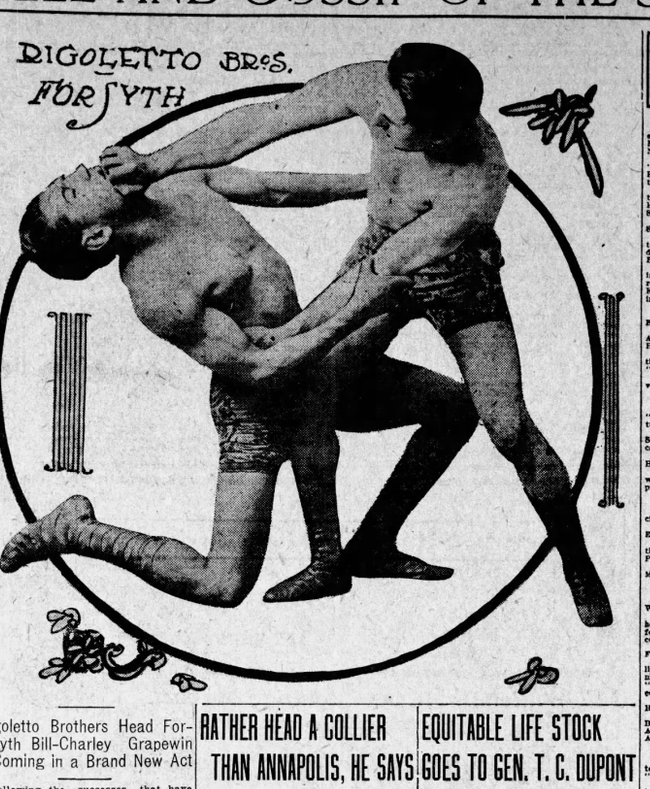

The Philadelphia Record says that Anna Pavlowa ,dancer of international fame whose appearance in Atlanta last winter was one of the events of the theatrical season, has signed a contract to appear with her entire company in a film production of the grand opera, "The Dumb Girl of Portici." The play is planned in eight reels and the first scenes will be taken in July in Los Angeles.

MOVIES WILL BE SHOWN ON DINERS OF RAILROADS

Motion pictures have invaded every possible field of activity and now they are to be shown on the trans-continental expresses en route to the Panama-Pacific exposition. The Fox Film corporation, through William Alexander, its district manager, has completed arrangements for pictures to be shown on the diners of the principal railroads of the country en route to the Pacific coast.

Board Member Named

Governor Slaton Saturday appointed Loyd Cleveland, of Griffin, as the successor of the late Judge Robert T. Daniel on the board of trustees of the University of Georgia.

Rigoletto Brothers Head Forsyth Bill-Charley Grapewin Coming in a Brand New Act

Following the successes that have been registered at the Forsyth for several weeks recently, the management announces for this week one of the most important combinations yet brought to the busy theater. The general make-up of the bill suggests there is going to be no stop in the speed that has been so popular, and that has kept the Forsyth more than busy.

The headline feature will be the Rigoletti Brothers, the sensational twins, and the special feature will be Charley Grapewin, assisted by Anna Chance, in a perfectly new act, and the balance of the show will be of that quality that has made the theater one of the most popular institutions of entertainment in all the country.

The famous Rigoletto have never been seen in Atlanta. They are as much alike as two peas in a pod and they are equally clever in their ability to entertain. They have an act that runs for three-quarters of an hour with something doing all that time They are instrumentalists of rare ability; they are jugglers that arrest attention and thrill; they are magicians better than the average; they are mimics of rare quality; they present illusions that are remarkably original and as gymnastic and aerial marvels they are without comparison.

The coming of Charley Grapewin will of course mean a turn out of a multitude of admirers of this always welcome comedian and his charming associate, Miss Anna Chance. In all vaudeville there is not a more popular duo. Grapswin's "The Awakening of Mr. Pipp," was one of the vaudeville classics, and never failed to register precisely the sort of hit that carries additional value on any high-class bill of variety. This season the comedian presents "Poughkeepsie," a comedy written by himself and which he is pleased to call "the split-second comedy of vaudeville."

Clark and Verdi, the well-liked Italian comedians, will present a comedy act that promises to be one of the hits of the week. These clever character actors have given careful study to the habits and the eccentricities of the Italian, and Atlanta people can look for a picture that will be of real interest. Ethel McDonough, a very pretty comedienne, who possesses a voice that is a mighty strong value will offer a selection of new songs that are going to be liked and she will exhibit some of the newest creations in gowns made in America. The Keystone Trio, an act that will be one of the cards for the week will contribute a great big share of the comedy. Watson's Farmyard act will, of course, be a scream. It will be remembered that Watson scored a tremendous hit with his crowing roosters at the Orpheum some years ago. Morrisey and Hackett, clever eccentric dancers, will have a share in the entertaining and the news and comedy pictures will help wonderfully.

TWO CONVENTIONS FOR SAVANNAH THIS WEEK

Georgia Funeral Directors and Cotton Seed Crushers Will Meet

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., June 13.—Savannah is to be the scene of two conventions next week. One will be that of the Georgia Funeral Directors. They are coming here on Wednesday and Thursday of next week and will spend their time partly in Savannah and partly at Tybee. There is to be a social feature every day with a banquet on the last evening. Albert Goette, of Savannah, who is now vice president of the society, will probably be made president. Embalmers will meet during the convention.

The Cotton Seed Crushers of the state will meet here on Monday. They are to have a luncheon tomorrow at the Savannah Yacht club. Their convention promises to be a very lively one all the way through.

FRANCE IN NO DANGER OF CHOLERA, HE SAYS

PARIS, June 12.—Dr. Louis Legroux, of the Pasteur Institute, has made the declaration that neither soldiers nor civilians in France need have any fear of the cholera.

Cholera microbes are destroyed, the doctor says, by other microbes that develop duging the process of the decomposition of bodies in the open air. This and other reasons, according to Dr. Legroux, removes all danger of cholera from decomposing bodies.

RATHER HEAD A COLLIER THAN ANNAPOLIS, HE SAYS

Superintendent Fulam Himself May Be Drawn Into Court of Inquiry

(By Associated Press.)

ANNAPOLIS, Md., June 12.—That Rear Admiral Fullam, superintendent of the Naval academy, himself probably will be further drawn into the proceedings before the court of inquiry investigating irregularities in connection with examination papers, was indicated by today's testimony.

Presidents of three classes of midshipmen gave practically the same testimony to the effect that at a conference with the superintendent, after seven midshipmen had been recommended by him for dismissal for cheating in examinations, Admiral Fullam said if the navy department did not back him up in the matter of the previous investigation, he would be inclined to resign. He further remarked that he would rather go to sea in command of a collier than stay at Annapolis under such circumstances.

There were four presidents and a president elect of the new first class present at this conference. The three who were cross-examined today by counsel for the defendant midshipmen concerning this conference were Dodgin Richard P. Adams, president, and "honor" man of the recently graduated class, who was the first witness to testify that he had heard the admiral make the statement attributed to him.

Midshipmen H. B. Broadfoot, president of the former second class, and B. R. Holcombe, president of the new first class, testified to having heard the admiral make the statement.

Captain Russell, president of the court, asked Broadfoot just before he left the stand what took place when he reported at the office of Superintendent Fullam this morning prior to coming to court.

Broadfoot said he did not see the superintendent, but his aide, Lieutenant Manley, warned him that if he allowed himself to become a defendant and accepted the counsel of the present defendants he would assume the status of those defendants.

"Did Lieutenant Manley discuss or attempt to discuss with you your testimoney to be given before this court?" Captain Russell asked.

To this there was a negative reply.

Several midshipmen have testified, in cross-examination by counsel for the seven original accused midshipmen, that Admiral Fullam had warned them not to become associated with the seven defendants who are under arrest.

CONSIDERED HONEST.

Broadfeet, in his testimony, said that he and his classmates considered that L. P. Wessell and T. W. Harrison, Jr., members of their class, who were recommended for dismissal, were honest and that their honesty never had been questioned. He thought they ought to have been put on the stand as principals, rather than as witnesses, at the investigation made by the board of officers before they were recommended for dismissal.

Asked if he thought he could speak for his classmates as to their present feeling in the matter, he replied in the affirmative. The sentiment was that they would be going out of the service for the same thing that forty per cent of the class did.

Broadfeet said he had seen a copy of the "dope" going around but did not pay any attention to it because it seemed too far advanced.

"We place most of the blame upon the men who came over here (to the language department) and got these examinations," said Broadfeet. "He was the one who got us into the whole trouble because most of us thought we were only getting the regular kind of 'dope.'"

Midshipman Holcombe said the instructor in his section, Professor Des Garannes, was in the habit of giving the section advance information on examinations, such as the fact that there would be no verbs or that there would be no dictation. That was called legitimate "dope." But he believed that if any professor knew what the actual questions in an examination were to be he would refuse to give out information concerning them.

EQUITABLE LIFE STOCK GOES TO GEN. T. C. DUPONT

Announcement of Sale by Executors of Late J. P. Morgan Estate Is Made

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 12.—Announcement was made here today that the majority of the capital stock of the Equitable Life Assurance society of the United States had been sold by the executors of the estate of the late J. P. Morgan to General T. Coleman Dupont, principal owner of the new Equitable building in lower Broadway. The trust under which the stock has been voted would remain undisturbed, it was said. A statement made by William A. Day, president of the society, read in part as follows:

"It is fitting in making this announcement to state that the directors and officers of the Equitable society appreciate highly the public spirited attitude of the late Mr. Morgan and of his son during the period that the technical ownership of the stock has rested in their hands. During this entire period the directors and officers of the society have enjoyed the fullest freedom in the administration of its affairs.

"It is eminently appropriate that in the change in the ownership of the stock the interest in the majority of the society's capital has now been acquired by a staunch friend of the Equitable, who states that his sole object is to protect the interests of the policyholders of the society."

The Equitable Life Assurance society was organized in 1859.

General Dupont, until recently, was president of the Wilmington, Del., Power company which bears his name.

WILLACOOCHEE CITIZENS WORK FOR NEW COUNTY

Effort Made to Create Atkinson From Coffee and Berrien Counties

Citizens of Willacoochee, Ga., and the surrounding territory, are preparing for a strong effort before the coming session of the assembly to create the new county of Atkinson, to be formed by taking 50 square miles from Berrien county and 303 square miles from Coffee county, in which Willacoochee is located.

E. R. Smith, a Willacoochee attorney, was in Atlanta Saturday preparing maps and other data to present the legislature. He says there is practically no opposition from the counties which will lose territory, that the lines have been decided upon, and he expects the bill to be passed.

"Parts of the new county are now thirty miles from the courthouse at Douglas," he said. "The new county is greatly needed, and Berrien and Coffee, two of the largest counties in the State, can afford to lose the territory. Willacoochee will be the new county seat if the bill passes."

WAR ON HOG CHOLERA CONDUCTED IN BROOKS

QUITMAN, Ga., June 12.—Dr. J. W. Casey, of the state veterinary department, is in the county assisting County Agent J. Irwin Davis in a campaign against hog cholera. Brooks in common with other sections has had cholera this spring and the county agent is anxious to make a determined campaign to stamp it out. Dr. Davis himself has inoculated over 2,000 hogs since January and is urging all farmers to have their hogs inoculated before the cholera gets in their herds.

MRS. HIGGENBOTHEM, OF WEST POINT, IS INJURED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WEST POINT, Ga., June 12.—Mrs. Augusta Higgenbothem, widow of the late J. T. Higgenbothem, while adjusting a shade on her front porch this afternoon, fell and broke a shoulder bone. Physicians say that her condition is quite serious.

STREET CAR STRIKE STILL IMMINENT IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, June 12.—Mayor Thompson apparently made little progress today in his efforts to avert the threatened strike of employes of the street car and elevated companies. The mayor held two conferences with representatives of the street car employes' unions and had one meeting with traction officials.

The employes declined to submit to arbitration and insisted upon their original demand for a wage increase. The street car officials agreed to arbitrate and ask that no strike be called until a meeting of the board of directors was held Monday to pass on the question.

The labor leaders said they would notify the mayor if it was decided to postpone action until Monday.

Charges Dentist Put Sulphuric Acid Into His Gums for Cocaine

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

QUITMAN, Ga., June 12.—A local dentist, Dr. J. M. Hooser, is being sued for $1,100 by S. R. Swilley, a prominent farmer, it being alleged that Dr. Hooser injected sulphuric acid into Mr. Swilley's gums through error, mistaking it for a cocaine solution. It is said the dentist discovered his error immediately and applied to a local physician for an antidote for his patient.

Mr. Swilley alleges in his suit that as a result of the error he suffered severely and was confined to his bed for ten days. The suit will probably be tried in the city court.

"On the first of March came the notice from Great Britain that the "British and French governments will hold themselves free to detain and take into port ships carrying goods of presumed enemy destination, ownership, or origin." This was followed by the order in council of March 12, but prior to that order the state department was informed by the English ambassador that so far as cotton was concerned shipments made during the month of March would not be subject to the order in council, but would be covered by a different rule. That rule provided "the cotton for which contracts of sale and freight engagements already had been made before March 2, is to be allowed free transit or bought at contract price if stopped provided the ship sails not later than March 31."

"During the month of February 1,501,000 bales of cotton were shipped abroad. During March 1,208,500 bales of cotton left our ports. But Great Britain allowed no cotton shipped in March to go free to Holland, Denmark or Sweden. The vessels with cargoes of cotton were seized, and the cotton shipped to Rotterdam, Gothenburg and other European ports, was carried into English ports. Over 200,000 bales of this cotton destined to northern Europe were sold by Great Britain in England during April and May.

SHIPMENTS CUT DOWN.

"The table of exportations as kept by the department of commerce classifies France, Germany, Italy, Russia in Europe, Spain and the United Kingdom, separately. The figures then show for the balance of Europe as 'other Europe.' They show that in February we exported to 'other Europe' and Germany 485,037 bales of cotton; of this Germany received 88,000 bales. In April we exported to Germany no cotton and to 'other Europe' only 45,300 bales, thus showing the tremendous shrinkage of exportations of cotton to neutral ports of northern Europe, caused by the illegal blockade. But for the blockade, Germany, Austria and northern Europe would have purchased before August 1 1,500,000 additional bales of last year's crop.

"Before these seizures by Great Britain, the price of cotton was steadily rising. After Great Britain cut off our German, Austrian and northern European market, the price of cotton fell in England a cent and a half a pound. Great Britain stopped the rise and caused the fall in the price of cotton during the past two months.

"If the present illegal blockade by Great Britain of neutral ports of northern Europe is permitted to remain of force, not only will we lose the market now for part of last year's crop, but a market will be cut off for 3,000,000 bales of this year's crop.

"On March 30 the state department of our government wrote Great Britain protesting against the notice from Great Britain of March 1, and the order in council of March 12. This order in council was a declaration of purpose by Great Britain to intercept all vessels destined to or from the ports of northern Europe carrying goods of presumed enemy destination or origin. That is to say, this order in council of March 12 announced the purpose of Great Britain to close the neutral ports of northern Europe to the commerce of the United States, even though the cargoes consisted of non-contraband goods, when Great Britain suspected that the cargoes might be destined to German or Austrian use, or that the cargoes were of German or Austrian origin.

"There is no rule of international law more fully established than that a belligerent cannot blockade a neutral port, and neutrals have the right to ship to neutral ports non-contraband goods even though the ultimate destination of those goods is to citizens of one of the belligerents.

OUR PROTEST.

"Our government, through the state department, wrote Great Britain on March 30 protesting against the notice of March 1 and the order in council of March 12. In this letter of March 30 it was declared that 'innocent ships may be freely transported to and from the United States through neutral countries to belligerent territory without being subject to British blockade, much less to detention and confiscation.' Again this same letter declares that such interference by Great Britain is a 'distinct invasion of the sovereign rights of the nation whose trade and commerce is interfered with.'

"The only answer Great Britain has given to this letter has been the continued seizure of vessels loaded with cotton and other non-contraband goods destined to neutral ports. These seizures have continued to such an extent that shipments of cotton into this territory have been abandoned. Great Britain has destroyed the market, and has deterred cotton merchants and shippers from even seeking further to enter the market.

"A cotton shipper was in Washington a few days ago with an order from Sweden for 10,000 bales of cotton. He had proof that the cotton would be consumed by Swedish mills. He sought to obtain an assurance from the English embassy here that the vessel would not be seized if he sent the cotton. He obtained no satisfaction.

"The injury to our entire country, and especially to the cotton growing states, if the illegal blockade to which I have referred is permitted to remain in force, cannot be overestimated. Our people struggled through low prices for cotton last fall. They must not submit to continued low prices caused by an illegal blockade.

"In a number of instances Swedish spinners are now in England seeking through the aid of their government to obtain cotton consigned to them by citizens of the United States which has been seized by Great Britain. By the help of their own government they may obtain some of this cotton.

NEGLECTED TO SETTLE.

"Great Britain has neglected to settle with the cotton shippers for cotton seized. Various excuses have been given which can be easily answered. One of these excuses recently embodied in a letter from Sir Edward Grey is that Swedish consigners are claiming some of the cotton. The shippers from the United States ask nothing better than that cotton should be turned over to their consignees. Great Britain does not deliver to the Swedish consignees, or pay the American shippers.

"I had brought to my attention within the past two weeks the case of a southern firm which early in March shipped several thousand bales of cotton to Rotterdam, Holland. A member of the firm came here and presented his invoices together with proof of his contracts of sale to the British embassy, and sought to obtain payment for the cotton which Great Britain had seized, and sold, but he was able to obtain no satisfaction.

"I will not take up more time discussing the mistreatment Great Britain has given to those cotton shippers whose cotton has been carried into English ports. While it is a serious matter for them to have from $5,000,000 to $8,000,000, which they should have received for their cotton, tied up by the British seizures, the really big problem is the loss of our market caused by the illegal conduct of Great Britain, and the helplessness of individuals to defend themselves.

"The declaration of London made by the representatives of the great nations of the world in February 1909, contained a list of those things which under no circumstances in case of war were to be made contraband, and this list was headed by raw cotton.

BRITAIN'S PLEDGE.

"Great Britain had solemnly pledged to this government by the letter of October 26, that cotton would not be seized, and that so far as Great Britain was concerned it was on the free list and would remain there. In spite of all this, the seizures have been made, and the cotton trade with Germany, Austria and all of northern Europe destroyed. Other noncontraband commodities have been similarly treated by Great Britain.

"The importance of preserving our cotton markets cannot be overestimated. It is noncontraband and Great Britain has no right to make it contraband. Great Britain has no right to blockade neutral ports. We should insist upon the rights of citizens of the United States to ship cotton to Holland, Denmark, and Sweden, even though it ultimately may go to Germany and Austria.

"Not one line has gone from our government to Great Britain since the letter of March 30, which Great Britain ignored. It is but fair to the administration to say that I believe the subject would have been aggresively handled before the middle of May, but for the sinking of the Lusitania.

SUBMIT NO LONGER.

"We should submit no longer to the disregard of our rights by Great Britain, no matter what Germany has done. The people of the entire country should understand what has taken place, and especially those who are being so grievously wronged should see the hand that strikes the blow.

"But it is said that cotton is used to make explosives. This is nothing new. It was the case when the declaration of London in 1909 declared that raw cotton could not be put upon the contraband list. It was the case last October when we received the solmen pledge from Great Britain that no interference should be made with cotton shipments. Great Britain cannot now make a new rule that we should recognize on this subject, and she has not undertaken even to make cotton contraband. It is being stopped by an illegal blockade, a blockade which disregards recognized principles of international law, and which the declaration of London of February, 1909, expressly declares shall never be made.

"Our own government has notified Great Britain that this interference is 'a distinct invasion of the sovereign rights of the nation whose trade and commerce is interfered with.'

"Great Britain and the allies are receiving half of their munitions of war from the United States. They would destroy the market for the farmers of the south, and the market of many American producers, while they rely upon the United States to furnish them their implements of war.

"There is no occasion to involve the United States in war with Great Britain and the allies, but we should definitely notify them that unless our neutral rights are regarded they can not continue to receive neutral privileges from the United States. If Great Britain and the allies were notified that shipments of munitions of war will be discontinued so long as Great Britain prevents shipments by citizens of the United States, legal at the time the war began, our difficulties would be quickly solved. Great Britain would withdraw the blockade of the neutral ports of northern Europe, rather than lose her supplies from the United States.

"I trust that by the time this is read our government may take firm action to compel Great Britain to cease illegally interfering with our cotton markets. But if it has not been done, I ask the support of those interested to help bring pressure upon Great Britain to save the market for our cotton crop."

Continue Cotton Industry Under Certain Restrictions

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, June 12.—A Reuter dispatch from Amsterdam says a copy of the Berlin Vossische Zeitung received there, declares the raw material department of the war office, in conference with rpresentatives of the cotton industry, has decided there is a sufficient cotton stock on hand to warrant continuation of the cotton industry under certain restrictions.

This dispatch is declared here to support the contention advanced recently in the house of commons by Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade, that Germany has been receiving supplies of cotton in spite of Great Britain's efforts to prevent it.

the crowd with a song composed about the Phagan case.

About 3:30 o'clock a man, who gave his name as N. F. Evans, and stated that he is a clerk for a lumber company, addressed the crowd, which had been more than doubled.

The next speaker gave his name as David N. Kent, a furniture salesman. He was followed by H. D. Spencer, a jeweler. The meeting broke up about 4:30 o'clock after "Fiddling John" Carson had again sung his song and played his fiddle.

The crowd was constantly shifting, and at one time there were probably 500 or 600 persons present.

Mr. Evans, who introduced the other speakers, was asked who called the meeting.

"It's just a citizens' meeting," he said, "and was called by about a dozen of us." He would not give the names of theothers who joined in the call for the meeting.

D. A. RUSSELL IS STRUCK BY AUTO AT FIVE POINTS

D. A. Russell, of 55 Garnett street, was struck by an automobile Saturday afternoon shortly before 6 o'clock in front of the Fourth National Bank building, as he was boarding a West End car for home.

Mr. Russell claims the automobile did not stop. He says the number was Georgia 3695.

DIABETES

Sugar in Urine, Uric Acid, Despondency, Leg Cramps, Swollen Muscles All Cured by Taking a Few Doses of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper.

The following are the symptoms: Urine becomes cloudy, an unusual flow of urine, scalding, dribbling, straining or too frequent passage from the bladder—head and back aches—ankles or eyelids are swollen or puffy, spots before the eyes, leg cramps, shortness of breath, sleeplessness and despondency, dizzy spells, dropsy, diabetes. Don't waste time wondering if you will get Bright's disease or diabetes, but get from any reliable druggist a bottle of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound. Take a spoonful after meals. Drink plenty of water. In a day or so your kidneys will act fine and natural. Stuart's Buchu mixed with Juniper has been used for years to clean out impurities from the kidneys and bladder, also to neutralize the uric acid and sugar in the blood and urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending all kidney and bladder weakness and doing away with all irritating symptoms. Stuart's Buchu and Juniper is a fine kidney regulator and strengthens these organs, cures diabetes. It is an old folks' recipe for these troubles.—(Advt.)

tween Germany and Great Britain regarding mutual concessions so far as submarine warfare is concerned.

"True, this offer would have been of considerable more value if the president had explained that he was willing to make such preparations; whereas, he intimated that Germany and Great Britain should initiate the suggestions.

AMERICA FRIENDLY.

"However that may be, the United States will see from further negotiations that Germany has an honorable desire to treat a friendly suggestion in a friendly spirit.

"At all events, the situation created by the publication of the note is such that the hypothesis heralded throughout the world that America also was in the ranks of our enemies is now shown to be once more the old case of the wish father to the thought."

Captain Persius, the naval expert of the Tageblatt, writes:

"A harmonizing of views is possible, and the Washington government shows a sincere disposition to reach an understanding. That is the keynote of the American note; there is no sabre rattling."

Captain Persius assumes that the German answer will remove the last obstacle in the way of eliminating all differences. As he understands, the American note by no means takes the view that the German admiralty must order a suspension of submarine warfare before negotiations can proceed. He regrets that the United States "has failed duly to appreciate Germany's previous offer to place restrictions upon the activity of the submarine, provided the British abandoned their efforts to starve Germany," and he adds that it is certain that no satisfactory solution is possible unless Great Britain makes this concession, as Great Britain "was the first to break the international law."

He concludes: "We have firm confidence that the friendly relations between Germany and the United States * * * * will smooth the way to a complete understanding and thus give victory to justice and humanity."

SUMMER SCHOOL IN ATLANTA ATTRACTING LARGE ATTENDANCE

The officials of Cox College have been kept busy the past week registering students from Atlanta and from all parts of the south in the various departments of the summer school. The normal courses for teachers and the Curry School of Expression are proving especially popular, while many high school students are registering for work leading to advance credits or the working off of conditions. The Conservatory of Music, which is in full operation, is also attracting many students and large numbers are matriculating in the department of domestic science.

All departments of the summer school are now in full swing. Students who wish to take the various courses must register within the next two weeks. The dormitories are open to summer boarders, as usual, and the chautauqua features are proving unusually interesting to the citizens of Atlanta and College Park as well as to the students and summer guests.

SPECIAL NOTICES.

GEORGIA, Fulton County—To the Superior Court of said county.

The petition of Hughs, Yates & Lewis, Incorporated, respectfully shows the following:

1. That petitioner by an order of Hon. W. D. Ellis, judge of the Superior Court, of the Atlanta circuit, after being advertised as required by law, was on August 1, 1914, duly incorporated and made a body politic under the laws of said state, under the corporate name and style of Hughs, Yates & Lewis, Incorporated. Same being for a term of twenty (20) years, with all the rights and privileges as duly set out in said original petition filed in said application for charter.

2. That by the authority vested in said charter incorporating the Hughs, Yates & Lewis Incorporated, the said corporation was given the power and authority to apply for and accept amendments to its charter in either form or substance, by a vote of the majority of the stock outstanding at the time.

3. That it is the unanimous desire of the stock holders of said corporation to amend its charter and change its corporate name from Hughs, Yates & Lewis, Incorporated to J. F. Lewis & Co., Incorporated, and that authority has been given by a vote of the majority of the stock outstanding of said Hughs, Yates & Lewis, Incorporated, that the corporate name be so changed to J. F. Lewis & Co., Incorporated and that J. F. Lewis & Co. Incorporated be substituted in the place of Hughs Yates & Lewis, Incorporated, and be made the corporate name, with all the rights, powers and privileges and immunities as originally granted to and exercised by the said Hughs, Yates & Lewis, Incorporated.

Wherefore, petitioners pray that said corporate name of Hughs, Yates & Lewis, Incorporated be amended and changed to J. F. Lewis & Co., Incorporated with all the rights and privileges as granted in the original charter.

W. A. DODSON,
Petitioner's Atty.

MY HANDSOME BUNGALOW At Oakhurst (Decatur) IS FOR RENT! } $25 a Month

I HAVE a very handsome bungalow for rent. It has three big, cheerful bed rooms—a sleeping porch—living room—dining room—bath room, kitchen and pantry. This home is in fine condition—stoutly built—has hardwood interior trimmings—beam ceilings in both the dining room and living room. Fine vegetable garden and big yard for chickens.

LOCATION is right off EAST LAKE DRIVE—Between Third Hills and East Lake—the beautiful Oakhurst, which is part of Decatur. It is not far from the East Lake Country Club House of the Atlanta Athletic Club—and is, furthermore, convenient to both the North Decatur and South Decatur street car lines. It is very splendid neighborhood where you will find especially nice neighbors.

The Real Estate Field

Construction News, in Building Summary, Says the Country Is Returning to Normal, May Showing Very Slight Decrease--No Definite Plans for University Club Quarters on Peachtree--Peachtree Lease and Other Notes

Building throughout the country is returning to normal, according to Construction News, which shows operations for May in over a hundred American cities.

In this connection it is interesting to note that Atlanta had only one rival in the south and that was Richmond. She was ahead of every other southern city in value, including New Orleans and Louisville and Dallas, although some of these cities showed less percentage of loss.

Construction News holds that it is particularly significant that decided gains were shown in New York, Boston, Chicago and Cleveland—all big financial centers, which are quick to reflect better business conditions.

It is also significant that out of a total of nearly $84,000,000 worth of business for the whole country, the loss the past May, as compared with May a year ago, was only $167,428.

UNIVERSITY CLUB BUILDING.

So far as could be learned Saturday, Asa G. Candler has no special plans for the University club quarters on the Peachtree street, which will be vacated on September 1 when the club moves into its new home.

It was said that Mr. Candler would handle this as he does his other property. It is did not renew his lease with the club because he didn't care to have the property tied up with a long lease in the event he should decide on other improvements for the site.

PEACHTREE LEASE.

A. S. Adams, of B. M. Grant & Co., has leased to M. Fordon, the tailor, a store-room at No. 107 Peachtree street. The term of the lease is for five years.

Cottage on Church street in East Point to Mrs. B. Wynn, consideration $3,500.

Twenty-acre improved tract at Mallory station in Campbell county to Mrs. J. C. Cosgrove, taking as part payment a cottage on East Lake Drive in Oakhurst.

Fifty-acre improved farm in Adamsville district, Fulton county, to Thos. Katraba, consideration $2,500.

STATUS OF BUSINESS.

There were no announcements of importance Saturday although there were unofficial reports of some large transactions, including one or two central leases.

The scare that followed the sinking of the Lusitania is subsiding and the feeling now is much better, although actual performance, except in the case of smaller transactions, is behind sentiment.

APPROPRIATIONS ASKED FOR GEORGIA UNIVERSITY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ATHENS, Ga., June 12.—The need of an additional appropriation for the University of Georgia is shown in the report of the board of visitors to the trustees Saturday. While the report says that the university could not be better conducted with the money it has, still there are needs to be met.

The report, summarized, presents the following:

The need for research work in Georgia and southern history, and the recommendation that Professor Brooks be relieved of his instructor's work so as to be able to devote his time to research. This would necessitate the employment of a fellow.

The need for fellows in the laboratory courses in chemistry and biology, and the need of an automobile in the engineering department. The chemistry department should be encouraged to do extension work, and the course of psychology should be extended in the business, medicine, law and parenthood.

The English and history departments should be encouraged to do extension work. The establishment of a department of commerce is favored, and also the establishment of a school of journalism.

The school of secondary education is praised, and the school of pharmacy should be encouraged to maintain a high standard. The library fund is insufficient, and better heating facilities are needed. The experiments quarters are cramped. An infirmary is suggested for the students.

The promotions of Professors McWhorter and Payne to the associate professorship of Latin and Greek and to the professorship of English, respectively, are noted. The improvement of the moral atmosphere around the students is noted, and Dean Snelling and Dr. Soule are given high praise. The dining room and dormitory need enlarging, and a language phonograph is necessary for the German department. The agricultural college is pronounced efficient.

ANTI-GERMAN RIOTS LAID TO FOOD PRICES

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, May 30.—Much of the breaking and looting of shops during the anti-German riots was due, says Sylvia Pankhurst, to the increased cost of living. The small shops to suffer had all created hostility among their customers by putting up prices, in most cases without warrant.

In the suffrage organ, Votes for Women, it is pointed out that a large number of the wives of Germans, innocent sufferers because of these riots, are English women. While these English women must live on greatly reduced incomes because of the internment of their husbands, the German wives of Englishmen, who who by reason of blood and education might very well be supposed to have German sympathetis, are free and unmolested.

Suffragists tried to have the aliens act together for protection, but the English wives of alien enemies, but failed when "bill was put through last August.

Strict About Lights

LONDON, May 30.—The military regulations regarding the lights of the London district are so strict that a chief petty officer of the anti-air craft corps was fined 20 shillings in a police court for having a too powerful light on his motor car.

BIG FARMERS' RALLY TO BE HELD AT MILLTOWN

Addresses Will Be Delivered by J. J. Brown and by Charles S. Barrett

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 12.—Next Saturday, June 19, one of the biggest Farmers' union rallies that has ever been held in south Georgia will be held at Milltown. President J. J. Brown, of the Georgia Farmers' union, and the head of the national organization, Charles S. Barrett, will attend and make addresses of timely interest.

In connection with the rally the Milltown people propose to have a Lanier county meeting at which the residents of the territory proposed for the new county will discuss plans for the campaign they will wage before the legislature when the question of new counties is reached.

Although the Lanier county movement has been under way only a few months, the fight up to date has been featured by some of the warmest controversies known in south Georgia. A nearby town, Adel, is working to secure a new county also and this fight is what has kept things humming. Lanier county, as it is outlined, will take 114 square miles from Clinch, 90 from Berrien and 60 from Lowndes, giving the new county an area of 264 square miles. Milltown has made arrangements to furnish a court house and offices for the county officials until such time as the new county is able to erect a court house without imposing additional taxes. It is claimed that 90 per cent of the freeholders in the territory involved have signed a petition which will go to the legislature asking for the county of Lanier.

Following the big meeting next Saturday, Milltown people are going to give their customary Fourth of July celebration. Several thousand people attended the celebration las year and much bigger crowds will be present this year. Fish caught at Milltown will be a feature of the dinner that will be served in the pretty park at Milltown.

WAR INSURANCE RATE NOT HIGH FOR ITALY

LONDON, May 30.—From the early days of May contracts for war damage insurance on property in Italy made up a considerable total of the daily business at Lloyds in London. Rates, however, showed no increase between May 1 and May 22, indicating that the market from the first had regarded war as inevitable.

The premiums asked on this class of insurance varied for different Italian cities. For property at Undine, on the Austrian frontier, 5 per cent was asked. The rate for Venice was 4 per cent; Ancona 3 per cent; Brindisi and Como, 2 1-2 per cent; Padua, 2 per cent and Rome, Palermo or Bologna, 1 per cent. In all cases the policies were for a period of six months.

MANY COTTON STEAMERS UNLOAD AT MANCHESTER

MANCHESTER, England, May 30.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Owing to pressure to secure discharging facilities at Liverpool, several cotton firms have been approached by owners of shipping arriving in Liverpool to divert their boats to Manchester. A trial was made last week with the Norman Monarch from New Orleans with 5,368 bales for Liverpool and 4,773 bales for Manchester, the steamer coming up the canal direct and discharging the whole of the cargo here. Liverpool authorities now fear this arrangement will be so advantageous that other shippers will follow suit and use Manchester more freely thereby reducing Liverpool's income from dock dues, wharfage and ship stores.

ATLANTIC CITY PREPARES FOR ITS GREATEST SEASON

Jersey Coast Resort Expects All Records to Be Broken This Year

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ATLANTIC CITY, June 12.—With more and better hotels than ever before, the greatest boardwalk and beach in the world and with a program of daily seashore pastimes greater in quality and in number than any other American resort, Atlantic City is ready for the breaking of all records in travel from Pennsylvania, the west and the south beginning this month. In anticipation of the increase in travel caused by the lure of the shore and of the coming summer weather, officials of railroads have announced increase in train schedules to last throughout the season and mid-June will see the shore season in full swing.

One of the big events of the month for which thousands of people from every section of the country have engaged quarters is the annual June carnival, which, this year, celebrates the opening of the channel from the inlet harbor to the sea. The affair starts on June 24 with arrival of automobile runs from cities as far west as Chicago and continues for two days during which there will be a sea pageant with federal gunboats to lead; a floral rolling chair parade on the boardwalk; a baby parade on the walk and a big civic parade. Two night fetes, one in mask, will be features of the occasion. Prizes for the prettiest girls, the finest decorated yachts, rolling chairs and floats and for other events of interest will be awarded.

Bathing already has taken its place of supremacy among boardwalk attractions. Picturesque life guards with their staunch boats are on duty and at least a hundred surf experts will be enlisted by the end of June. The beach is in the finest condition in years. Yachting and fishing are among the sports which attract the newcomers while expert aviators carrying passengers along the beach have added the possibility of a new thrill for those who wish to take trips through the air.

The seven-mile long boardwalk from the inlet to Absecon light is also a big attraction for all who come to Atlantic City. Thousands of dollars have been spent in transforming the plank esplanade and special tracks have been built for use of rolling chairs to prevent their interfering with the strollers. A splendid lighting system makes the walk one of the world's most beautiful night thoroughfares.

For those who seek amusement aside from strictly outdoor sports the piers and theaters furnish concerts and theatrical performances superior to those of many metropolitan cities. The Garden Pier, the Steel Pier, Young's Pier, the Steeplechase and the Million Dollar Pier are all open, as are the Apollo theater, the new Nixon theater, the Cort theater and Keith's Garden Pier theater. Other boardwalk amusements include roller coasters, bowling alleys, fine restaurants with afternoon and evening dancing and roller skating rinks.

STRIKES IN GERMANY WERE ALL SETTLED

BERLIN, May 25.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—An official report on labor conditions in Germany during the year 1914 has just been issued. It shows that the total number of strikes which occurred in 1914 after the outbreak of the war was twenty-four, involving only 1,100 work people. They were all settled promptly and not a single strike was under way at the end of the year.

In consequence of the practical cessation of strikes after the beginning of the war, the total number of workmen involved in labor disputes during the year was 59,000, as against an average of 226,000 for the five years preceding.

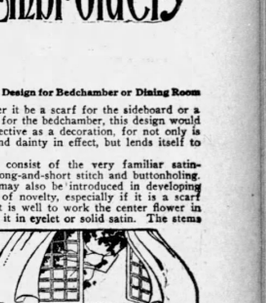

Embroidery Design for Bedchamber or Dining Room

Whether it be a scarf for the sideboard or a pillow-case for the bedchamber, this design would be very effective as a decoration, for not only is it simple and dainty in effect, but lends itself to varied forms of treatment.

The embroidery stitches consist of the very familiar satin-stitch outline, French knots, long-and-short stitch and buttonholing.

Coronation or torpedo cord may also be introduced in developing the motif or adding a touch of novelty, especially if it is a scarf or towel end that is being decorated. It is well to work the center flower in solid satin stitch, and the six dots above it in eyelet or solid satin. The stems are outlined and the leaves worked in solid satin or outline, whichever is preferred.

The flowers on either side of the center bloom have the petals all worked on the edges with long-and-short stitches. Use a rather heavy thread and see that the stitches are not too regularly uneven, but let them extend well into the flower towards the center. After this part of the work is done coronation cord is placed around the entire outline of the petals, the heavy part resting on the outermost edges and the narrow section extending in between the petals. Care must be exercised in sewing the cord in place, and as it is very pliable, it is not hard to arrange. The small end of the cord is carried through the linen to the wrong side. It is not necessary to, cut the linen, but a hole is made by separating the threads with a stiletto and then the cord is drawn through. Here it is caught with several fine stitches on the wrong side. The outer stitches which hold the cord in place are taken on the under side of the cord and are not visible; only those which come at the small sections cross the cord at all, and if these are drawn tightly and a fine soft thread is used, they are not objectionable.

The embroidery pattern illustrated and described herein, together with 400 others covering all possible uses, are included in the "Innovation Embroidery Pattern Outfit" now being presented by this newspaper, as explained elsewhere in these columns.

For the centers of the flowers use a satin dot surrounded by heavy French knots, and work the radiating lines in simple outline stitch. In working the solid satin stitch, it is well to pad them quite heavily, to be in keeping with the very raised appearance of the coronation cord, which edges the flower petals, and they should also be worked very smoothly with a single thread. Of course, if the plain long-and-short stitch is used for the flower petals, sans cord, the padding need not be so heavy.

The design would be exceedingly pretty if worked in white and two shades of rose color or cool shades of blue.

RED MEN WILL BEGIN TO ARRIVE ON MONDAY

F. O. Downs, Greatest of All Red Men, Will Be Honor Guest

The advance guard of several hundred members of the Improved Order of Red Men will arrive in Atlanta Monday for the thirty-sixth annual great sun council of Georgia.

The council meets Wednesday and Thursday and will have as its honor guest this year the greatest Red Man of them all—Frederick O. Downs, of Boston, great incohonee of the order, who arrives in the city Tuesday. Judge Thomas H. Jeffries, of Atlanta, who is great senior sagamore of the United States and next in rank to Mr. Downs, will also be an honored guest.

Elaborate preparations are being made for the convention under direction of Judge George E. Johnson, chairman of the general committee. The Hotel Ansley hotel will be headquarters for the delegates, but all meetings will be held in the Red Men's wigwam on Central avenue.

Plans for entertainment will be completed at a meeting Monday night, at which reception committees will be detailed to meet all trains. Tuesday night Great Incohonee Downs will address local Red Men at the wigwam.

The program proper begins with public exercises at the wigwam at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning. The invocation will be delivered by Rev. G. H. Hinnant, and there will be addresses by Mayor Woodward and Governor Slaton. Great Incohonee Downs and J. R. Miller, great sachem, will respond.

The great council will hold its session at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, adjourning at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon for a trolley ride to Stone Mountain. At 7:30 o'clock Wednesday evening there will be degree work at the wigwam, followed by a grand ball at 9 o'clock.

The instillation of new officers will take place at the session of the great council Thursday morning. At this time Walter C. Hendrix, a prominent Atlanta attorney, will become great sachem and head of the order in Georgia.

ATLANTA LAW SCHOOL CLOSES MONDAY NIGHT

Graduating Address Will Be Delivered by Judge Nash R. Broyles

Thirty-one young men will receive diplomas from the Atlanta Law school on Monday night, at the annual commencement exercises of the school, at which time Judge Nash R. Broyles, of the court of appeals, will deliver the graduating address to the students.

In addition to the thirty-one graduates, two women students who have completed the course, will have seats upon the stage at the commencement ceremonies, but will receive only certificates instead of diplomas from the school. They are Miss Agnes Louise Klein, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Bessie Castleton, of New York. Because of the Georgia law forbidding women to practice law in this state, the faculty of the school declined to accept women students in the school except on condition that they should not receive diplomas, as a diploma from the school, under the Georgia law, admits a graduate to practice law in this state.

In addition to Judge Broyles' address, the commencement program will include addresses by Hewitt W. Chambers and J. Walter LeCraw, winners of the two prize contests in oratory, and by Robert M. Arnold, who was elected by the faculty to deliver the valedictory address. Mrs. Castleton has been awarded the prize for highest scholarship in the class during the past year, the prize consisting of a set of law books.

The program Monday night will be as follows:

Music.
"The Empire State"—Address by Hewitt W. Chambers, winner of prize oratorical contest.
Music.
"Humanizing The Law"—Address by J. Walter LeCraw, winner of oratorical contest.
Music.
Valedictory address—By Robert M. Arnold.
Music.
Address to graduating class—By Mr. Justice Nash R. Broyles of the court of appeals.
Music.
Delivery of prizes and degrees—By Hamilton Douglas, dean.
Benediction—Rev. Plato T. Durham, D. D.

Those who will receive diplomas are as follows: Robert McD. Arnold, Talbotton, Ga.; Harry W. Belfor, Belmar, N. J.; Henry Grady Bell, Gainesville, Ga.; James A. Conard, New York, N. Y.; I. Leonard Crawford, Atlanta, Ga.; H. Frank Guess, Stone Mountain, Ga.; Melville Coxe Hardin, Atlanta, Ga.; Joseph Lewis Hargrove, Milledgeville, Ga.; Allen L. Hendrix, Calhoun, Ga.; James F. Holtzendorf, Claremore, Okla.; Carl Thomas Hudgins, Chambiee, Ga.; Meyer Louis Kahn, Atlanta, Ga.; Louis Kopiln, Atlanta, Ga.; J. Walter LeCraw, Atlanta, Ga.; Samuel A. Lokey, Birmingham, Ala.; Edwards Lee McCrory, Ellaville, Ga.; Fred J. A. McWhorter, Greensboro, Ga.; William C. Mather, Atlanta, Ga.; Astor Merritt, Buchanan, Ga.; Edgar Penny, Raleigh, N. C.; Oliver H. Puckett, Atlanta, Ga.; Robert Marion Strickland, Atlanta, Ga.; Catchings Therrel, Atlanta, Ga.; James Toombs Thomasson, Carrollton, Ga.; James E. Van Valkenburg, Jr., Atlanta, Ga.; Julius Ward, Silva, N. C.; Noah B. Wilson, McWhorter, Ga.; M. Lee Yagle, Pickensville, Ala.

Cuthbert Adams, Said to Have Been Intoxicated, Shoots His Father

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)

MEIGS, Ga., June 12.—Judge Tom D. Adams, justice of the peace court of Cotton district, and a prominent citizen and farmer, was shot twice by his son, Cuthbert, this afternoon at his residence. He was wounded in the left side, one shot going through his arm just above the elbow and through his left side, and the other hitting him in the left leg and breaking it about half way between the knee and ankle.

Judge Adams had just brought his son home from Harmony church. The young man is said to have been intoxicated. The town marshal of Meigs, H. L. Kemp, went to the scene at once, being summoned to come with the surgeon from this place to dress the wounds. Marshal Kemp immediately arrested young Adams and placed him in the Camilla jail. The shooting occurred about five miles north of Meigs.

NORWAY HAS LOST 29 VESSELS DURING WAR

LONDON, June 12.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Copenhagen says the Norwegian war insurance bureau has announced that Norway has lost twenty-nine vessels of all classes, valued at $7,500,000, since the war began.

DR. LEN G. BROUGHTON, who will lecture Monday evening at the Baptist tabernacle on the European war as observed during his residence in London.

DR. LEN BROUGHTON TO LECTURE HERE MONDAY

"The European War as I Have Seen It" Will Be Subject

Dr. Len G. Broughton, former pastor of the Baptist tabernacle, of Atlanta, now pastor of the First Baptist church of Knoxville, Tenn., will lecture Monday night at the tabernacle on "The Great European War as I Have Seen It, Heard It, and Know It."

Dr. Broughton has recently returned from Europe where he was pastor of the Christ church, London, during the first months of the war. This church is said to have been one of the first organizations to start relief work among the Belgians.

In the lecture Dr. Broughton will seek to show America's great opportunities commercially and politically, as a result of the devastation of Europe.

Tickets may be obtained at the Georgian Terrace, Cone's, Elkins', Dunwoody's and Marshall's drug stores, and at the tabernacle. The admission fees are 25 and 50 cents.

GermanGirl Found Work as Spy Was Easy Job in Canada

TORONTO, Ont., June 12.—Louis A. Marksfelt, a girl of nineteen, who has been under arrest here since May 26, has admitted to the police that she is a German spy. She refuses, however, to give the names of her confederates. She has been remanded to jail for a week, when it is expected application will be made for her internment.

The girl, who claims acquaintance with five or six European languages, says she was born in Alsace, came to the United States two years ago and when the war began was living in Buffalo. She crossed over to Niagara Falls, Ont., and made that place her headquarters in assisting German reservists to cross to Buffalo.

"It was only necessary," she is said to have told the police, "to ask in good English at Niagara Falls for two return tickets to Buffalo and I with a companion could reach Buffalo at any time I wished."

She is said to have paid visits during the winter to the various military camps and to have made an extensive tour of the Canadian west.

DR. BERNHARD DERNBURG IS EN ROUTE TO GERMANY

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 12.—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former colonial secretary of the German empire, who has been termed Emperor William's unofficial representatives in this country, sailed for home today on the Norwegian steamer Bergensfjord. He seemed in rare good humor, chatted smilingly with friends who came to the pier to wish him bon voyage, posed for photographers, talked with newspaper men for a few moments, and went to his suite aboard the steamer, which had been turned into a bower of roses by admirers, with the hope, he said, that the war would end with honor for all engaged.

For America and his treatment here, Dr. Dernburg expressed kindly sentiments.

"My feelings for this country are absolutely unchanged," he said. "I have been treated with indeterminate mercy, except on one occasion which I do not care to discuss."

"What occasion is that, Dr. Dernburg?" a reporter asked.

"The Lusitania matter," he replied.

Although pressed for an interview Dr. Dernburg would not violate the rule of silence he has observed for a month.

"I've said everything I've got to say," he told the newspaper men.

During the forenoon Dr. Dernburg kept in seclusion but it was surmised he bade good-by to Count Bernstorff, the German ambassador, who was staying at the same hotel.

On the way across the ocean, Dr. Dernburg will occupy what is known as "the king suite" the finest on the steamer, a suite of rooms which every Norwegian vessel is required to maintain for possible use of the king of Norway.

STRIPLING WILL BE RETURNED TO FARM

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 12.—After several days at the bedside of his daughter, who nearly killed herself by drinking carbolic acid, Thomas E. Stripling, serving a life sentence at the state farm for murder, will be taken back to the farm by a special guard Monday at noon.

The daughter, Miss Ruth Stripling, 18 years old, continues to improve, and it is thought she will recover. Stripling is very despondent. He was sent to the state farm for life on a charge of murder committed years ago, being convicted after he had gone to Danville, Va., where he was chief of police and a respected and prominent citizen.

BUSINESS AND FINANCE

By W. S. Cousins, Editor The American Banker

War Stocks the Center of Attraction—Show Good Increase in Quotation, Though Their New Function Is Hardly Unsatisfactory—Steel Corporation Decision One More Link in Important Chain—Money Markets Redundant, Business Unsteady, Bonds Active

NEW YORK, June 12.—Interest in Wall Street seems to be concentrated upon the so-called war stocks, which now include, in addition to the regular ordnance stocks of our more important industrial corporations which have converted their plants into temporary arsenals and are producing munitions of war for the European belligerents. Among the more prominent in the latter class are American Car and Foundry, American Locomotive, New York Air Brake, Westinghouse Electric, etc. It is estimated that these American concerns have already received contracts for war supplies, including automobiles, as well as munitions, in the immense sum of $500,000,000, of which less than $30,000,000 worth have been actually shipped up to this time. From this it will be seen that only a small proportion of the profits from these orders have as yet been assimilated, and the possibilities for profit are limited only to our capacity for turning out the desired products, and to facilities for shipping these products abroad. Added to this is the fact that our present favorable trade balance is almost one billion dollars, accumulated during the war period.

Some estimate of the enormous demands upon our industrial plants for war supplies may be obtained from the following table, showing the total value of orders taken by a few of these "converted" arsenals:

Bethlehem Steel company	$150,000,000
Westinghouse Electric company	27,000,000
DuPoint Powder company	100,000,000
American Locomotive company	65,000,000
American Car and Foundry	50,000,000
Crucible Stel company	35,000,000
Aetna Explosives company	22,000,000

A number of other companies are reported to have enough orders on hand to keep them busy night and day for a whole year, and in some instances two years.

Allis Chalmers		6	18
American Car and Foundry	2%	44	54
American Can		19½	40¾
American Locomotive	4%	20¼	49¾
Baldwin Locomotive	4%	41	53⅝
Bethlehem Steel company		30	155
E. W. Bliss & Co.	10%	85	350
Canadian Explosive	4%	88	320
Colts Fire Arms	12%	163	355
Crucible Steel		14½	30⅝
DuPont Powder	21%	120	500
Hercules Powder	6%	120	240
New York Air Brake company	6%	30	87½
Savage Arms company	6%	120	175
Westinghouse Electric	4%	65	98
Winchester Arms	$60	1190	1560

While these increases in value are somewhat gratifying, for the present at least, they do not represent the normal natural development of our instruments of production based upon the needs of a prosperous community. Aside from whatever sentimental reasons we may hold against the furnishing of implements of death for the terrorized nations of Europe, the economic phase of the situation is much more serious. It would be an unwise policy, for example, for American industrial leaders to materially increase their productive facilities for the turning out of special supplies for a war, the duration of which is a mighty uncertain proposition. Suppose the war should suddenly end? Or even in the event of its continuance, suppose the main orders for "war goods" were suddenly cancelled, due to enlargement of facilities for their production by the fighting nations themselves? Should there then be no substitute for the material we are now producing in such enormous quantities, many of our larger concerns must suspend or collapse. Bankers and investors have been forced to consider beyond the actual period of the war's duration to properly measure up the effects of the war orders upon the industrial community. If for no other reason than the further stimulating of these unnatural products, the United States should seek to avoid a clash with Germany or, indeed, with any foreign nation. It is estimated that with a home demand that would justify the U. S. Steel corporation operating to more than 30 per cent of its capacity, the plants of that company are now operating between 75 and 85 per cent.

STEEL CORPORATION DECISION.

The decision of the federal judges at Trenton, N. J., last week in the government's suit against the United States Steel corporation, while in itself a favorable feature in its effect upon business, must be considered in its relation to other similar developments which have been so encouraging to our financial and commercial interests. Briefly the federal judges declared that the steel corporation was not an illegal corporation operating in restraint of trade; that the corporation's domestic and foreign trade is not in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law; that the price-fixing agreements, though unlawful, were discontinued sufficiently prior to the filing of the government's suit to be disregarded in the present case; that the size of any corporation or any enterprise is not the final test of monopoly; that since the proportion of trade incerase was materially greater on the part of its competitors than its own, the corporation cannot be monopolistic nor even able to restrain trade; that there was nothing improper in the acquisition of the Tennessee Coal and Iron company; that facts and figures show that there is no possibility of Lake Superior ore monopoly; that for these reasons and for others, the government's petition for injunction and dissolution is respectfully denied.

This decision, therefore, adds one more plank to the platform which American business has been slowly but steadily building, and which in time should result in the dawn of a better day for American skill and enterprise. It might be interesting, at this time, to recall some of the developments of the past two years, which have entered into the construction of this platform.

Perhaps most important is the president's recent declaration that all hostilities between government and "big business" as such, would cease, and that size would not be considered the measure of a corporation's legality or illegality. The Wilson administration has suited the action to the word in this respect. Growing out of this policy has come the change in the attitude of the interstate commerce commission against the railroads, as evidenced by the permission given them to increase their freight rates to something approaching a remunerative basis.

The effect of this decision is reflected in the latest official statement of the commission, which shows a substantial increase in the revenue of 167 of the principal railroads during April. The total revenue of these roads was $223,056,290, and expenses $158,763,843 The net revenue amounted to $64,312,447, an increase of $7,457,822 over April, 1914. This, plainly, is an improvement even for conditions which existed before the war. For the ten months ended with April, revenues amounted to $2,312,034,296 and expenses $1,629,773,725. The net revenue was $682,260,568, a decrease, compared with the same period of 1914, $2,285,316.

MONEY AND BUSINESS.

Reports from the important financial centers indicate that there has been no appreciable decrease in the supply of funds, and that for all legitimate purposes loaning rates are distinctly in favor of the borrower. The banking position may therefore be taken as unsatisfactory, due to the marked lack of demand for funds, except for the long-time periods. The commercial paper market has been restricted by the lack of new paper coming out, reflecting as it does the slowness of business conditions and the extreme caution exercised in the way of increasing trades. In fact, caution exercised in the way of increasing trades. In fact, caution and hesitation now seem to be the watchwords of business policy. The crop outlook in the western agricultural territory is reported quite favorable, though this is the time of year when reports of crop damage, real or imaginary, find their way to the speculative centers. The railroads are believed to be more liberal buyers of steel rails and other supplies, and this is a more desirable output than shells and cannon.

Investment bankers say that there is a continuing demand for high-grade specialties, a new movement evidently succeeding the sudden falling off in security trading following the sinking of the Lusitania. The very large amount of money in the banks will, if not sought for in industrial channels, be diverted to the security markets, and therefore increased activity is looked for, especially in the bond market. The uncertainty of stock market is another excellent reason for brisk trading in bonds.

ATLANTA IS DRENCHED BY A HEAVY DOWNPOUR

Sewers Are Choked and Traffic Blocked All Over the City

The flood gates opened above Atlanta late Saturday afternoon and for over an hour the city was drenched by a downpour that choked sewers, made lakes of low places and blocked traffic in every part of town.

The rain was accompanied by thunder and lightning. It was not confined to any particular quarter of the county, but saturated College Park with all the viciousness it displayed toward Buckhead and East Atlanta.

Reports from East Point indicate that the storm wrought more havoc there than anywhere else. The main street was flooded and at the same time the play of lightning doused the community in darkness so that merchants were forced to sweep their stores by candlelight of the rain washing in from the sidewalks. Small damage was reported to several shops, and the price on brooms soared.

One house in Atlanta was struck by lightning, that of George C. Sweeny, 281 Ormond street. The bolt set the shingles on the roof ablaze and fire engines were called. The flames were extinguished with small damage to the roof.

At the office of the Georgia Railway and Power company it was stated that nearly every line in the city suffered minor trouble, due in nearly every case to choked sewers that overflowed the streets. The most serious case of this nature was at Langhorn and Gordon streets in West End, where the street was a pond from bank to bank. For over four hours the company's crew worked before any traffic at all could pass.

At the junction of the Hapeville trolley line with the College Park line sand and water blocked the cars for thirty minutes, and on Highland avenue at Blue Ridge avenue passengers for a while were transferred from one car to another in order to get across a young pond. Similar difficulties in lesser degrees were reported from other parts of town.

Three street cars were derailed by sand hidden under water, but in no case did the cars leave the tracks more than a few inches. The current was not affected, although the circuit furnishing light to parts of East Atlanta was broken for a few minutes.

No injuries or property damage to amount to anything were reported.

KEEL OF NAVAL SUPPLY SHIP HAS BEEN LAID

BOSTON, June 12.—The keel of a steamer of 8,000 tons, to be used as a naval supply ship, was laid at the local navy ward today. The ship is to be 422 feet long, fifty feet beam and will cost more than $1,000,000. It is listed on the department records as supply ship No. 1.

GEORGIA MAN IS RESCUED IN TIME

Resident of Woodstock Finds Himself Restored After His Physicians Failed

T. A. Lewis, who lives out on Route 3, Woodstock, Ga., was the victim of stomach troubles for a long time. He tried the treatments of many doctors. He tried all sorts of remedies.

Then he tried Mayr's Wonderful Remedy. Just as it always does, the first dose proved to him what could be done for his ailment. He took the full treatment; then wrote:

"I have taken your wonderful remedy and am feeling better than I have felt in four years.

"Your remedy does just what you claim it will do.

"I tried several doctors, but they did me no good. I am glad that I have found your wonderful remedy. I have recommended it to some of my neighbors who need it."

Mayr's Wonderful Remedy gives permanent results for stomach, liver and intestinal ailments. Eat as much and whatever you like. No more distress after eating, pressure of gas in the stomach and around the heart. Get one bottle of your druggist now and try it on an absolute guarantee—if not satisfactory money will be returned. WHEN YOU DROOP IN THE MORNING

It Means an Afternoon Headache and an Evening of Misery.

There is no necessity for it. The morning droop means the afternoon headache, the evening of misery. It means inefficiency in the office or in the store—that you are worth less to yourself or your employer.

You know what causes that droop. If you don't you ought to. It is indigestion eating or drinking or both; or it may come from irregularity of habit or lack of exercise. Any one of these may cause constipation and create toxic poisons which attack and injure the vital organs.

Stop it now. You can do it and prevent it in future. When you get up in the morning take Jacobs' Liver Salt.

Just a small dose of it—one to two teaspoonfuls—in a generous glass of water. You will find it a bubbling, sparkling, pleasant drink, and you can go to work with a quick step and a keen, active mind; whereas,

If you take calomel, it will take you a day to get over it. There is a day lost in addition to the undermining effect of this dangerous and powerful drug which soon must have serious and deleterious effect upon the system.

Jacob's Liver Salt will go what most needs to be done, and in the most gentle and delightful way— no pain or griping. 25c, at Jacobs' and druggists generally. (Advt.)

FINDS A CURE FOR PELLAGRA

Harvey, La.—Mrs. S. W. Sprulell, of this place, writes: "I suppose it will be a great pleasure to you to know that you cured my child. She had pellagra very bad and the doctor said she never would get well. She is well of pellagra and looks fine.

"You may use this letter as a testimonial if you wish. Great benefit have you done my daughter, Mindie Abrams."

There is no longer any doubt that pellagra can be cured. Don't delay until it is too late. It is your duty to consult the resourceful Baughn.

The symptoms—hands red like sunburn, skin peeling off, sore mouth, the lips, throat and tongue a flaming red with much mucous and choking; indigestion and nausea, either diarrhoea or constipation.

There is hope; get Baughn's big Free book on Pellagra and learn about the remedy for Pellagra that has at last been found. Address American Compounding Co., 2002, Jasper, Ala. In membering money is refunded in any case where the remedy fails to cure. (Advt.)

Get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and try it on my guarantee. You'll never again put a dose of nasty, dangerous calomel into your stomach.

Greatest Activity and Strength Was Shown in War Specialties

Dealings in Stocks Would Have Been More Impressive Had the Movement Shown Greater Breadth—Bonds Were Steady

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Jun. 12.—Dealings in stocks today would have been more impressive had the movement shown greater breadth. Most of the standard shares were neglected, activity and greatest advance again converging about war specialties and other stocks more or less remotely related to that special class. For instance, Federal Mining and Smelting common and preferred were only temporary gains of 20 and 5 points, respectively, and American Smelting, Guggenheim Exploration, Amalgamated Copper and National Lead rose 1 to 3 1-2 points.

Bethlehem Steel preferred rose to the new high price of 118 1-2, with smart advances in the common stock, New York Air Brake, General Electric and half a score of others sharing in the manifestation of minimum gains of a point.

Seasoned railway shares, including Union Pacific, Lehigh Valley, New York Central and Atchison were up a point and United States also held steady until the close, when pressure wiped out much, if not all their early advantage.

Bonds were steady today, total sales (par value), amounting to $1,385,000.

IRON TRADE REVIEW.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 12.—The Iron Trade Review today decided improvement has taken place in market conditions, but that due in part to the street enthusiasm felt as a result of the favorable reports from the Steel Corporation and the dissolution suit. But there is much substantial improvement. Demand for war materials and for machinery for the manufacture of these materials continues to be very heavy, and general domestic demand is also showing improvement. It is now understood that the order for 15,000 cars for Russia will be placed shortly. It will involve 300,000 tons of material, not including the wheels and axles, which will require 60,000 tons.

Pig iron has increased in activity in the Ohio and Pittsburg markets recently and the Chicago district is showing better conditions.

Steel is active and other non-ferrous metals are buoyant.

LATEST GERMANY NOTE CAUSED RISE IN STOCKS

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, June 12.—The week in the stock market was replete with interesting development. Secretary Bryan's resignation and the Washington's latest note to Germany being the outstanding features. Mr. Bryan's withdrawal caused some unsettlement at first, but prices were more than adjusted later, yesterday's final quotations being the highest since last Friday when the federal court ordered the United States Steel Corporation from all illegal acts.

As a group coppers and metal shares in general made greater gains than any other issues, their continued strength being predicated on the enormous demand for these products, which enter so extensively into the manufacture of war supplies. Refined copper sold at 20 1-4 cents, its top price in eight years and lead at 6 1-2 to 7 cents rose to its highest price in three decades.

Among war specialties Bethlehem Steel achieved the new record of 169 1-2 and General Electric, Westinghouse and sundry other industrial and equipment issues made handsome gains, to the accompaniment of reports of further large contracts. United States Steel also was helped by the publication of its May statement showing an increase in unfilled tonnage against the preceding month's decrease.

Railroad stocks as a whole were strengthened by the highly satisfactory crop report, which pointed to unprecedented yields of the more necessary grains. Railway earnings were mixed, however, with a preponderance of gross gains.

Foreign exchange was again stabilized by additional large imports from Canada, with intimations that considerable more of the precious metal is to flow in from that source. Rates of further imports drawn upon for more gold.

WHEAT CLOSED STRONG ON FEAR OF DAMAGE BY RAIN

Wheat Closed 3-4 to 1 1-8 Cents Higher--Corn and Oats Up--Pork and Sidse Weak

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, June 12.—Fear of damage from heavy rains northwest had a good deal to do today with an advance in the value of wheat. The market closed strong at 3-4 to 1 1-8 above last night. Corn gained 1 to 1 1-2 to 1-4, oats finished unchanged to 1-2 higher and provisions down 2 1-2 at 5 to 27 1-2.

Bulls controlled the corn market from the outset. Adverse crop reports from Iowa and Nebraska were emphasized by similar advices from other states.

In oats the feature was selling pressure on the September delivery.

GRAIN CLEARANCES

CHICAGO, June 12.—Wheat—Cables unchanged and there has been firmer tone in this market. Corn—June, although on early bulge there was free selling, carrying values down to yesterday's close. There is some improvement in spot inquiry, but market has been influenced by the weak tendency.

Nebraska reports indicate wheat crop 70- to 74 million bushels. Heavy liquidation in corn has occurred a two-sided market for time is not unlikely.

Oats—Fairly continued wet weather is creating some anxiety and there may be a little curtailment in the movement, but there is not much little good weather think it would be difficult to prevent the market grains working lower.

Oats—Cash trade fair and this is causing some buying support.

Alabama: Fair tonight; Sunday scattered thundershowers.

The western disturbances are now central over Kansas and South Dakota, and the barometric pressure, respectively, below 29.6 and 29.5 inches. Light showers occurred at many scattered points in the north and northwest. Helena received 1.80 inches. A number of stations in Tennessee, Alabama and northern Georgia also reported showers. Elsewhere in the cotton the weather is mostly fair.

Higher temperatures are reported in the central valley and New England districts. At 8 a. m. this morning, as above 70 degrees as far north as Boston, and in the interior up to St. Louis and Kansas City. Low temperatures prevail only in the very high portions of the Plateau region, Modena reporting 28 degrees.

Conditions are now somewhat favorable for local thundershowers tonight or Sunday at Atlanta.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, June 12.—Cotton opened barely a mild surprise, in so far as the strength there is now in spots in spite of a stock three quarters of a million bales heavier than a year ago. This argues against giving in to labor troubles. Spots have been quoted at one point higher, while futures were 1 point lower than due.

The general impression is expected bullish and to show more cotton consumed by our mills during July than in June.

The Texas government weather bureau gives the rainfall average for May as 2.47 inches, which is 1.39 inches below normal and compares with 7.68 last year in that state.

Government report on Texas rainfall over night east of the river but precipitation generally light. Temperatures and cultivation are for settled, unsettled and showery weather in the belt. Temperatures at 8:00 today: Arkansas, north Alabama and Tennessee over 90's.

Market opened a little easier on Saturday selling but soon gained a firmer tone and the chief feature in the market is that it responds easier to buying than to selling. Of course there are times in which the market is a fish before a Sunday but if a market holds on a Saturday as it did today, it is a very encouraging.

E. F. HUTTON & CO.'S COTTON LETTER

NEW YORK, June 12.—Market again today has felt the scarcity of offerings. Advices by crop statistics obtained by us are being very little selling. They are waiting for some one to pull their chestnuts from the fire.

The rainfall for the month of May has tended to keep the plant from making a good tap root. The plant is now very small and will have to be driven to put on a deep root, which allowed it to grow in the early season. It will be very unsafe to place very great dependence upon its healthy and vigorous early appearance. This small root is the root in the one all important point in early development. Without it a fine showing cannot be steadily depended upon in September. We continue to favor purchases and sell on rallies gradually higher.

E. F. HUTTON & CO.'S STOCK LETTER

NEW YORK, June 12.—The market has been dominated by the general impression that the papers all point toward a peaceful solution of our foreign complications, and that while this that our ex-secretary is much better out of the cabinet than in, has induced buying.

Specialties are steady on account of itself, advancing almost 10 points in three days. There is a very much better feeling among the railroad men.

There is a strong bullish feeling on Baltimore and Ohio.

While on this market will be susceptible to bad news, it is a very much better market wild speculation in the wrong kind of stocks. Buy of a million of prime stocks and hold them. Barring something unforeseen, the trend of the market still looks up.

LIVERPOOL CABLES WERE LOWER THAN EXPECTED

Futures Closed 1 1-2 to 2 Pts. Up--Spots 4 Points Higher. Sales 5,000 Bales

NEW YORK, June 12.—Liverpool cables were due to open 3 to 3½ points higher. Market opened quiet, generally 2½ to 3 points higher. Closed quiet at a net advance of 1¼ to 2 points.

Spot cotton firm at 4 points advance. Middling, 5.41. Sales, 5,000 bales; speculation and export 500 bales; imports 8,000 bales, all American.

LIVERPOOL COTTON

CENTURY THEATER TO BE GREAT MUSICAL CENTER

New Company, Headed by Ned Weyburn, to Take Control in August

NEW YORK, June 12.—Transformation of the Century theater into a great music hall of divers high class and popular entertainments is the project which the founders of the New theater, the original name of the building that stands at Central Park West and West sixty-first street, are practically ready to announce.

This new period in the history of the New theater, which promises to be the most successful, will begin about August 1, according to information obtained yesterday, when the building will pass by lease into the control of the Century Music Hall company, a corporation which will undertake the management of the building and the promotion of its various enterprises. Ned Wayburn, producer of musical reviews, will be the managing director of the new company.

Reports that the founders of the theater have had in view some such project as this have been current in theatrical circles several months. Mr. Wayburn's name has been associated with it whenever these reports were circulated. It is only within the last few weeks, however, that the arrangements between the founders and Mr. Wayburn have become a matter of almost daily conferences, and it was learned last night that the entire project, although not yet reduced to a contract, will be prepared for announcement within a few days.

The undertaking will mean the establishment in New York of a great music hall patterned after but a great improvement upon the finest music halls in Europe. The entire building will be used, including the basement and the roof, where a summer garden, glass-enclosed, will be built. The promenades will receive special attention, and there will be a high class restaurant, dancing and tea room.

In the theater proper Mr. Wayburn will produce a musical review on which he has been working more than a year, called "Town Topics," the book and lyrics of which are by Harry B. Smith, Robert B. Smith, Thomas J. Gray and Mr. Wayburn, and the music by a composer, whose name is being carefully guarded. The chorus will consist of seventy-five girls, and rehearsals will be begun in a few days. Most of the stage settings are being built.

The new policy at the Century will be continued indefinitely, the only interruption being one of four weeks at the middle of the winter when the Diagelev Russian Ballet will appear there, under arrangements made several months ago by the directors of the Metropolitan Opera company. The ballet will go on a tour of the principal American cities and return to New York early in the spring for the last two weeks of the season at the Metropolitan opera house.

After the season of ballet at the Century another musical production will be made there, the scheme being to produce at least three large musical plays there and every year to keep the theater open winter and summer.

PUBLIC HEALTH CAMPAIGN PLANNED IN WARE COUNTY

Rockefeller Foundation Will Assist Local Authorities in Movement

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 12.—Commencing July 1, and under the auspices of the state board of health and the county board of health, a public health campaign will be started in Ware county. It will be in charge of a trained physician and three experienced laymen. The Rockefeller foundation for improving public health will contribute largely to the cost of the campaign, Ware's share of the expense being only $600, which was appropriated unanimously by the county commissioners.

Ware is one of three counties in Georgia that will receive the benefits of this work. This county is the first to accept the offer and much good is expected to be derived. The campaign will be a constructive one, special attention to be paid to the prevention of soil pollution.

WHITE TRUCKS

AMERICA'S greatest retail stores have purchased more White Trucks than any other make of truck.

Gimbel Brothers	New York
B. Altman & Company	New York
Kaufmann & Baer Co.	Pittsburgh
Joseph Horne Co.	Pittsburgh
The Rosenbaum Co.	Pittsburgh
Boggs & Buhl, Inc.	Pittsburgh
Kaufmann Brothers	Pittsburgh
Oppenheim, Collins & Co.	New York
Stern Brothers	New York
Mandel Brothers	Chicago
Marshall Field & Co.	Chicago
T. Eaton Company, Ltd.	Toronto
McCreery & Company	New York
Spear & Company	Pittsburgh
The May Company	Cleveland
The Halle Company	Cleveland
Saks & Company	New York

In a business where delivery costs are figured to the fraction of a cent — where efficient service counts so much in getting and keeping customers — the predominating use of White Trucks points a moral that is plain:

WEST POINT GRADUATES GIVEN THEIR DIPLOMAS

Value of Tradition Is Emphasized by Secretary of War Garrison

(By Associated Press.)

WEST POINT, N. Y., June 12.—Secretary Garrison presented diplomas today to 168 graduates of the military academy at the annual graduation exercises today and delivered an address in which he emphasized the value of tradition.

"To be honorable, valorous, truthful, fair and just in your dealings," he said, "and ready to sacrifice all for your country are the traditions which were handed on to you and will be handed on by you to those who follow. * * * *

"While traditions are of course valuable in civil life, they are trebly valuable in the career which you have chosen. You are conspicuously placed and represent your country. Lamentable as are the lapses of the citizen, they are not so conspicuous nor so damaging as are lapses upon the part of officers of the army of the United States.

"You have undertaken a great responsibility. You may be called upon at any time to demonstrate your worth; and upon your conduct may depend issues of vital moment to our country. You can only be sure that you will worthily and successfully meet such responsibilities if you have entered on your career in the proper spirit—if you have become imbued with the proper traditions. Unless you look upon yourselves as men who have actually, not only in word, pledged all that was in you for your country's safety, you have not imbibed the proper traditions and you cannot worthily hand them on."

WILSON PLANS TO SPEND JULY FOURTH AT CORNISH

WASHINGTON, June 12.—President Wilson expects to spend July Fourth at the summer White House at Cornish, N. H. It will be his first vacation since the foreign situation became acute. Members of his family plan to go to Cornish about June 25.

LEADING ARK STOCKMAN IS SENTENCED TO DEATH

MORRILLTON, Ark., June 12.—Sam Bell, a prominent cattleman, was found guilty of murder in the first degree after a jury deliberation of two and one-half days here today, for the murder of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Earl Beardon. Two weeks ago Bell was sentenced to life imprisonment for killing the woman's husband. He also is charged with killing her father and brother. Bell was sentenced to die in the electric chair.

CITIZENS OF MARIETTA ORGANIZE BOOSTERS' CLUB

Frank L. Bond Is Presented With Handsome Cane as Token of Appreciation

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MARIETTA, Ga., June 12.—A meeting of about 400 Marietta representative business men consisting of merchants, manufacturers and bankers was held Friday night at the New Kennesaw hotel. The meeting was called to promote the interest of Marietta and Cobb county. The merchants have been organized for the past twelve months, also the bankers and manufacturers in separate and distinct organizations. The meeting Friday night was called for the purpose of uniting these three organizations into one body to advertise, boost and push Marietta.

Speeches were made by J. W. Hancock, proprietor of the Marietta Ice and Coal company; B. G. Brumby, vice president of the Marietta Chair company; M. L. McNeel, president of the McNeel Marble company; T. M. Brumby, Jr., vice president of the Brumby Chair company; George H. Sessions, cashier of the Marietta Trust and Banking company, and E. C. Gurley, cashier of Merchants and Farmers' bank.

The chairman appointed a committee consisting of one member from each of the different organizations to perfect a plan for bringing the different organizations together and another meeting will be called during the coming week to adopt whatever plan they decide on.

There was more enthusiasm shown at this meeting than has ever been before by people of Marietta, and it is only a question of time before all the people in Marietta will be organized into one big body. After the singing of the songs which the Marietta delegation sang on their tour around the state the meeting adjourned subject to call of the committee in charge.

The Boosters' club was first organized by the sixteen live wires who went from here on the "Seeing Georgia" tour.

In appreciation of his services to the city and his influence in organizing the club, Frank L. Bond was presented with a handsome gold-topped ebony walking cane.

WOULD DELAY SALE OF Y. M. C. A. OF WAYCROSS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., June 12.—A communication asking them to delay final action with reference to the sale of the home of the city Young Men's Christian association has been sent to the bond holders by the sinking fund commission of Waycross.

The bond holders are the First National bank and the Citizens bank of Waycross. They have a first mortgage on the Y. M. C. A. that fully protects them. The city stands to lose $6,200 if the home is sold in July, as a loan of $5,000 was granted the Y. M. C. A. from sinking fund in 1911. The interest on this, $1,200, makes the sum the city is apt to lose a little bit larger than the present administration feels the city can afford to lose.

No reply has been received by the sinking fund commission as yet, and it is problematical what steps will be taken to protect the city in the event the bond holders do not agree to delay action. So far no movement has been started here to aid the local association, and it is feared that unless some outside assistance is secured nothing will be done to continue the association's work in Waycross. The debts altogether approximate $44,000.

Bank Chartered

The secretary of state on Saturday granted a charter to the Planters' bank, of Donaldsonville, in Decatur county, capital $25,000. E. S. Spooner and others are the incorporators.

FARM EXTENSION WORK BEING PUSHED BY EXPERTS

QUITMAN, Ga., June 12.—Brooks county is having an example of the activity of the state and federal governments in farm extension work. No less than four agents of these forces are at work in the county now.

E. L. Markell, of the department of agriculture is here to ferret out the cause of poor shipping of watermelons apparent last season and will work through the season to eliminate the cause of poor shipping quality. E. S. Haskell, with S. H. Starr, is here making extensive studies of the cost of production for farm products. The information he is getting will be worked up into a bulletin giving statistics of comparative costs of farming in different sections.

June 22 a Farmers' Field day will be held for the county, probably at the county farm. On this farm is one of two demonstration plats in the state of Georgia where experiments in growing cereals is being conducted. This work has been under way about two years and the farmers will have an opportunity to have this work explained to them by the agricultural experts who will be here on that day.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

MUCH of the social interest this week will center in the East Lake Country club, where the southern championship tournament will be staged. While no ladies will participate in the tournament there are many enthusiastic golfers among the fair sex who will be in the gallery to watch the play throughout the week and for those who are not willing to give up their daily game the Capital City club has arranged a tournament for the ladies over the Brookhaven links. This is in charge of Mrs. William Tilt, Mrs. Edwin Johnson and Mrs. Albert Thornton, Jr. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday will be given over to the lady golfers at Brookhaven and the privilege of playing is open to all local and visiting women golfers. A silver cup will be presented to the one making the best three out of five metal scores. All the clubs of the city have cooperated to make the championship tournament a great success and the social activities will combine to make a very gay week. The Atlanta Athletic club extends an invitation to the membership of the Piedmont club, the Druid Hills golf club and the Capital City club, to visit the East Lake Country club during the tournament, and the management of the club has arranged to have a dinner and music every evening during tournament week, which will culminate in a beautiful dinner dance Saturday evening.

To Mr. and Mrs. Phelan

Mr. Frederick Wakefield Patterson entertained at dinner Saturday evening at the East Lake Country club in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Graham Phelan.

ATLANTA, GEORGIA

Suffrage Rally At Hapeville Tuesday

The Georgia Woman's Suffrage league, of which Mrs. Frances Whiteside is president, will hold a big rally Tuesday night in the Masonic Hall at Hapeville. An interesting program has been arranged. It will begin promptly at eight o'clock.

Mrs. Whiteside, Mrs. Elizabeth McCarthy and others will speak. Mayor Humphrey will introduce the speakers.

Mrs. W. G. Raoul, who represented Mrs. Emily McDougald, president of the Equal Suffrage party of Georgia, at the recent meeting of the National Woman's Suffrage association in Chicago, has returned to the city. Her account of the meeting is most interesting. She was present during the long and heated fight to obtain recognition and indorsement of the militant methods of the congressional union, which fight finally ended in a rejection of the resolution indorsing the union.

Mrs. Raoul says the prospects are very bright for the addition of several new suffrage states this fall to the growing list of those who already have equal suffrage. New Jersey will be the first state to vote on the question this fall, the election date being October 19, and the question will be passed on also in New York state, with every indication of success. Women vote now in twelve states.

Mrs. George Obear will entertain the Ninth Ward Suffrage club Wednesday afternoon at the country home of her sister, Mrs. Sallie Pidwell. All suffragists from other wards are invited to attend. Those who attend should take the Druid Hills car and get off at Moreland Avenue, where they will be met by automobiles.

The Ninth Ward club met Wednesday afternoon with Miss Eleonore Raoul. An interesting program was rendered. Among other things, Miss Bernice Horton read the witty little play, "And So They Were Married," and Miss Agnes Tinsley Harrison gave several pretty interpretative dances. It was decided to continue the weekly meetings throughout June, but to hold only one meeting a month during July and August.

Tickets for the Suffrage School which will open June 15, are going very rapidly, and those who wish to be certain of securing seats should procure tickets at once. Six lectures will be given at a cost of 25 cents for the series, and tickets may be secured from the Equal Suffrage headquarters at 217 Peachtree street.

The subjects to be discussed are as follows: National, State and County Governments, by Walter McElreath on June 15; Suffrage and Elections, James L. Mayson, June 17; Taxation, Aldine Chambers, June 19; City Government, J. C. Logan, June 22; Juvenile Courts, Judge W. W. Tyndale, June 24; Public Systems of Education, June 26.

The speaker for the last lecture is yet to be selected. Miss Celeste has been invited, but has not yet stated whether or not she can accept.

The eleventh session of the Suffrage school, being conducted by the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association, will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the parlors of the Ansley hotel. Mrs. Rose M. Ashby will be the speaker of the afternoon. Other interesting features will be announced later. A cordial invitation is extended to everyone interested.

An interesting meeting of the Georgia Young People's Suffrage association was held on last Wednesday afternoon in the parlors of the Ansley hotel. The address of the afternoon was made by Basil Stockbridge. Mr. Stockbridge spoke on "Citizenship," and his address was a most interesting and instructive one. Miss Helen McClure recited "Mr. Dooley on Woman's Suffrage." The meeting closed with a beautiful solo by Miss Louise Buchanan.

Georgians Attending Commencement Of University of Georgia

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ATHENS, Ga., June 12.—The commencement exercises at the University of Georgia started with gay social festivities Friday, and will continue through the middle of this week.

Heralding the commencement galeties, two college functions have already occurred, the Sigma Nu banquet on Saturday night, and the Thalian banquet on Wednesday night, both held at the Georgian hotel.

The former was in honor of the senior members of the fraternity, including Messrs. L. C. English, G. G. Broughton, H. C. Kytle, T. G. Peacock, A. W. Riley, C. D. Jenkins and R. W. Coker.

The hosts were Messrs. Riley, Winn, Folsom, Lane, Wilkes, Perry, Wilhite, L. Lee, McManus, Watson, Jennings, White, Upshaw, Rogers, Mobley, Hatch and Dunn.

The Thalian banquet, which is always a notable event of the commencement season, occurred unusually early this year, on account of conflicting dates. Those present were Misses Mary Lyndon, Florence Hooper, Helen Michael Aurelia and Kathleen O'Farrell, Lydia Griffith, Louise Dorsey, Gertrude Bernstein, Mary Arthur, Jennie Arnold, Natalie Bocock, Miss Lewis, and Miss Schoen, of Atlanta; Misses Clara Howell, Hatcher, Hirschberg, Dunlap, McThall, Hendricks, Morrison, Cubbedge, Harrison, Jacobson, Reed, Koch, Peacock and Pinkussohn.

The first of the commencement dances, the Pan Hellenic ball, was a brilliant event, held in the Moss auditorium, which has been decorated artistically for the series of college germans.

Among the out-of-town guests present were Misses Louise Broyles, Rebie Wilkins, Frances Broyles, Annie Winship Bates, Elsie Smith, Mary Stewart, Irma Schoen, Mary Rice, Pauline Campbell, Mary King, Dorothy Haverty, Margaret Murphy, Elizabeth Hawkins, Alice Muse, Nina Hansel, Alline Fielder, Nell Choate and Marion Stearns, from Atlanta; Misses Martha Coleman, Louise Mays, Mary Lou Tabin, Alice Davison, Mary Barrett, Jane Kealhofer, from Augusta; Misses Edith Humphries, Adeline Small, Callie Blum, from Macon; Miss Mary McClesky, of Little Rock; Miss Gertrude Hood, of Cuthbert; Miss Eleanor Thornton, of Kansas City; Misses Edith and Louise Gunnels, Louise Walker and Bernice Breedlove, of Monroe; Miss McFadden, of Virginia; Miss Frances Lockett, of Albany; Miss Rosaline Schwab, Miss Elizabeth Gordon, of Savannah; Miss Minnie Cohen and Miss Thelma Wright, of Elberton; Miss Helen Blum, of Columbus; Miss Elizabeth Shipper, of Ellijay; Miss Margaret McLeod, New Orleans; Miss McElmurray, of Waynesboro; Miss Anne McClure, of Buford; Miss Estelle Penock, of Madison; Miss Dozier, of Gainesville; Miss Janie Moss, of Tignall; Miss Gillian Woodall, of Birmingham; Mrs. Meta McGowan and Mrs. Kealhoper, of Augusta; Mrs. Stearns, Mrs. Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haverty, Mrs. Marion Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Dick, Mr. and Mrs. Hilliard Spalding, Hon. Peter Mildrim, of Savannah; Messrs. John Cozart and John Lowry, of Augusta; Mr. Finlason, of Baltimore; Mr. Payne, of Norfolk; Ensign Fortson, U. S. N.; Mr. Howell, of Atlanta; Mr. Harvey Moore, of Charlotte.

A large number of old college boys attended the dance and the usual crowd of chaperons and Athens girls were present, including Misses Jennie Arnold, Lydia and Gwendolyn Griffith, Louise Dorsey, Natalie Bocock, Florence Hooper Margaret Rowe, Mesdames O'Farrell, Marguerite Moore, Martha and Nellie Phinizy, Mignon Davis, Katherine Morton, Josephine Wilkins, Jane Webb, Marion Hodgson, Neal Cochran, Fannie Neal Anderson, Sara Coker, Carolyn Davis, Lucy Fleming and Callie Thompkin, Mr. and Mrs. Bocock, Mrs. Charles Griffith, Mrs. W. D. Hooper, Mrs. Walter Childs, Mrs. Charles Phinizy, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Coke Talmadge and others.

Third Ward Civic Club

The June meeting of the Woman's Third Ward Civic club was held at Grant Park on Friday afternoon. Many ladies were present and a profitable and pleasant time was had. It was decided to co-operate with the pioneer women in their worthy efforts in striving to provide a more accessible approach to Camp Walker in the park and to house the old war engine Texas, which is standing uncovered.

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE IN SUMMER

Whether you spend the summer months in the city, or country, at the lake, mountain or seashore, the season brings added responsibility in the extra care to be devoted to the toilet.

The hair in particular needs more attention than at any other time. The perspiration that exudes in increased quantities carries with it waste and poisonous matter, which, unless removed promptly, clogs the pores and irritates the scalp. This makes it doubly difficult to keep the hair and scalp sweet and clean, and renders the frequent and intelligent use of NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE almost a necessity.

ADDS TO YOUR COMFORT

It is refreshing. Regular applications give a sense of coolness and cleanliness, besides keeping the hair and scalp healthy. HERPICIDE add gloss and beauty to the hair and thus increases one's personal charm and attractiveness.

If the hair be wet from bathing, whether in fresh or salt water, HERPICIDE quickly restores the natural fluffiness and softness. It stops itching of the scalp, due to dandruff, almost instantly.

Possessing a dainty, exquisite odor, NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE is an ideal hot weather hair dressing. When you start away on your summer outing have a bottle in your grip.

Send 10 cents for sample bottle to the HERPICIDE CO., Dept. 126-B, DETROIT, MICH. Applications at the better barber shops. Sold and Guaranteed at all toilet goods counters.

INTERESTING WEDDINGS

Jeter-Albert

The marriage of Miss Irene Albert and Mr. Frank H. Jeter took place at the home of the bride's uncle, Mr. J. H. Merritt, on Lee street.

The improvised altar, with its stately palms and candelabra, made an attractive background for the bridal party, and immediately preceding the ceremony Miss Hazel Massee sang "At Dawning," followed by Miss Nina Hunter, who sang "O Promise Me." Mrs. E. T. Booth presided at the piano.

Miss Ruth Johnson was maid of honor, wearing a beautiful gown of pink messaline, and carried an armful of Killarney roses. Following came Miss Elizabeth Hale, a young cousin of the bride, gowned in pink accordion-plaited crepe and carrying pink rosebuds. Mrs. George Ripley, Jr., as matron of honor, wore a wedding dress of crepe de chine and carried pink roses. Following the matron of honor came little Miss Browne Merritt, carrying a single pure white rose, in the heart of which rested the wedding ring.

Mr. Arthur Hale gave the bride away. She wore a dress of white crepe de chine with court train, and the veil was confined with a chaplet of orange blossoms.

Mr. Jeter and his best man, Mr. W. L. Roseborough, joined the bride at the altar, and Dean Atkinson performed the beautiful Episcopal ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Jeter will make their home in Raleigh, N. C.

Powell-Kinney

The marriage of Miss Willie Kate Kinney, of Villa Rica, and Mr. William DeWitt Powell was solemnized Sunday, June 6, in Temple, the Rev. John Brice officiating.

The bride was lovely in a gown of white embroidered net.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Barrett, Miss Lillis Sheats, Miss Edna Powell, Miss Sadie Lifsey, Miss Ida Brewer, Mr. Cliff Hudgins, Mr. Frank Payne, Mr. T. Kilgore and Mr. Jack Raburn, of Villa Rica, Ga.

After a short trip, Mr. and Mrs. Powell will make their home in Atlanta.

Trammell-Brubacher

The wedding of Miss Martha Brubacher, of Douglasville, and Mr. Frank Trammell, of Atlanta, was solemnized at the Methodist church in Douglasville on May 19. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and a program of wedding music was rendered.

Miss Faye Duncan was maid of honor, and Mr. Frank Dorris best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. E. Jenkins. Mr. and Mrs. Trammell returned to Atlanta after a wedding trip of several weeks and are making their home at 219 Highland avenue.

Heery-Huie

Mr. and Mrs. Harry T. Heary announce the marriage of their daughter, Hattie, to Mr. Robert D. Huie, the ceremony having been performed at the manse of the College Park Presbyterian church by the pastor, Rev. Fritz Rauschenberg, Tuesday evening, June 8, at 7 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Huie are at home to their friends in Morrow, Ga.

Butler-Harris

The marriage of Miss Irene Harris and Mr. Marion Kendall Butler was solemnized Sunday, June 6, in Birmingham, Ala., at the First Presbyterian Church, the Rev. J. A. Bryan officiating.

Mr. and Mrs. Butler will be at home to their friends at 544 Spring street.

Hutchinson-Ballenger

LYERLY, Ga., June 12.—At the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dill, of Subligna, Wednesday afternoon, occurred the marriage of Miss Velma Ballenger, one of Chattooga county's most popular young women, and Dr. Fane Hutchinson, of Subligna. The marriage was a quiet home affair, only a few intimate friends and relatives being present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Reeves, of LaFayette.

Goldstein-Ketzky

LAGRANGE.—Announcement of the marriage of Mrs. Pauline Feinburg Ketzky to Mr. Morris Nathan Goldstein, both of LaGrange, has been received by friends of the contracting parties. The marriage took place at Columbus, last Sunday.

Millican-Lasker

LYERLY.—Miss Vesta Lasker and Mr. B. L. Millican, of Chattanooga, were married Wednesday in Menlo by the Rev. H. H. Connell, of Summerville. Mr. and Mrs. Millican left immediately for Chattanooga.

Simmons-Oakes

The wedding of Miss Lula Oakes and Mr. William Harry Simmons was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Oakes, on College avenue, in Decatur, on Sunday evening, June 6.

The impressive ceremony was witnessed by the members of the family connection and a few close friends and was performed by the Rev. Chauncey Foote.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her going-away gown of blue faille, the short coat opened over a blouse of rare lace, and she carried bride's roses showered with valley lilies.

The maid of honor, Miss Edwina Lee Blackstock, was gowned in pink crepe de chine, combined with tull, and carried white roses. Mr. John Simmons was best man. A beautiful program of wedding music was rendered by Miss Mattie Simmons, who wore a dainty gown of pink crepe and lace. The bride is a charming member of the younger set of Decatur, and Mr. Simmons is the son of Mr. John D. Simmons, who is circulation manager of The Atlanta Journal.

Mr. and Mrs. Simmons are at home to their friends at 18 Cleborne avenue, in Inman Park.

Soloman-Kyzar

LUMPKIN.—A wedding of unusual interest was that of Miss Clara Lude Soloman, of LLumpkin, and Dr. James Hugh Kyzar, of Goshen, Ala., which was solemnized Wednesday morning, June 9, at 19 o'clock on the spacious veranda of the bride's home, Rev. E. H. McGechee officiating.

Miss Pauline Soloman was her sister's maid of honor, and Mr. A. L. Kyzar, Troy, Ala., was best man. The bridesmaids were Miss Florence Walker, of Bayford, Va.; Miss Ruth Richards, of Birmingham, Ala.; Miss Mildred Lide, of Richland, Ga., and Miss Eula Bradford, of Paris, Tenn.

Scott-Hodges

AMERICUS, Ga.—The marriage of Miss Rebecca Hodges and Mr. Penn Scott, of Greensboro, N. C., was solemnized Tuesday evening at the bride's home on the Andersonville road, and was beautiful in every detail.

In the drawing room where the ceremony was read by Rev. Robert L. Bivins, an improvised altar with palms, ferns and lilies as a background, was placed. The bride entered with her sister, Miss Ruth Hodges, who was gowned in pink taffeta and tulle.

Dr. Brock Lyons, of New York, was best man and the other attendants were Mrs. T. B. Hooks, Jr., Miss Mildred Hollis, Miss Ruth Brown, Miss Louise Williford, Miss Alline Fielder, of Atlanta; Miss Margaret Murphey, of Newnan; Mr. Ernest Carrigan, of Society Hill, S. C.; Mr. William Page, of Savannah; Mr. Riley, of New Orleans; Mr. Charles Burke, Mr. Edwin Murray, Mr. Furlow Gatewood.

After a month in the Carolina mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Scott will be at home in Greensboro.

Craigmiles-Beverly

THOMASVILLE.—A pretty house wedding of the week was that of Miss Grace Beverly and Mr. Joseph E. Craigmiles, both of this city, which took place Thursday afternoon, at the home of the bride's father, Mr. J. L. Beverly.

A color motif of green and white was used entirely in the decorations of the rooms and the large reception hall where the marriage ceremony was performed.

There were no attendants, the bridal couple entering together to the music of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, played by Miss Nell Pringley. Rev. Osgood F. Cook, pastor of the Methodist church, assisted by the Rev. W. M. Harris, of the Baptist church, officiated.

Harris-Wilkinson

LAGRANGE.—Sunday evening at 8 o'clock, Mr. Albert J. Harris and Miss Mattie Lou Wilkerson, were quietly married in this city at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. J. D. Gay. The ceremony was performed by Rev. M. B. Vaughan.

Bridge Party for Visitor

Miss Marian Woolley was hostess at a pretty bridge party Saturday afternoon at her home on West Peachtree in honor of Miss Sanford Linhus, of Brunswick, who is the guest of Miss Marian Dunson and for Mrs. George Brown, Jr., a recent bride.

A profusion of coreopsis, nasturtiums and pink and blue larkspur formed the decoration on the living room, library and veranda, where the interesting game was played.

The honor guests were presented with dainty hand-painted fans ornamented with spangles and the prizes for highest score and consolation were a box of crepe de chine handkerchiefs and silk hose.

The hostess was gowned in French net embroidered in orange and green and trimmed in green satin.

Mrs. Woolley, who assisted in entertaining, wore white net lace trimmed. Twenty guests were entertained.

Kessler-Ory

ANNISTON, Ala.—The wedding of Miss Lena Ory and Mr. Max Kessler took place at the Printup hotel at high noon Sunday.

The wedding ceremony was impressively performed by Rabbi Newfield, of Birmingham, and the wedding march was played by Mr. H. Kimelman. Preceding the marriage service Misses Lucille and Charlotte Nadler rendered "A Perfect Day" with violin and piano.

The bride was given away by her father, and her only attendant was Miss Celia Held, of Anniston, maid of honor.

Mr. Harry Doctor, of Macon, was best man.

Whitaker-Benns

WEST POINT, Ga., June 12.—Miss Ira Lee Whitaker, principal of the West Point public school, and Mr. William Edwin Benns, of Bessemer, Ala., surprised their friends by getting married today. They did not let anyone know about it except some nearby neighbors just before the ceremony took place.

Rev. Graham Forrester performed the ceremony and the happy couple hurried to the depot accompanied by the preacher, who publicly announced to the people in the Pullman car that it was a newly married couple on their honeymoon. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. O. D. Whitaker.

Evening Party

A profusion of daisies and other flowers formed the decorations.

Music was enjoyed during the evening. Several games were played, one of which was a guessing contest. In this game the ladies' prize was won by Miss Minnie McQuay and the gentlemen's prize was won by Mr. J. P. Swann.

Those present were: Miss Margaret Floyd, Miss Lena Cox, Miss Sara Cobb, Miss Minnie McQuay, Miss Martha Cox, Miss Nellie Granade, Miss Minnie Harris, Mrs. Leah Cox, Mrs. Addie Brakefield, Mrs. Clyde Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Jenkins, Mr. Simons, Mr. Mercer Walker, Mr. J. P. Swann, Mr. Cecil Floyd, Mr. Ray Almand, Mr. Jack Burkes, Mr. LeVoy Gill, Mr. Reeves Cox and Mr. Oscar Garner.

Fidelis Class Meeting

The Fidelis class of the Gordon Street Baptist church held its regular monthly business and social meeting at the home of Miss Cora Thomas, on Langhorn street, Tuesday evening. Gratifying reports of the secretary and treasurer were submitted, and some new officers and committees were elected for the ensuing month.

A delightful social hour was enjoyed after the business meeting.

These monthly business and social meetings are worth much to the efficiency of the class in that they afford a large opportunity for the girls to become closer acquainted with each other.

To Miss Brown

Mrs. E. L. Connally was hostess at an informal luncheon Friday at the "Homestead" in West End in celebration of the birthday of Miss Sally Eugenia Brown.

The Week in Retrospect

THE past week has been a very gay one for members of the college set who attended the bright round of entertainments that centered about the commencement of the Georgia Tech. Visiting girls from many different points in the state, alumni and fraternity members lent an added brightness to the festivities. The reception given by President K. G. Matheson and Mrs. Matheson was an event of Tuesday afternoon, while the Junior prom. on the Tech campus was the occasion of much real fun and merriment on Tuesday evening. Side shows, open air dances and many different forms of entertainment marked the carnival, of which Miss Anne Patterson was chosen by popular vote the queen. She was attended by Miss May Crichton and Miss Margaret Olsen as maids of honor, and the crowning of her majesty was one of the very pretty spectacles of the evening. The sophomore german was held Wednesday morning at Segadlo's and the senior ball was an event of Wednesday evening at the Druid Hills Golf club. The largest affair of the commencement was the Pan-Hellenic ball Thursday evening at the golf club when 400 young people assembled and danced the night through. The commencement was voted one of the most successful from every standpoint in the annals of the Georgia School of Technology.

MISS ELLEN WRIGHT WISE, of Richmond, Va., who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen, has been delightfully entertained during the past week. Tuesday afternoon she was honor guest at the 5 o'clock tea given by Mrs. Cohen at her home on Peachtree street, when the guests included the members of the unmarried set.

An effective combination of field daisies, glowing red poppies and cornflowers formed the decoration of the beautifully appointed tea table, and in the drawing room and library the same flowers were artistically arranged in vases and baskets. A stringed orchestra was stationed in the sun parlor, and Miss Mary Cohen served punch from a flower-embedded crystal bowl.

Mrs. Cohen received wearing a becoming afternoon toilet of yellow and white chiffon and the attractive honor guest wore a girlish model of white charmeuse with touches of silver on the tulle bodice.

Mrs. Lelia Lowry Freeman assisted in entertaining and wore a lovely gown of black and white striped chiffon with a black tulle hat.

Mrs. Harvey Johnson was gowned in white net and lace, and Mrs. Milton Saul's gown was fashioned of white embroidered batiste and cream lace.

The 1 o'clock luncheon at which Miss Louise Broyles entertained Wednesday was a pretty compliment to Miss Wise, and Wednesday afternoon she was the central figure in the party entertained by Mrs. Robert Alston at the tea dance at the Piedmont club. Thursday evening the debutante set was entertained at a beautiful dinner dance at the Piedmont club by Mr. Charles I. Ryan in compliment to Miss Wise, who shared honors with Mr. Ryan's pretty cousin, Miss Lucile Kuhrt. Friday afternoon Mrs. Thomas H. Morgan gave a beautiful luncheon for Miss Wise, and Saturday evening she was honor guest in Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy's party at the dinner dance at the Piedmont club.

THE marked success that attended the recent Greek play given under the auspices of the Atlanta chapter Daughters of the American Revolution by the pupils of Mrs. William Cheves Spiker on the lawn of Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, was celebrated with a tea on Wednesday afternoon, Mrs. J. M. High was hostess at her home on Peachtree road and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton, Mrs. W. C. Spiker and the young ladies who took part were the honor guests. The tea table with all its patriotic insignia was placed in the garden of the beautiful home and the many guests who called during the afternoon made a pleasing picture in their dainty summer costumes moving about the lawn. Mrs. Edward Barnes and Mrs. Charles Davis served tea and punch was served from a bowl wreathed with spring blossoms by Mrs. Whitefoord Russell and Mrs. Carpenter Jones. Mrs. John R. Roberts, who was chairman of the entertainment committee of the recent play, also assisted in entertaining. The guests included the members of the Atlanta chapter and the young girls who acted as ushers in the Greek play.

MANY informal parties were given at dinner and tea dances which marked the week end at the town and country clubs. The tea dance at the Druid Hills Golf club was well attended, a large number assembling for the informal dance in the late afternoon. Several parties were given at the East Lake Country club for visitors in the afternoon, and the dinner dance that followed was a bright event among the dancing contingent. A program of popular music marked the dinner dance at the Piedmont club. The announcement of the formal opening of the roof garden of the Capital City club, dated for Tuesday evening was a source of pleasure to many, and a number of parties are being arranged for this event and for the dances on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, which will be continued through the summer.

THE dinner given Tuesday evening by Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton at the Piedmont club was the last of a series of brilliant social events which have marked the administration of Mr. Slaton as governor of Georgia.

The officers of the governor's staff were honor guests, many coming from all parts of the state, and special guests present were Governor-elect Nat Harris and Mrs. Harris, of Macon, and ex-Governor Joseph E. Brown and Mrs. Brown, of Marietta.

The national and state insignia were effectively introduced in the elaborate decoration of the ballroom, where three long tables were arranged for the guests, numbering 200. Red, white and blue streamers hung from the white columns running the length of the hall, and suspended at intervals were baskets filled with crimson poppies, white carnations and deep blue cornflowers. Miniature cannon, muskets and little kewpie soldiers constituted the favors, and the ices and cakes represented the United States flag. Down the length of the tables were baskets and vases filled with red, white and blue flowers, and at the back of the governor's chair was a large silk flag of the state.

The interesting speeches were made by the governor and the staff members, and others responding with bright talks were Judge William T. Newman, Major A. J. West and Judge Beverly D. Evans.

As a token of the staff's regard, Colonel Frederick J. Paxon presented to Governor and Mrs. Slaton a beautiful silver dish, and later Colonel Paxon was made the recipient of a silver fruit dish as a token of the appreciation of the staff members for his untiring services.

Fifth District Rally

The last of the annual district rally meetings of the Atlanta association, will be that of the fifth district, which will be held on Tuesday, June 15, at 10:30 a. m., with the East Point Baptist church.

An interesting program has been arranged by the district secretary, Mrs. W. A. Hartman. It is hoped that every Baptist church in the Atlanta association will be represented in the attendance of this meeting, and to all a most urgent invitation is given.

Mrs. W. J. Neel, of Cartersville, state president W. B. M. U., is to have a part in the day's program.

To Miss Marks

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Regenstein will entertain at an informal dancing party Tuesday evening, June 22, at their home on Peachtree road, in compliment to Miss Lillian Marks, of Kansas.

The Wedding Gown

The fairies weaves them wondrous robes
From dews and dawns of Spring;
But this I make for my Love's sake
Shall be a fairer thing.
For I shall border it with bliss
And dreams as white as dawn—
Oh, little dress of happiness
That is my wedding gown.

Ah, queens who walk in cloth of gold
May well its beauty prize;
But far more bright these folds of white
Shall shine in my love's eyes.
For I shall jewel it with joy
That never queen may crown—
Oh, little dress of happiness,
That is my wedding gown.

Vacations For American Chilaren

In the July issue of the Mothers' Magazine, a series of timely articles appear from leading American writers on the subject of the summer vacation in its relation to parent, child and teacher. The community vacation is a comparatively new idea, but illustrates the power of concerted action between parent and teacher.

In "The Home and School," a department of child training conducted by Professor M. V. O'Shea of the University of Wisconsin, Professor O'Shea discusses the following points: Our Blase Children. The Problem of Textbooks, and The Problem of Vacation. Concerning the first topic he warns his readers that "the young in America are going the pace. The speed mania, dissipations and distractions, over-stimulation of the emotions, and consequent overtaxing of the nervous system and vital forces, are doing great harm. The evil results can be seen in the homes, in the schools, on the street, in places of amusement and wherever the young are found. The drift of people toward towns and cities has made life more complex, and our children are getting the wrong attitude toward simple and wholesome and enduring things of life. Craving for excitement and diversion overshadows and makes unattractive both the homes and the school in the minds of too many typical children. They become indifferent to their studies and even openly antagonistic to school work. They detest and scoff at their teachers, and assume the same attitude toward their parents and their home life.

"Parents and teachers must unite to reduce distracting influences to a minimum and create such habits and conditions of child life as are favorable to the cultivation of power of concentration. The movement toward community action in these matters is already under way. In certain Michigan communities parents and teachers have agreed that all pupils shall devote certain hours to home study, and that during these hours children shall not be molested. There are no telephone calls for them, and no signals from the street. The children are left to apply themselves uninterruptedly to the tasks in hand for study. A state-wide movement of this sort is under way in Wisconsin, where 6,000 teachers at the last state convention passed strong resolutions urging agreement among parents in every community to restrict dancing, theater-going and other amusements uniformly; to provide home facilities for study and reading, and to establish certain regular evening study hours, during which all children shall study at home without interference."

Child's Share in Molding the Home.

Laura Spencer Portor writes in The Mother's Magazine with vigor and originality on the subject of the "Child in the Home."

"There is a great deal said," says Mrs. Portor, "about making the home suitable and happy for the child; too little said, I think, of the child's share in molding the home to suitability and happiness.

"Home is primarily, or should be, a place of caring and sharing, but one would think we had forgotten all that. I have visited in homes which could hardly be called homes at all, so much were they nurseries; houses in which all serious and important adult thought, consideration, speculation and mutual adult service to the world were rendered practically impossible by the overwhelming preponderance of the child's demands on the attention.

"A real home is not a place of mere material comfort—it is a wholly spiritual ideal. The child's own relation to the home is an entirely spiritual thing. Here is an ideal government, a republic to which is his privilege to be devoted and loyal. Here shall he be neither despot nor slave; but, with the other members of that home, he shall be equal in his rights, proud in his privileges and possessions, eager in his responsibilities, happy in his tasks."

"Ever since my children were small and began to go to school, I have looked on the summer vacation as a time to get acquainted with my girls and the boy. During the school months I am so busy making their clothes, and helping them to learn their lessons, and seeing to their diet that I am apt to lose sight of their individualities. When summer comes I put the matter of clothes and lessons quite out of my mind. I discover that my Nell, who has been 'passed into the literature course at school, is no longer a literary young lady, but a little housekeeper. She wants to experiment in the making of dainty desserts and in rearranging our home furniture. I discover, also, that Marjorie wants to get back to Nature, loathes the pretty clothes she has worn to school all winter, and wants to explore the woods and fields. As for Alec, I completely rediscover him. I find that he has finer sensibilities and more heart throbs than either of my girls. He wants to confide in me, to be with me a good deal, to be advised as to his reading. Why, the summer vacation is my harvest time, as far as the children are concerned."

To Celebrate Flag Day Monday

FLAG Day will be appropriately and beautifully celebrated by the Joseph Habersham Chapter, D. A. R., at the Piedmont Driving club on Monday, June 14, at 4 o'clock.

The Marist College band will furnish inspiring music for the occasion and there will be an interesting address by Mr. Eugene Black, his subject being "The Flag."

A number of Atlanta young matrons and girls will serve punch and assist in entertaining the guests. Among them are Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Mrs. George Adair, Mrs. Stuart Witham, Mrs. Milton Dargan, Jr., Mrs. Hamilton Block, Mrs. William Tilt, Mrs. W. S. Shallenberger, Mrs. Edward H. Inman, Mrs. Phinzy Calhoun, Mrs. Ben Lee Crew, Mrs. Phillips McDuffie, Mrs. H. R. O'Dell, Mrs. Ronald Ransom, Mrs. W. H. Rhett, Mrs. Arthur Wilson, Jr., Mrs. Clarence Haverty, Mrs. Charles Remsen, Miss Marion Perdue, Miss Niles and Miss Griffith.

All Daughters of the American Revolution, the Uncle Remus association and the United Daughters of the Confederacy are cordially invited to participate in this tribute to Old Glory.

Moore-Merrill Wedding Plans

The marriage of Miss Bertha Moore and Mr. William Hoadley Merrill, of Eufaula, Ala., will be an interesting event of Tuesday evening, June 22.

The Rev. Wyatt Brown, of Asheville, a former college mate of Mr. Merrill, will perform the ceremony, assisted by Rev. Arthur Hale Gordon, of the Ponce de Leon Baptist church.

Mrs. I. S. Mitchell will be the matron of honor, Miss Margaret McKee will be the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids will include Miss Mary Brown, Miss Dolly Prioleau, Miss Virginia Lipscomb, Miss Helen McCarty, Miss Teresa Merrill, Miss Lila Merrill, Miss Elmira Roberts and Miss Laura Jennings, of Eufaula, Ala., and Miss Edith McKenzie, of Montezuma.

Little Miss Bessie Mitchell will be trainbearer, and Master Thomas Wharton, of Raleigh, and Master Wilmer Moore, Jr., will be ribbon bearers.

Miss May Crichton, Miss Louise Broyles, Miss Mamie Ansley and Miss Margaret McCarty will serve punch.

Silver Wedding Celebration

The reception given by Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Dobbs Friday evening at their home in Druid Hills was in celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Miss Mildred Dobbs, and Mr. Candler Dobbs assisted in receiving.

White roses, sweet peas and ferns formed the artistic decoration of the rooms where the guests assembled and the centerpiece of the dining room table was a pyramid of Valley Hillies and roses, encircled by handsome silver candle sticks, holding tapers decorated with silver flowers.

Mrs. Dobbs wore white satin combined with silver lace and Miss Dobbs was gowned in pink taffeta and chiffon.

Miss Lucile Goodrich, Miss Emma Goodrich, Miss Martha Smith, Miss Lois Pattillo and Miss Marjorie Weldon served punch.

Assisting in entertaining were Miss Lena Johnson, Mrs. Frank Weldon, Mrs. Julian Chase, Mrs. L. F. Bellinger, Mrs. Warren A. Candler, Mrs. Howard Candler, Mrs. W. O. Foote, Mrs. Marshall Holsenbeck, Mrs. George Andrews, Mrs. Henry Ittner, Mrs. A. B. Kiser, Mrs. Francis Storrs, Mrs. J. B. Smith, Mrs. A. B. Kiser and Mrs. John S. Candler.

Open Event Is Forecast For Title Tourney

By Innis Brown

"From where I sit, this looks like the most open proposition I have ever seen in the way of a southern championship tournament."

Such was the observation of a local golfer, who has been attending tournaments deciding the golfing title in Dixie so long that he can almost call off the winners and runners-up from the first, to say nothing of relating funny episodes connected with the big annual events from year to year. Following out his contention, he reasoned somewhat after the following line:

"In the first place, Nelson Whitney, the present title holder, and beyond doubt the best man in the south in big match play, as is shown by the fact that he has annexed the title four times, will not be here. At least, he is not expected, and if he eventually changes his mind and comes along, his decision will come as a surprise in view of recent happenings. Whitney had not intended to enter the tournament this year, but had planned to go to Memphis for the Trans-Mississippi tourney. However, he was hit in the eye by a ball driven on the course at New Orleans a few days before the big event, and was forced to stay out.

"Furthermore, of the strong contestants last season, besides Whitney, several are not expected to enter this year. Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, who was always a man to be reckoned with, has moved his residence from the Texas city to New York, and no intimation that he will play here has been received at all. George Rotan, of Waco, holder of the Texas title, which he successfully defended a few weeks ago, it is understood, will not enter. Rotan had planned to play at Memphis, but personal matters prevented him from doing so. It is not thought likely that he will come to Atlanta for the coming event here this week.

"This, you see, cuts out three of the most prominent exponents of the game in the south. Of course, this does not mean to say that there are not a number of good ones left, nor yet that play in this tournament will be of a noticeably lower grade. On the other hand, indications are that the uncertainty caused by the dropping out of the above trio will add especial interest here, and that the tournament will produce some great matches and fine scores."

This is the prospect which one of the most prominent of the local golfing colony holds. An open event, with the chances that competition will be keen, and that any one of a number of entrants may prove the winner. In fact, when pushed for a choice for probable winner he politely declined to offer a selection.

A general feeling prevails among local followers of the game that an Atlanta entry may cop the title this year. There are several local players who are figured to carry a good chance. Chief among these, of course, is Perry Adair. Perry is a logical choice for more than one reason. First, he was the runner-up last season to Whitney, and in working his way into the final round he defeated some of the finest players in the south. But this is not all. Perry has been playing in fine form this spring. He is older and stronger than he was last year, and furthermore has profited by his experience in the big event at Memphis. He compares favorably with any player in the south for distance from the tee, handles his irons well, is an adept at approaches, and putts with the best of them. Surely if he plays up to his best form he will prove a strong contender.

But Perry Adair is not the only hope of the local entry. Another youth who has shown remarkable class is R. T. Jones, Jr. Little Bob is putting up a great game just now. He had his 80 for a round at East Lake a day or so ago, and is making the course regularly in one or two strokes over that figure, and that, too, with it stretched to its greatest length, the full course over which the championship event will be played.

In addition to this pair of youngsters there are several others who are figured to have a good chance. George Adair, A. Davidson and C. T. Dunham are the "5" men of local clubs, who are expected to make good showings. All three of these are going strong just now, and friends of each are claiming that they will show the cracks of Dixie something when match play begins. Others who are regarded as strong entries, with handicaps but little higher, are Clarence Knowles, Clark Donaldson, Lewis Arnold, Douglas Arnold, C. W. Rainwater, W. R. Tichenor, Milton Darnell, Jr., C. M. Sciple and R. B. Blanton. In the local clubs these are rated anywhere from 6 to 12, and with handicaps and either of the lot is regarded as a strong possibility to figure in the running right on down through the elimination rounds.

There is a tendency here to figure New Orleans as the entry that the local bunch will have to beat for the title. Reuben G. Rush, Jr., is the man being selected by New Orleans experts as the one most likely to retain the trophy now held by Whitney in the Louisiana city. Without doubt Bush is one of the finest golfers in the south. He has played brilliantly in a number of different tournaments, but has never yet won the title. Twice he has been runner-up. He lost to Byrd when the tournament was last held here in 1910, and again to Stewart in Nashville the following year in the final match. This spring he defeated Whitney for the championship of the Audubon club in New Orleans. He reached the semi-finals in the tournament which has just ended at Memphis, and was put in that round by Swift, a crack player of St. Joseph, Mo.

But Bush is not the only dependence of the Crescent City by any means. According to a late announcement W. P. Stewart and Leigh Carroll have decided to enter here. Stewart won the title in 1911 and 1912, defeating Whitney in the final round in the latter year. He is one of the best New Orleans has to offer, and strong faith is placed in him by the New Orleans delegation. Carroll is also figured strongly, as are Aldredge, Bowden, White and others.

In addition to Stewart, one other former title holder is expected to enter. He is J. P. Edrington, the Memphis star. Edrington won in 1909 and has figured prominently in several other tourneys. He is hardly as brilliant a player as some of the others, but he is a fighter, and a tough man to meet in match play. Others who are considered contenders from Memphis are Wick Richardson, D. S. Weaver, J. W. S. Rhea, J. A. Evans, Jr., A. K. and W. D. Mallory. Evans reached the semi-finals at Memphis a few days since, while A. H. Mallory and Weaver went through their first three matches undefeated.

Besides the above, Nashville, Birmingham, Knoxville, Montgomery, Macon and Jacksonville are expected to send one or more players who are considered as having a look in for the title. From Nashville will come Frank Stahlman and Clark; from Chattanooga, the Watkins brothers, Scott Probasco and others; from Knoxville, McGee Tyson and McGee Baxter; from Birmingham, R. H. Baugh, H. G. Seibles, Walker Percy and others; from Macon, Jack Selden, William Gunn, Eden Taylor, Chester Jones; from Jacksonville, A. C. Ulmer, and frfom Augusta, Ike Reed. These are, of course, only a few of the better known players representing the cities, and it is expected that from five to fifteen will enter from the various cities.

It was a matter of considerable disappointment that young Simpson Dean, of Rome, could not get here for this tournament. This youngster qualified at Memphis last season, but had the misfortune to draw George Rotan for his first match and was beaten by the Texas champion. This spring playing for his school team at Wykagyl he was runner up to young Fillmore Robeson, who had the distinction of defeating champion Ouimet at Pinehurst a short time before in the North and South tournament. Dean was unable to get away from his school duties and will not reach home until Saturday.

It is expected that more than two hundred will play in the qualifying round, including local players. There is no way of determining in advance what out-of-town players will be here, but a conservative estimate places the number at about one hundred or possibly more. Of the local colony 118 are qualified to play according to the plan adopted of letting in all players whose handicap is as low as 18. It is expected that about a hundred will enter.

Cup and Prominent Contestants for Southern Golf Championship Tournament at East Lake This Week

Excellent Program for Golfers Here This Week

Beginning Tuesday of this week, Atlanta will see for five days the most absorbing golfing activities that it has known in many a day if indeed such a variety of Scotia's ancient pastime has ever been staged in this vicinity before since first the game began to take hold here. First and foremost, of course will be the Southern Championship tournament, for which the qualifying round will be played over the East Lake course beginning Tuesday morning. Beside this event is the invitation tourney at Druid Hills, and the ladies' tourney at Brookhaven.

According to announcement by the committee in charge, the links at East Lake have received their final touches, until President H. F. Smith arrives to take charge of things. The head of the Southern Golf association will, no doubt, have a few recommendations concerning the course, after he has had a chance to go over it, and make an inspection. President Smith is expected here today.

Though none had been reported, it is probable that several visitors who propose to enter the tournament reached the city last night. Several players from Texas and Louisiana and Memphis who took part in the Trans-Mississippi tournament which was finished in Memphis Saturday had announced their intentions of competing here, and many of them were expected to come direct from the Memphis contest to Atlanta.

In order therefore, to enable visitors to play over the course with as little interference as possible, the golf committee at East Lake has announced that the course will be closed Monday to such golfers as are ineligible for the tourney under their club handicaps. Only those with an allowance no higher than 18 will be permitted to come in. So after today other club members are asked to resist the temptation to hit the ball a bit.

According to arrangement, entrants may select their partners for the qualifying round, provided they do not choose members of their own club. In case no selection is made the tournament committee will make the selection itself. Those who make their own selections are requested to turn their names over to Stewart Maiden at East Lake.

An effort will be made to announce pairings for the qualifying round in time to allow the list to be posted at the club house Monday evening. In case, however, this can not be done the list will be announced early Tuesday morning, and entrants will find it necessary to acquaint themselves with their partners as well as the time set for them to begin play. The invitation tournament at Druid Hills has been arranged for the benefit of those who fail to qualify with the sixty-four in the championship play. These will be arranged in flights according to their medal scores for the round at East Lake.

With the large field that will play during the week at East Lake and another equally as large at Druid Hills, the golf committees of the two clubs have closed the courses to ladies for the period of time covered by the two tournaments. Accordingly the Capital City club has announced a tournament for ladies for the week over the Brookhaven course. Arrangements for the tourney has been turned over to a committee composed of Mrs. S. P. Tilt, Mrs. Edwin Johnson and Mrs. Albert Thornton. In all probability there will be a number of visiting lady golfers in the city during the week and with local talent included a big field will no doubt enter the competition.

Anticipating that a large number of local enthusiasts who are not members of the Athletic club will desire to see all, or at least a part of the matches for the championship at East Lake, the Atlanta Athletic club has issued an invitation to the members of the Capital City, the Druid Hills Golf and Piedmont Driving clubs to visit the course and country club as their guests for the time given over to the big event.

With the above golfing events on the calendar for the weeks, it would appear that about every one who gives any time to the game will be afforded a chance to get into a tournament somewhere. Something like 118 local players are eligible to play in the qualifying ground for the championship contest.

Following is the list of eligibles among local talent:

G. W. Adair, Lowry Arnold, Frank Adair, Forrest Adair, Jr., Perry Adair, W. Alfriend, W. Allen, G. B. Allen, A. S. Adams, C. Atchison, C. Angier, Robin Adair.

Swift Defeats Legg for Title

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 12.—Alden B. Swift, of the St. Joseph (Mo.) Country club, today won the title of champion of the 1915 tournament of the trans-Mississippi Golf association, defeating Harry G. Legg, of the Minikahda Golf club, Minneapolis, on the 33d green of the finals, 5 up and 3 to play.

W. D. Mallory, of Memphis, won the championship consolation cup by defeating John D. Cady, of Rock Island, Ill., who last year won the trans-Mississippi championship, 1 up in today's finals match.

Swift won his victory over Legg, four times winner of the championship and five times medalist, in the afternoon round. At the end of the morning 18-hole play the match was square. Swift gained an advantage of two holes on the out journey of the afternoon and after he had added two other holes to his card, Legg conceded him the 33d hole, four strokes to five, with Swift's ball lying four feet from the cup, ending the match and the tournament.

Dickey Trophy Won by Rivers

E. Rivers proved the winner of the James L. Dickey trophy tournament over the Brookhaven golf course, which came to an end Saturday afternoon. He landed the handsome trophy offered, after defeating E. H. Inman in the final match by a score of 10 up and 9 to go, in a 36-hole match.

James R. Gray, Jr. defeated C. H. Cox 1 up for the second flight cup. James L. Dickey was awarded the third flight cup, when Captain G. H. Johnson defaulted in the final match. Dr. W. S. Elkin won the fourth flight cup by defeating L. D. T. Quimby, 2-2, in the final match. Major John S. Cohen captured the cup in the fifth flight by winning over Eugene Dickey, 1 up.

Joel Hurt Wins Gun Club Shoot

At the weekly shoot of the Gate City Gun club held Saturday at their range near Brookwood, Joel Hurt, Jr., won the prize, a safety razor; he broke 44 out of 50. J. O. Cochran was second high gun with 41, while W. J. Timms scored 40, all at a handicap distance of 21 yards.

The scores for the regular 15 yards shoot were: Brad Timms 45; Dr. J. C. Wright, 44; J. H. Fuller, 43; Joel Hurt, Jr., 43; J. D. Allen, 43; J. W. Ware, 42; Frank Inman, 40; J. O. Cochran, 40; Dr. Bucknell, 38; W. J. Timms, 38; J. H. O'Dell, 37; W. J. Stoddard, 37.

Julian Prade, a professional, broke 46 out of the 50 targets.

Several members of the club will leave for Greenwood, S. C., Monday to participate in the South Carolina state shoot to be held there Tuesday and Wednesday with 250 birds each day. They are Dr. Wright, and Messrs. Fuller, Stoddard, Cochran, Timms and son.

Errors in Second Give Pelicans Winning Lead

Dobbs Crew Score 3 Runs on a Combination of 3 Hits and 3 Bobbles by Smithmen, Rally in Ninth Scores 2 and Saves Shut-Out

NEW ORLEANS, June 12.—Pitcher Buck Weaver, the choice of Manager Dobbs in the second game of the series with the Crackers, hurled an excellent game of ball here this afternoon and won. The score was 4 to 2.

On a basis of hits allowed, Weaver had a wide edge over Hiett, who opposed him for the Crackers, yet under somewhat different conditions, he might have suffered the fate handed out to Kelly, Bill Smith's young southpaw, who held the Pelicans hitless for seven innings Friday, only to have them score 4 runs on him and win out in the eighth. Weaver deserved to win, no doubt, but he did not deserve to win in the way he did.

There was no criticism of Weaver's pitching, however. The fault in the matter lay in the abandon with which the Crackers made errors behind Hiett, thereby making it easy for Weaver. Had the visitors accorded their hurler clean support, he would have forced the local finger to the limit, despite the margin which the latter carried in the matter of hits allowed.

Furthermore, the Crackers committed their miscues in a bunch in the early stages of the game, at a time when their ragged work was enough to discourage their flingers. It was in the second round that they chucked away their chances. With one out, Higgins singled to left. Lee juggled the ball long enough to permit him to take second. Korfhagen threw high to Eibel on Pezold's grounder, and the batter was safe, while Higgins reached third. Thomas singled to center, scoring Higgins. Moran threw high to third, trying to cut off Pezold, and the latter scored. Thomas reached third and scored on Knaupp's fly to Lee.

The home boys counted another in the eighth. Knaupp led off with a double to left. He advanced to third on Weaver's hoist to Moran, and scored, while Hiett was chucking Hendryx out to Eibel.

The Crackers partially repeated the stunt pulled by the Pelicans in the ninth, but fell short of tying the score. Moran doubled, after Jenkins, batting for Hiett, had drawn a pass, and the pinch-hitter counted. Moran raced to third on the throw to catch Jenkins at the plate, and scored when Williams lifted a fly to Hendryx. Weaver checked the rally by retiring Manning and Lee in order.

In the sixth inning Manager Smith took exception to a ruling by Umpire Chestnutt in the sixth, and after he had prolonged his call of the arbiter, he was banished from the park, being escorted out by the police.

The two teams meet in the third game today. Either Perry or Allen will take the mound for the Crackers, while Manager Dobbs plans to use Clarence Smith.

Foreign Star Wins at Tennis

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Miss Molla Bjurstedt, the young Norwegian star, won the national lawn tennis championship today in singles, defeating Mrs. George Wightman, Longwood Cricket club, of Boston. Scores: 3-6, 6-2, 6-0.

Miss Bjurstedt's victory marks the first time that the title has gone to a foreign player. It was the second national title for a Norwegian, for she won the indoor tennis championship early this year.

Her defeated opponent held the national title in 1909, 1910 and 1911. The championship was won last year by Miss Mary Browne, of California, who did not come east to defend her title.

In the tournament Miss Bjurstedt represented the West Side Tennis club, of New York. Therefore the Wissachicken cup, at least, does not leave the United States.

After winning premier honors in singles, Miss Bjurstedt paired with Irving C. Wright, of Boston, essayed to win the national championship in doubles, but went down to defeat before Mrs. Wightman and Harry C. Johnson, also of Boston, 6-0, 6-1.

Yale Nine Defeats Tigers

PRINCETON, June 12.—The Yale team cast a gloom over Princeton commencement galeties today by taking the annual baseball game, 2 to 1. The winning run was made in the sixth when Middlebrooks singled, was sacrificed to second and scored when Douglas threw wild to catch him at third.

McCormick's Single in Twelfth Defeats the Vols -- Chicks Slaughter Travelers--Barons Win

Chicks 10, Travelers 0

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 12.—Day was ineffective today, allowing the locals fifteen hits and the game, 10 to 0. Dunckel, Memphis, first baseman, was credited with twenty putouts. Errors by Little Rock were numerous. Baker and Murray collided with each other in the first inning in an attempt to catch Allison's fly and both were rendered unconscious for several minutes. In the second inning Gibson hit Downey in the eye with the ball and the latter forced the shortstop to leave the game.

A SLUGGER OF THE OLD SCHOOL

Before the late Harry Pulliam, former president of the National league, died, they used to tell a story of how he employed a bit of strategy one spring to induce the great Hans Wagner to sign a Pittsburg contract, after the Flying Dutchman had announced that he would retire from the game. As the story goes, Pulliam approached Wagner, by asking him why he supposed Pittsburg fans journeyed out to Forbes field when the Pirates were playing ball at home.

"Why, to see the team play ball," was Wagner's reply.

"Not at all, "chirped Pulliam. 'They go out to see Wagner hit the ball!"

"Give me those papers," was Honus answer.

By enlarging the scope so as to include not only Wagner, but the other star hitters of the game, President Pulliam might have widened the range of his claim by stating that the same reason impels fans the country over to go to ball games—to see their favorites hit the ball. It is hitting that enlivens the sport of baseball for the multitudes.

You will hear any number of fans claim that they do not care to see a club knock the ball all over the lot. But if you will stop to think, in about nineteen cases out of twenty, such a remark has been dropped after a visiting club has jarred the local hurler clear alonse from his family traditions with its clubbing.

True, some few fans claim to take real enjoyment from watching the skillful manipulation of real inside play on the diamond, and others profess to enjoy a keen battle between star hurlers. But they form a small percentage. A large majority of the gang want to see hitting; hitting by the home club if possible, and if not, by the other fellows.

When the game was growing into its present popularity ten or fifteen and even twenty years ago, it was the heavy clubbing of men like Ed Delehanty, Dan Brouthers, Cap Anson and a score of others that made the red blood tingle. These old war horses may have been rather slow of foot, and not especially brilliant in their fielding work, but they could lambast that baseball for doubles, triples and homers galore.

There aren't a great many of the present generation who have acquired this habit of tearing the cover off the ball, and the generation of stars just coming into their own includes just one or two here and there. The batting game is too highly esteemed in many quarters to give the bunch as much opportunity as they had of yore for mauling the ball.

But there are still a few great wallopers, and among the youngsters, too. Chief of these is Vic Saier, the first sacker for the Cubs. Vic is the successor to Frank Chance on the first bag for the Bruins, and if he lacks anything in the finished fielding of Husk, he makes up for it with his mighty mauling.

Saier is leading the batters of the National league by a city block in extra base hitting. It is a rare thing for the summary of a game played by the Cubs to fail to show where Vic has punched out a double or triple or homer. Others may lead him in either one of the three, but when it comes to an aggregate on the trio, you'll find Victor out there in the lead with an aggregate that would compare favorably with Brouthers, Delehanty, Thompson and others of the old school.

Athletics Win In Long Battle

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Detroit and Philadelphia struggled for thirteen innings today before the home team won the game, 7 to 6. The winning run was made on a muff by Crawford, Wyckoff's single and Vitt's fumble of Thompson's grounder. Shawkey and Dubuc, who started the game, were both hit hard, the former being taken out of the game after two innings and Dubuc being relieved during the fifth inning. Their places were taken by Wyckoff and Steen, each of whom did excellent work. The contest was featured by Cobb's stealing of four bases, Crawford's home run and the brilliant fielding of McInnis, Malone, Barry, Kavanaugh and Bush. Cobb was presented with a hunting gun by local admirers.

Bernhard Gets Job as Umpire

President R. H. Baugh announced today that Bill Bernhard had been appointed an umpire in the Southern league. Bernhard will fill the vacancy caused by the release of Stradford, who was turned out a few days ago. The new arbiter will begin his duties next week.

Bernhard is a former big league star. He was at one time a member of the Philadelphia Nationals and spent his last years as a big leaguer with the Cleveland American league club. He took charge of the Nashville Vols in 1908 after they had finished last the preceding season, and landed them on top in a great finish his first year, nosing out New Orleans in the final series of the season.

After he severed connections with the Vols he took charge of the Memphis club. However, he did not have the success that attended his efforts at Nashville, and was released at the end of the 1913 season. He spent a part of last season with the Salt Lake City team in the Union association, which did not play out its schedule. This spring he helped Manager Harry McCormick in working out his pitchers. Bernhard was popular as a player and manager, and it is believed he will make a satisfactory umpire.

Favorite Wins Latonia Derby

CINCINNATI, June 12.—Royal II, an English-bred colt, owned by Jefferson Livingston, won the thirty-second Latonia derby today by a full length, going away. Tetan, pacemaker until the closing sixteenth, was second, a length in front of Dortch.

The race was worth $10,125 to the winner, and he paid $4.80 for a $2 ticket in the pari-mutuel betting.

Royal II, bay son of Your Majesty-Lady Ethel, was off well to a perfect start. When straightened out on the back stretch Jockey Ganz let out a few wraps; Royal II responded and gradually closed in on his field. Ganz worked him into third position; then, at the mile and a quarter, Goose, on Tetan, noted that Royal II was on his horse's withers.

A stirring contest for supremacy followed, but the gameness of the English colt was not to be denied, and the horses passed the final eighth pole nose to nose, with the stout-hearted Dortch only a head behind. Gradually Royal II pushed forward, and at the final sixteenth pole was in a commanding position, and won, hand ridden, by a scant length from the tiring Tetan.

Royal II was betting favorite with Emerson Cothran a second choice. Cochran finished last. Tetan paid $22.30 for a two dollar ticket to place, and $4.40 for a one dollar ticket for show. Dortch paid $4.80 for a $2 ticket for show.

Phillies Grab Lead From Cubs

Mayer Blanks Opponents, Cardinals Trim Giants, Braves and Reds Win

CHICAGO, June 12.—For the second time in the series, Philadelphia today deposed Chicago from the lead in the race, when they won the odd game in a one-sided batting bee and shut out the locals 13 to 0.

Mayer pitched in fine form, allowing Chicago but two hits, which came in the second and ninth innings, and were made by Sair and Fisher.

After the visitors had taken a comfortable lead, the game resolved itself into a farce. Pierce, Zabel and Standridge pitched for Chicago and were hit hard. Score by innings: R. H. E.

Tiptops Win in Shutout Game

Newark Blanked by Magee's Team--Terrapins Beat Buffeds-Tux and Kawfeds Are Winners

BROOKLYN, N. Y., June 12.—Cooper's double and Kauff's single scored the only run of today's game between Brooklyn and Newark today, giving the locals a 1 to 0 victory. It was a splendid pitchers' battle with Moran allowing fewer hits than Upham. The Brooklyn twirler twice walked Scheer to get Laporte and the scheme worked nicely. Newark had ten men left on bases.

Crackers End Long Trip With Monday's Game

Team Opens at Ponce de Leon Tuesday for Eight Games Against Gulls and Barons. Changes Are Likely by Time Team Takes Road Again

By Innis Brown

With two more games remaining before them the crackers will soon be headed home after a jaunt of twenty days through hostile territory. Their present meanderings have carried them to the three Tennessee strongholds, the Arkansas capital and the citadel garrisoned by the Pelicans. Chattanooga, Nashville, Little Rock, Memphis have been invaded in the order named.

While the bravery of the locals in bucking so much stiff opposition away from home in a row may be lauded, albeit was no matter of choice with them, the record achieved in the undertaking is not such as to call for any of the loud hip-hip-hooray stuff. At the same time their showing is not what would be considered humiliating. Barring what returns of the two approaching battles may be, the Smithies have banked seven contests against ten which went by the boards. They grabbed three in four from the Lookouts and reduced their showing to an even break by dropping three of four to the Vols. An even break with the Travelers still left them with a fifty-fifty standing on the trip through that engagement. However, they were hooked in three of the four starts against the Chicks, and began by dropping the first to the Pelicans.

The approaching return of the locals to home soil will not mean a very long stay around their own firesides. Eight games are carded here, including four with the Gulls, beginning on Tuesday, and four with the Barons. After that stretch they hit the road again for a similar stay in the home towns of these two teams, in the same sequence. Then comes a siege here at home that lasts something like three weeks.

By the time this long stadd has been made here at home the tale of the Crackers for the 1915 pennant race will have been well nigh told. As yet the outfit has failed to show enough to make them formidable contenders, but neither have they sunk into absolute oblivion. So long as they stick along where they are now, while the rest of the field is struggling along in little better than an even break for some and a corresponding deficit from a fifty-fifty showing for others, the gang still carries a chance to edge up into the thick of the fray, and spring a heated spurt down the stretch in time to make the going very interesting for the others.

However, if any moves are to be made toward strengthening, they will have to be made in time to get benefits from the change, if any are forthcoming, by the time they start their last stand here, along about the first of July.

No positive information can be handed out, but there is a strong belief that a decided change in the personnel of the club is going to be made shortly. Directors of the club will not make any positive statement of just what is in prospect, but here and there a remark is dropped that leads to the belief that there is something in the air, likely to drop, and that by the time the team is ready to break away from the home port in something like two weeks from now, for the visit to Mobile and Birmingham.

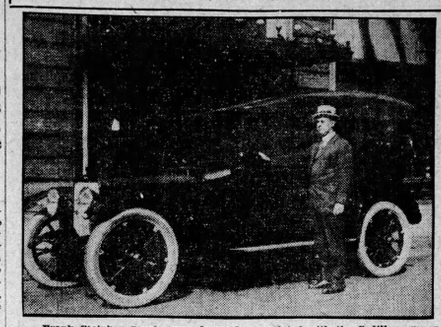

For one thing, Frank Hunt the Mercer hurling star will join the club when it returns here. Hunt has already come to terms, and whether or not he has actually stuck his name to a contact he will be here when the gang returns, ready to don a uniform and show Manager Smith just what he carries in the way of pitching wares.

The other changes that appear probable concern the infield. It begins to look very much like Hack Eibel is going to run through the season with his walloping stick about as useful as a three-tined fork at the soup course of a nine round feast. It is almost incredible that as good a hitter as Eibel was last season should prove such a weak staff this year, but figures don't lie, 'tis said, no mater however much they may at times be inclined to do a little practical joking.

Furthermore, it yet remains to be seen, whether young Korfhagen is going to do any hitting to speak of. The youngster appears to be all right on his fielding as far as you can gather from returns launched several hundred miles away. But he has yet to break into the hit column, in tabulated story of the daily games, in his two times out. However, local fans may recall that Billy Lee appeared to be a flaming bloomer in the first few games he participated in on the road, after joining the club on one of its pilgrimages. But after the gang got back here, the kid began to pound the ball hard, and he has continued on up until the present. It is hardly to be expected, but it goes without saying that if Herr Korfhagen can show the same skill with his bludgeon that B. Lee has been displaying for the past month and more, then he has residence assured here so long as he cares to hang around in these parts.

From the above it may gathered that some three changes are possible in the personnel of the club within the next week or ten days. Hunt is coming for a try out and he may show enough to displace somebody now with the club. Korfhagen has yet to be given full opportunity to show whether he will do, and there is some room for speculation on the situation at first. A little of the 'watchful waiting" stuff for the next few days, however, is the best that can be done under the circumstances.

SELLING CHANDLERS

Frank Steinhauer, who was formerly associated with the Cadillac agency in this city, has joined forces with the John M. Smith Company, and will have charge of retail sales on Chandlers in the city. This is a new model of this popular car.

Bell Boys Beaten By Georgia Power Nine

The double-header which was scheduled for Ponce de Leon park Saturday afternoon turned out to be a game affair when the second was called on account of rain. The opener was won by the Georgia Railway nine over the Southern Bell boys by the count of 6 to 1. Driver of the Power team hurled splendid ball, outclassing Jim Senter, famous Tech baseballer.

This game decided the leadership of the Electric league, both teams being tied until Saturday. The Georgia Railway squad has won eight straight games.

Will Dedicate New Speedway

CHICAGO, June 12.—Chicago will dedicate its new motor speedway next Saturday with a 500-mile race in which some of the fastest cars and most skillful drivers in the world are entered.

Trial heats Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week are expected to reduce the number of competitors to the limit of twenty-seven.

The track is an oval course two miles in length. The cars will run on what is technically known as a laminated wooden flooring, the surface material being "two-by-fours." Thirty-foot embankments have been placed at the turns.

Provision has been made for about 250,000 spectators.

Five hospitals have been built for emergencies, one at the pits and the others at the turns.

Fast time has been made on the track, which was completed this week, and followers of the sport predict broken records. A speed of 109.09 miles an hour is credited to Earl Cooper in a practice spin on the course.

Professional Coaches May Go at Harvard

BOSTON, June 12.—There has been a feeling against professional coaches at Harvard. This does not exist so much among the undergraduates as in the graduate circles. Harvard men feel that all athletic activities should be under the direct supervision of graduate coaches. Haughton, the football coach, is a Harvard man, and there was never any objection made against him.

James Wray, the crew coach, and Pooch Donovan, the track man, have always been regarded as outsiders, because neither of them are Harvard men. Notwithstanding the victories of both, the graduates would much rather see Harvard men in charge. They declare that a victory is not the most essential thing in the world.

Wray has had trouble before with crew captains, who did not like to take orders from him. The graduates showed their view of the situation the other evening when they gave a banquet to the victorious varsity crew on their return from Ithaca, and did not invite Wray. It is rumored that within a few years all "pro" coaches will be barred.

Harding Fired; Harkins Signed

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., July 12.—Harkins, the Mobile southpaw, was signed by the Lookouts tonight. Harding was released to Shreveport to make room for the new portsider. Although he pitched good ball for the Lookouts last year Harding has shown poor form all the present season.

Dorando in Army

MILAN, June 12.—Dorando Pietrio, who won world renown as a Marathoner, has enlisted with the automobile corps of the Italian army.

Dorando visited the United States in 1911 and toured the country, pacing against professional and amateur long distance runners. One of his most notable races was against Johnny Hayes at San Francisco, January 31, 1911. Dorando defeated Hayes, going the full Marathon distance in 2 hours 41 minutes 35 seconds.

Cutting Gets S. O. S.

MILWAUKEE, June 12.—A Macedonian cry has been sent to Ralph Cutting in Manchester, N. H. to come back to Milwaukee and help the two-time champs in their battle against the jinx. There are only three pitchers ready for work, one having smallpox, another a sick wife and a third a sore arm, while the other three are in none too good shape.

Sickness Plays Havoc in Ranks Of Moley's Club

Grimes, McBride and Clark Recently Forced Out of Line Up Through Physical Ailments, Baron Manager Declines, However, to Seek Outside Help

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 12.—The mumps, sprained shoulders and things of similar ilk have rendered the Barons unfit for play during the past week and this partly accounts for the slump that Manager Molesworth's marauders have undergone since bidding good-by to the faithful fans of Birmingham and invading foreign fields.

Another thing that has worked against the Slagvillians' chance of winning is the fact that every other club in the league with the possible exception of New Orleans has strengthened since the season started. Now with the 1915 struggle well under way, it can be seen that other clubs by ransacking their strong boxes and purchasing new material, have suddenly become pennant factors. No club, unless it be Mobile, is hopelessly out of the race.

But summing the whole thing up in a nutshell, hard luck has camped on the trail of the Baronial squad for the past two weeks and this, more than anything else accounts for the bad attack of "Slumpitis" that the trusty warriors of Gloomy Gladys are now suffering from.

The first howitzer that Dame Fortune cut loose into the ranks of the Birmingham ball busters was the sneaky attack of mumps that slipped up on the star hurler, Bertie Grimes, unawares, and held him loafing on the job for more than a couple of weeks. Grimes' absence from the club was missed, and then when he did get back in there, it seemed as if the idleness had been the cause of his losing some of his stuff. Grimes has not been as terrible a foe since he recovered from the "swelled" head.

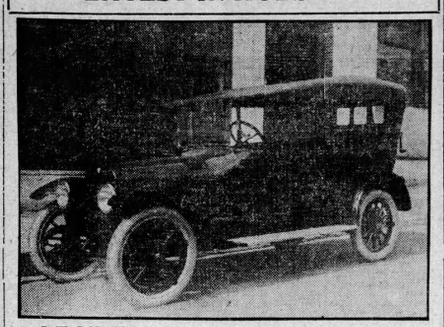

Just as Bertie emerged from his two weeks of soldiering, Clyde McBride suffered an enlargement of the bean from the same cause and was sent home from Little Rock for a two weeks' recuperation. Close on the heels of this Omar Hardgrove's baby grew suddenly and seriously ill and he was called to its bedside, being forced to desert his team. And with all this the fates were still not through.

No, not by a jugful. Only a day or so later Daniel Clark, Lil Marcan's successor at hill No. 2 on the infield, strained a muscle in his shoulder and was forced to take a turn in the benchwarming department.

This jolted the line-up to pieces, threw the team in total disorder and proved disastrous. To cap the climax Moley grew sour over the brand of umpiring that had been dished up, and the usual result followed when a manager of a ball club grows sour on the world.

Cecil Coombs has been pastiming in the place of McBride in left and there is no cause to kick over his performances. Charlie Carroll was forced to take up picket duty at hill No. 2, when Clarke's shoulder got out of gear, and Jack Wallace was forced to shake the big mitt, take up the vest-pocket edition glove and look after things at the first turn in the track. Hale, the second catcher, took up the every-day stuff behind the bat, and the presence of two or three double-headers in the schedule caused the working of the pitchers every three days. All this far from helped the situation, and to these causes, coupled with the fact that the other clubs are stronger now than when the campaign was an infant, is traced the blame.

J. W. Goldsmith, Jr., who handles Hudson cars in this territory, has just received his new 1916 models. The above is the latest model "Six." Mr. Goldsmith expects to keep the Hudson in the popular favor locally which it has enjoyed for several years with the new models.

Walthour Still Cycle Kingpin

Bobby Walthour, the bicyclist who has attracted more attention than any other racer in the game, is still able to lead his best opponents to the tape. Several days since in a motor-paced race over forty miles of track at Point Breeze, he demonstrated that he is still the kingpin follower of the motor-pace, when he defeated a fast field.

Following is what the Philadelphia papers had to say about him in addition to a picture of him taken on the grind:

"Bobby Walthour, the 'Dixie Flyer,' still retains his great speed, and last night he whipped a fast field in the forty-mile motor-paced race before 8,000 persons at Point Breeze, after some hard riding.

"Corri, the Australian, tried to kill off the rest of his rivals and set a humming pace for the first ten miles. He realized that he was shooting his strength away, and at this point Walthour went into the lead, and Carmen stopped and lost four laps because of a punctured tire. While Carman was making his shift and picking up his pace, Corri and Walthour made hay and ran into a four-lap lead. Carman rode a great race, when he remounted, and beat Corri for second place. Walthour worked as steady as a clock and the fact that he never lost his pace won the race for him."

Columbia Bars Freshmen From Varsity

NEW YORK, June 12.—Announcement was made yesterday by the Columbia university committee on athletics that freshmen will be barred fro mall major sport teams at Columbia next year, and no graduates of another university who may be a student at Columbia will be eligible hereafter to a place on any Columbia team.

Another change in the eligibility code provides that no student, after competing for Columbia for four years in a major sport, will be eligible.

These new rules are the first changes Columbia has made in its athletic code in fifteen years, although it has been urged that freshmen be barred from its major teams at least for seven years. Freshmen will still be eligible to compete on minor sport teams, with the exception of basketball and fencing, from which they are barred by league rules.

Outsider Captures Rich Race Stake

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—Sprigan, a black gelding, son of Baron McKinney and Helen Simmons, and owned by F. E. Emlay, sprang the surprise of the exposition summer harness meet today by taking the first place in three straight heats of the 2:10 class trotting race which carried a purse of $20,000. A rank outsider and not considered a contender for place, W. De Ryder drove the little stepper ahead in all three sprints without a break.

Virginia Barnette, a favorite, was second. McClosky and Peter McCormick divided third honors. Best time, 2:08 1-4.

The free-for-all pace furnished spectacular racing, Leata J. winning first money by a narrow margin. Best time 2:05 1-4.

Brutus won the 2:30 driving club trot, with a best time of 2:14 3-4.

Lord Retains Place in Lead

Memphis Manager Shows Way for Southern League Batters--Billy Lee Best of Crackers

In spite of considerable fluctuation in the standing of batters of the Southern league for the past week, Briscoe Lord, manager of the Memphis crew, holds over from the preceding week as the premier clubber of the entire lot. The Chick pilot has an average of .361 for games played through Wednesday. Although Murray, the Little Rock gardener, is second in the list with .344, he has played in but 16 games, and Yale Sloan, of the Barons, is the real runner-up.

Billy Lee leads the Crackers, and, incidentally, is the only member of the outfit over the .300 mark. He is fourteen points better than that mark, while Ed Manning is second, four points shy. The slump in hitting shown by the locals explains in a large measure the unsatisfactory results they have been showing for the past week or so. This slump, by the way, is in the natural order of things, to judge from the way averages generally have shrunk. Just now there are only twelve batters hitting better than .300, and of these there are not regulars.

Edson Hemingway, the Birmingham speedster, continues to lead in stolen bases. He has 23 to his credit. Roy Moran with 16 is his nearest rival for the honor. In spite of the fact that he is hitting only .212, Thomas of the Pelicans, has swiped 14 bags.

Paulet continues to lead the field in total bases covered by his safe blows. The Frenchman has netted a total of 99 bags on his wallops. Harris, of the Lookouts, comes next with 93. In compiling this total, the Nashvillian has taken the lead in doubles with 17, rapped out 3 triples and made one circuit smash.

Diamond Notes

There is a lot of talk about the absence of Evers affecting the play of Boston. Evers was with the team last season, but it was last in the race to July 28.

George Stallings is paying Fred Mitchell a fancy salary to coach the Braves. After Mitchell gets through warming up pitchers he puts on his street clothes and sees the game from the stand. Stallings, however, wants him so badly to coach at third base that he may sign him as one of the twenty-one players allowed by the National league limit rule.

Any time Short Stop George McBride, of the Senators, is out of the game there is no longer any reason for deploring the fact, for Douglass Neff has come forward and is now ready to fill McBride's shoes whenever he is called upon. Neff has developed into a splendid fielder and thrower. He covers a lot of ground and his arm is strong and accurate.

Jim Thorpe is hitting so hard in the International league that already they are predicting that the former Carlisle player will be back sitting on the Giants' bench before long.

Manager Herzog, of the Reds, last week shut down on golf. There are one or two good players on his club, but they don't get paid for that and the manager decided that they'd better play baseball without the golf.

Manager Rowland is very popular, not only with his own players, but with the public as well. He is given credit for having drilled the White Sox into playing a better article of ball than they have shown in recent years, and he has shown himself to be a quiet, yet strict leader ever since he took charge of the team.

Daubert Lands In Lead Again

Dodger First Sacker Leading National League Hitters, Tommy Long Leads All in Triples

It has taken him almost two months to turn the trick, but Jake Daubert, who has led the National league in hitting for the past two seasons has now pulled himself back into the lead for the current season. The Dodger captain and first baseman is driving the ball for a mark of .374. Pete Schneider, the Cincinnati pitcher tops him by seven points, but Peter has played in but eleven games.

Fred Luderus, who held the lead up until the past week, is now second among the regulars with .362. "Red" Smith has dropped off somewhat with his willow but is still several points over the .300 mark. Dave Robertson is proving of real service to the Giants with a hitting mark of .331. Tommy Long is pludding along at a .299 clip, and bears the distinction of being the leading three-base walloper of the league. The Rabbit has hammered out nine triples.

Vic Saier and Doc Johnston with thirteen each lead the base runners, while the former is still topping the list in total bases. The Cub slugger has hammered out nineteen doubles, eight triples and five homers which together with his singles net him 101 bases. Gavvy Cravath with nine homers leads in circuit drives.

Cobb Continues His Great Work

Leads League in Hits, Runs, Total Bases, Stolen Bases and Average—Jackson Second in Hitting

The fact that Tyrus Raymond Cobb was already pounding the ball for an average better than .400 a week ago, did not prevent him from boosting his average during the past week. For games played through Wednesday the Peach is hitting .416, having boosted his mark ten points during the preceding week. Joe Jackson is the next regular in line, with .356, though Tom Daly, relief catcher, and Eddie Cicotte, pitcher of the White Sox, separate Cobb and Shoeless Joe.

Not only is Cobb still leading the way among the hitters, but he is also topping the field in stolen bases by a wide margin, having 31 against 20 for Cook, of the Yankees, who holds second rank. Furthermore, Cobb leads in the number of runs scored, with 56, the number of hits made, with 72, and in total bases, with 98. Some little distinction there.

Neither Eddie Collins nor Tris Speaker, usually among the top-notchers, has yet reached the .300 mark. Eddie has 15 points yet to make up, while "Spoke" is 41 points shy. Nap Lajoie continues to fulfill the prophecy set for him before the season opened by sticking along in the .300 circle. The big Frenchman is hitting .316. Sixteen players are hitting .300 or better.

NOW FULL-FLEDGED MEMBER OF THE "SOLID IVORY" CLUB

BY ROBERT L. RIPLEY.

So let it be with Doyle.

Larry's niche in the Hall of Fame is secure. He will be remembered as the perpetuator of one of the game's classic bonehead plays. He is now an honorary member of the Bonehead club, of which the only and original Jawn Anderson is the president. Jawn was the first to steal second with the bases full.

Captain Larry, Doyle performed his ridiculous act in a game with Boston. The score was even at the time at four runs. Teareau, the first batter, had been retired on a fly to Moran. Burns followed with a line drive to center that Magee juggled and then booted into right field, the batter making third base easily. Doyle then came up and lifted a long fly to deep right that Moran caught while on the run. Burns held third until the catch was made and then dashed for the plate, and made it without any attempt being made to put him out.

Doyle ought to have been rounding second and on his way to third if Moran had muffed the ball, but instead he halted half way between first and second and caught Moran's throw to the infield.

The entire Brave team rushed on the diamond and made claim of interference. Umpire Quigley could make no other decision than the one he rendered, for lost for the Giants, as Burns' run, if it had counted, would have won the game.

However, Doyle, who is now receiving the congratulations of his fellow members—Anderson, Merkle, Harry Niles, Ivy Wingo and others, should not grieve, but find solace in the fact that only the smartest ball players make "boners" anyway.

Salute.

Harvard to Get Early Grid Work

Candidates for Team Will Report Sept. 13, but Kickers Will Practice All During the Summer

BOSTON, June 12.—Word has been passed around by the Harvard football authorities to the players of last year's varsity and freshman squads who are returning to college, that practice will start next fall September 13, two weeks before the opening of college. This early start will give opportunity to whip a team into shape for the opening of the season.

All the punters, drop-kickers and place kickers on the squad will be given footballs before they depart for the summer vacation, with instructions to use them during the 2 1-2 months before the start of the 1915 season.

Captain Mahan will dountless be the chief reliance for punting, as he has been for the past two years, and will also be utilized for drop kicking, for which Brickley will not be available again. W. F. Robinson '18, of last year's freshman team, is another man who has been ordered to practice drop kicking during the summer, and also J. A. Doherty '16, and G. A. McKinlock '16.

The punters, other than Captain Mahan, are C. C. Felton, '16, Wilmot Whitney '16 and Tom H. Enwright '18. Other drop kickers than the ones mentioned are R. S. King '16, the substitute fullback of last year's varsity; H. W. Austin '17, W. J. Murray '18, W. Rollins '16, D. C. Watson '16, J. C. Harris '16 and R. Horsman '18.

Place kicking practice has been prescribed for Richard C. Curtis '16, J. C. Harls '16, J. M. Franklin '18, D. P. Morgan '16, Ernest W. Soucy '16, Moseley Taylor '18, and J. L. Bigelow '16, all of whom are expected to be candidates for the varsity rush line next fall.

Fayetteville Wins

HAMPTON, Ga., June 12.—Fayetteville won over Hampton here in an exciting game, 4 to 3, errors proving costly to the locals. Batteries, Hancock and Sofford; Martin and Stephens.

Mack Has No Kick on Crowds

Leader of Athletics Says Under Circumstances, Team Is Drawing as Well as Could Be Expected

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Connie Mack yesterday discussed the slump in attendance all over the country—a falling off which, it is feared, will result in the premature closing of a number of minor leagues and the loss of money by most big league clubs.

"It is unfortunate," said Mr. Mack, "but there is no occasion for alarm. When business richits itself, when the war in Europe has passed out of the public mind, the game will return to its normal popularity. There have been similar slumps at other periods, but baseball has always come back to its own.

"The smallness of our own attendance has been commented on but the Athletic club has no complaint to register on its treatment from this city. As a matter of fact, after fourteen years here, we have only feelings of gratitude. We are now sharing in the general slump, and, in addition, are suffering from special causes. The most seriously of these is, naturally, our position in the race. For a team that was han, are C. C. Felton, '16, Wilmot Whitney '16 and Tom H. Enwright '18. Other drop kickers than the ones mentioned are R. S. King '16, the substitute fullback of last year's varsity; H. W. Austin '17, W. J. Murray '18, W. Rollins '16, D. C. Watson '16, J. C. Harris '16 and R. Horsman '18.

Place kicking practice has been prescribed for Richard C. Curtis '16, J. C. Harls '16, J. M. Franklin '18, D. P. Morgan '16, Ernest W. Soucy '16, Moseley Taylor '18, and J. L. Bigelow '16, all of whom are expected to be candidates for the varsity rush line next fall.

Fayetteville Wins

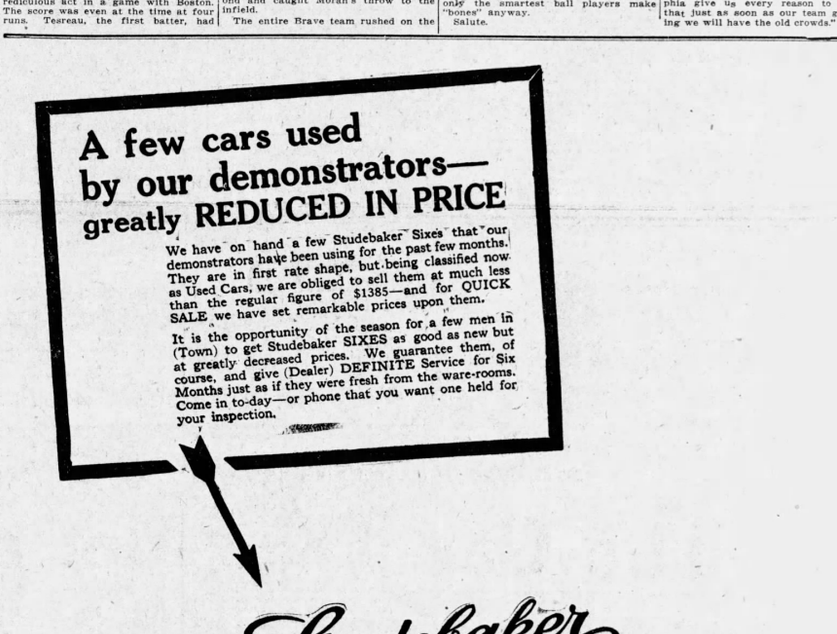

HAMPTON, Ga., June 12.—Fayetteville won over Hampton here in an exciting game, 4 to 3, errors proving costly to the locals. Batteries, Hancock and Sofford; Martin and Stephens.

"Again, in 1908, when the stars who had won pennants for us in 1902 and 1905 began to go back, we had to find men to take their places. It was no easy task to get men to succeed stars like Wadell, Hemley, Schreck, Monte Cross, Lave Cross, Hartsel, and Seybold, but it was done, and we developed the greatest team we ever had.

"Undoubtedly, we have suffered to some extent because of the absence of our former stars. We would like to win, perhaps, as much as anybody, but so without starting the season with the assurance of deficit. Therefore, a new team of youngsters had to be built up.

"If the weather will let us get another team in the race the attendance falls off, we have no kick. We have every faith in Philadelphia; it is a great baseball city. Fourteen years of good will from press and public in Philadelphia give us every reason to believe that just as soon as our team gets going we will have the old crowds."

Few Collegians Will Get Major Trials in 1915

Varsity Records Show a Large List Who Give Great Promise but Policy of Economy Is Likely to Cause Big League Managers to Pass Them Up as a Rule

College baseball for this spring is near its end—and the scouts that have been watching the college boys play report one of the best crops of promising ball players ever turned out by the schools.

The baseball played both east and west by college teams this year has been better than the average, and that in the face of as discouraging weather conditions as often are encountered.

There are at least a dozen youths playing for their schools who are major league material, but perhaps not more than two or three will be taken on even if they want to play because of the economy being practiced by all the big leagues and the 21-man limit of the National league.

The two best men in the west are Paul Des Jardin, of the University of Chicago, and Juel, pitcher for Northwestern. Although George Huff's Illinois team won the western championship, the victory was due more to Huff's team work and excellent coaching than to the individual ability of the men.

Des Jardin is probably the best college timber for major league use in the entire country. He is one of the greatest all around athletes the midway university ever developed. He thinks he is a pitcher; and he is a pretty fair sort of a college pitcher, but he ought to be taken by some good manager and developed into an outfielder for he can hit and throw and has a world of speed and strength. The Cubs will give him a tryout.

Juel, who really was the sensation of the middle western schools, is a cracking pitcher. He won the honor of being the only pitcher to defeat the Illinois and he is desirous of going into the big show. He is getting a looking over by the Chicago White Sox.

Cornell showed two men who might make good in the majors; Bryant, a corking pitcher, and Mellen, a speedy third baseman, who is a slashing hitter. Gill, of Princeton, seems the class of the Tigers.

The scouts report the much-touted Mayo scarcely would do pitching in fast company. They think better of Way, of Yale. Less, the strapping catcher of Lehigh, is declared to be the best catcher in the eastern schools. Crowell, pitcher, and Babington, third baseman of Brown, are well liked.

Trinity, Penn State, Holy Cross and Pittsburg all have been looked over. Two of Holy Cross men have received offers, but who they are the scout would not inform me. Georgetown developed one man this year who is considered speedy, and has another almost ripe, who will not play ball.

The scouts report that it is hard to get the college men to talk trial this year and it is probable they are influenced by the retrenchment plans of the magnates.

Mack has taken on Malone. Griffith is using Connolly, and the former is said to be on the track of one or two more. Koob, of the Michigan Aggies, is practically sure of a trial by the Tigers or Browns, but this about completes the list.

SUMMER CAMP SEASON ON

COACH JIM MOORE

Several of Atlanta's cleverest young athletes will again take their summer outing at Camp Greenbrier in the Alleghany mountains, under the personal care of Coach Jim Moore of Gordon.

For several years past a bunch of Atlanta boys have spent the summer at this camp, swimming, rowing, shooting and leading a general all around outdoor life. There is nothing that appeals to a young boy more than outdoor life and the summer camps of the country offer unsurpassed facilities for the growing youngsters to get all they need under the care of experts in every line of physical sports.

Tennis courts are kept in excellent condition and tennis is one of the main sports of the summer. At the end of the camp season a tournament is held for both doubles and singles and handsome prizes are given to the winners in each class. The boys are classed according to age and competition is accordingly keen, but not unbalanced.

Baseball is another sport that takes up a great part of the time. A league is organized composed of teams from each city represented, and at the end the winner of the pennant is given an elaborate supper for their victory.

Camp Greenbrier has two dozen rowboats and there are over sixty canoes. Boat trips down the beautiful Greenbrier river are taken several times a season. The boys camp on the banks of the river and cook in true western style. After paddling all day, a supper of beans, bacon, biscuits and hot coffee is relished by the most fastidious.

Every boy is taught to swim under the care and instruction of an expert and every element of danger is eradicated. This is the seventeenth year of the camp and there has never yet been a fatal or serious accident. There are dozens of Atlanta boys who testify both physically and otherwise to the all-round merits of the camp.

The three sons of Dr. Kenneth McRae were at the camp for a total of some eight years. Among the smaller boys who have attended in the past few years are Harry Stearnes, Jack Cohen, Cliff Hatcher, Jack Kontz, Tigner Johnson, John Hopkins, Joe McCord, Allen and Bob Whittaker, John McRae and others. Among the older boys who have been at the camp for the summer and who have made their respective colleges good men in the athletic line are Jim Senter of Tech, Henry Collier of Tech, Lee Tolley of Sewanee, Pat Dinkins of Sewanee, Malden of the University of Virginia, Damon of Brown and others.

Tommy Leach has an 18-year-old son who plays on a high school team. The boy sits in the stand at the Cubs games and says, "That a boy, Pop," when Leach makes a good play.

TRIGGER AND TRAP

There are certain little courtesies to be observed in every branch of sport. Trapshooting is no exception to the rule, and no sportsman requires to have his attention called to such courtesies. There are, however, two or three other special items which, if observed, help greatly to make things pleasanter all around.

One of the most important of these is promptness at the score. Don't keep the other members of your squad waiting while you finish a conversation. Nobody who is keen to shoot likes to be kept waiting, and you start your squad off in bad shape if you annoy them by dilatoriness. Find out when you are likely to be called to the score, what squad you are in, and be on hand—the first up to the score, if possible, so as to set the others a good example.

Don't talk with members of your squad, or with outsiders, while you are shooting. It may not disconcert you (although it will do so sooner or later), but it will surely take the attention of some member or members of the squad from the work in hand, and sorry goose eggs will appear on the score sheet.

There is another point to which attention must be called, and that is the too frequent habit of shooters, members of the same squad, leaving the score before the last member of that squad has fired at his last target. Setting aside the discourtesy of showing him so plainly how little you care, nothing can be more disconcerting, especially to a beginner, than to have man after man of his squad fire at their last targets and then walk away from the score, leaving him standing alone giving an exhibition of how to break one's last target. It is just as easy to miss the last target as it is the first one, and the mind of the shooter must be concentrated on his work just as keenly. Is it fair, therefore, to put your companion at a disadvantage just because he happened to be No. 5 in the squad while you occupied an earlier position? This point is now so well recognized that it is the exception, and not the rule, at important tournaments to see a single member of a squad leave his position until the last shot has been fired.

Another small point should be mentioned, namely, the proper time to move from one position to the next. No. 1 in the squad, of course, is always the first to move, because he is the first to finish the number allotted to any one position. Suppose it is a fifteen-target event—it will be his turn to move when he has shot at his third target. The question is, When should he start to change to the next position? The proper thing to do to avoid possibility of disturbing the shooter whose position he will occupy next is to wait until his neighbor has shot before even commencing to change. No. 2 should wait until No. 3 his shot, and so on. The only exception is when you are at No. 5 position, and you have to get around to No. 1 standard for your next shot. In such a case, and as you cannot possibly bother the man at No. 1, whose turn it is to shoot next, it is best to start for the No. 1 position immediately after you have shot at your target and ejected the empty shell.

Never load your gun before you move from No. 5 to No. 1. If you have noticed that it was time to move, and have put a shell in your gun, open the gun and take out the shell before leaving the score or turning around from it. Accidents will happen from every slight causes, and you never can tell what may happen if you disregard this rule, which never should be broken.

Boston Women Win Tennis Title

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—Mrs. George Wightman and Miss Eleanora Sears, of Boston, won the women's doubles lawn tennis championship of the United States Friday defeating Mrs. Marshall McLean and Mrs. George Chapman, of New York, 10-8, 6-2, in the final round of the tournament at the Philadelphia Cricket club. Mrs. Wightman meets Miss Molla Bjurstedt, of Norway, in the final round for the singles title today.

Friday's victory in the doubles gave Mrs. Wightman her fourth national title in the event and her second paired with Miss Sears. As Hazel Hotchkiss, of California, Mrs. Wightman won the title in 1910 paired with Miss Sears. In 1909 and 1912 she won the championship paired with Miss E. Rotch.

Kawfeds Sign Hurler

NEW YORK, June 12.—Joe Gingras, a former pitcher of the Bronx Stars, a local semi-professional club, signed a contract Friday with the Kansas City Federals. Last season Gingras was with Winston-Salem.

Meredith Will Try for Record

NEW YORK, June 12.—Some time this summer, either in the east or at the San Francisco exposition, Ted Meredith is going to try for the world's quarter-mile record. It is a question where he will find the best conditions for such a trial. At San Francisco he will find a quarter-mile straightaway, but California weather during July and August is as bad as April weather in the east. It is a common sight to see furs and overcoats every day in San Francisco during these months. April and May are the warmest months on the coast, and this explains why most of the California records are made at this time.

There is no quarter-mile straightaway in the east except on horse tracks, and it was on one such that Maxey Long, the old Columbia man, made the present world mark of 47 seconds. Long's record on a cinder path is 47 4-5 seconds, made on the five-lap track of the New York Athletic club at Travers Island. That track is supposed to be the fastest of any of the club tracks. That Meredith can break Long's records is certain. On last Saturday he would have broken it had he run a yard and a half faster, which he could certainly have done. But if he wants the record he ought to try for it in the east first before he risks the California climate in August.

The Car That Met a Nation's Call

THE MOTOR CAR that stands out pre-eminently above all other motor cars this year is the one that has met all the demands of the American automobile public---and that car is the COLE "8." The Cole Motor is this year the most accessible "Eight" made. It is about 100 pounds lighter than a six-cylinder motor of similar bore and stroke, but delivers from 30 to 50 per cent greater actual horsepower.

The COLE "8" weighs only 3,400 pounds, has 126-inch wheel base, Helical bevel gears—direct drive spring suspension—self lubricating springs—Chummy aisleway front seats—deep, genuine upholstering stuffed with real hair—de luxe body lines, roomy comfort for seven people. In short, the COLE "8" completely equipped—and for $1,785, f. o. b. the factory.

Cole engineering and standard units alone make possible this COLE "8", which everyone who has seen it work enthusiastically praises because of its great speed range on high, its unconquerable hill-climbing power, its perfection of control, its saving on tires—in other words, for its scientific combination of economy and efficiency.

Knight Springs Year's Surprise In Near Future

Inventor of Famous Motor Says Market Will Soon Be Supplied With Quality Car at a Low Price--Believes Sleeve Valve Motor Will Replace Other Types

What undoubtedly will prove to be the most sensational announcement of the year in automobile circles is promised in the near future by Charles Y. Knight, inventor of the famous Knight motor.

One of America's leading automobile manufacturers is about to produce a Knight motored car to sell at a figure below $1,200, according to Mr. Knight.

"The price of this newest creation in motor cars will serve as a complete surprise to those at all familiar with the Knight motor," says Mr. Knight. "Its price feature, together with the fact that it is to be a quality car throughout, will unquestionably open the eyes of the public. I am free to admit that so much quality at so low a price is possible only by big production methods.

"I have been a close student of motor cars for years both in this country and abroad and have watched with interest the various stages of development through which they have gone. Each year has brought forth some radical change in design or construction, until the car of today bears but a slight resemblance to its predecessors of a few years ago.

"But while thousands of improvements have been made in the outward appearance of the car, and the interior mechanism has been simplified in all directions, the motor itself has remained practically unchanged.

"Up to a few years ago the popper valve motor was used almost exclusively in the manufacturing of automobiles. Even after I had perfected the sleeve valve design, mechanical experts were prone to ignore it. Its superior qualities were not questioned, but it was so revolutionary in principle that each American manufacturer held off, waiting for some one to try it out.

"But nearly every high grade foreign producer who could secure the rights adopted the Knight motor. Such well known cars as the Daimler of England, Mercedes of Germany, Panhard of France and Minerva of Belgium all use the Knight motor. But these cars range in price from $4,000 to $8,000.

"Its remarkable power, reliability and economy of operation are vouched for by manufacturers both in this country and abroad. One of its most redeeming features, from the owner's standpoint, lies in the fact that it is smooth in action and practically noiseless in operation. Five minutes' ride in a Knight-motored car will convince the most skeptical on this point.

"However, it is the longevity of this engine that has been responsible for its adoption by most manufacturers. Innumerable tests have shown it to be in even better condition after the completion of a long run than at the beginning. This is explained by the fact that carbon deposit has a beneficial instead of an ill effect on a Knight motor. Most poppet valve engines need decarbonizing after every two or three thousand miles. In the Knight this trouble is virtually unknown. For this reason Knight motorists, when on the road do not experience that uncomfortable sensation of having the motor fall off in power.

"I am not in a position to divulge the name of the American manufacturer who has succeeded in producing this popular priced Knight motor car. Needless to say he has solved the all important problem of building the Knight motors in large quantities. I made the prediction some time ago that the sleeve valve motor would displace eventually all other types for motor cars. With the advent of this new car I feel confident that my prophecy is well on the road toward realization."

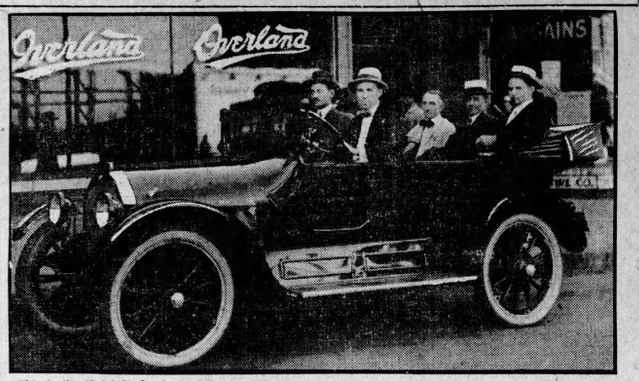

Transcontinental Routes Are Cleared

Automobile tourists can now proceed safely on practically all of the Transcontinental highways from coast to coast, is the announcement just made by the Goodrich National Touring bureau. The large mountain snows that have barricaded certain of the passes in the western mountain ranges are now cleared and hundreds of transcontinental tourists who were held up east of the ranges are now crossing same on their way to the Pacific coast.

The Goodrich National Touring bureau has prepared complete route descriptions and tanscontinental books covering all of the recommended lateral highways from coast to coast, which can be procured gratis from automobile clubs or through local garages.

W. M. Adair, of LaGrange, has been appointed F. A. M. commissioner for Oregon.

NEW OVERLAND A CAR OF BEAUTY

This is the Model 83 Overland of the 1916 line. Seated in the car are W. S. Becker and A. H. Murrell on the front seat, and R. T. Tobin, Frank North and H. M. Burns in the rear seat. Local distributors of these cars expect that this model will prove a great favorite.

The new Overland, Model 83, is a new car, selling at a new price for its kind, and it is creating the favorable impression with its admirers that its builders knew it would create. It is essentially the same as the Overland that last year sold for $325 more than this car is selling for—essentially the same, but lighter and consequently much easier on tires than even the Overland of last year was—and it was not hard on tires.

Immediately the new Overland, Model 83, was shown in Atlanta, at the local Overland branch, automobilists and prospective automobile buyers began flocking to see it. They had heard about it, and they knew from the announcements that it must be a wonderful car. And their unanimous verdict has been that it is a wonderful car, selling at a wonderful price.

Attractive looking, with an engine as powerful as any need might require, and then some, with every known convenience and comfort—a real Overland, and for such a low price! It was unbelievable until the proof was submitted in the form of the car itself.

The new Overland has only been on show in Atlanta for a very few days, but during that time hundreds of new Overland admirers and enthusiasts have been added to the former large lists. Mr. Becker, head of the Overland in Georgia, is genuinely proud of his new car, and he is going about the business of popularizing it, as it deserves, in a thoroughly systematic manner.

The dealers all over the country are wiring their demands for sub-agencies and for territory. They recognize in this new Overland a car that is going to sell faster than the former models of the Overland have ever sold before. It is going to sell, they say, for the reason that it has something back of it, in it, and as for that, all about it.

Griffith Sees Making of Stars

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Remember Joe Gedeon, the California Catamount, and Jay Carl Cashion, the Carolina Curver? They may be found playing second and first base for the Nationals next season, if they keep up the present fine performances and are given another trial by the Old Fox.

Joe Gedeon is leading the Pacific Coast league at the bat with a mark above .350, and his sensational fielding is the talk of the circuit. Indeed, the scrappy youngster is credited with keeping Salt Lake at the top of the league's standing.

Carl Cashion, while not flashing to the fore quite so brilliantly in the field, is stinging the ball for .318 with the Minneapolis Millers. He is holding his own around first base, too, though not making such a fine record as Gedeon is on the coast. It is more than likely that Griff will have Mike Kahoe watch both these players during the summer and report on their availability for the Nationals. He cannot afford to overlook either of them, if they keep up their present good gait.

Joe Gedeon is popular with Griff because the young Californian is a scrapper from the drop of the ball. Added to his liveliness, his daring, his absolute recklessness kept him with the Nationals long after he had failed to impress as a player. In his trial here Gedeon showed great weakness at the bat and not much strength in the field, though he was improving constantly. When he found himself consigned to bench duty, Gedeon asked to be sent back to his beloved California and he was sent to Los Angeles. The Angels dropped him as worthless, giving him to the new Salt Lake club as a poor "castoff." Then he found himself.

From the opening of the 1915 campaign, Gedeon began murdering the ball. His confidence in himself was always marked with the Nationals and he has added to his already considerable supply. Now he is the terror of every pitcher in the Coast league and, unless he takes a frightful slump, he should finish the season as the champion batsman in the circuit. Marriage has had an excellent effect upon Gedeon. He has changed from harum-scarum lad to a serious daredevil and serious daredevils must be considered in this work-a-day world.

Cashion came to the Griffmen in 1911 as a pitcher. He had done good work down in Carolina, but he never quite filled the bill in the major league, though given every opportunity. Last winter Griff sent him to Joe Cantillon and Joe placed him on first base. Cashion is not over-graceful in his actions, but he gets there. Indeed, he is the fastest big man since the days of Bill Lange. And he can hit!

In 110 times at bat Cashion has poled out 35 binzles, six of them two-base knocks and four good for three corners.

Cotton Used in Pneumatic Tire

"A pnumatic tire can as logically be called a cotton tire as a rubber tire," says James E. Taylor, branch manager, the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company. "The cotton fabric forms a large part of the tire while the rubber merely binds it together and upholsters it. Tens of thousands of bales of cotton find their way into our tires every year.

"In tire fabric Goodyear uses Sea Island cotton. This kind originated in the Carolina islands, where it is still raised. Our cotton, however, comes from lower South Carolina, Georgia, and Florida, where climatic conditions are favorable to its growth.

"The special qualities required for tire fabric—such as strength and an exceptional degree of flexibility—are better supplied by the Sea Island cotton than any other. The fibre is very long and like silk in its fineness and strength. Its average cost is about 25 cents a pound, while the ordinary grades of cotton in commercial use average about 12 cents.

"The tire industry has greatly stimulated the cultivation of better grades of cotton, and in this respect has been a great benefit to the cotton raising section of the country.

"A large part of the fabric that goes into Goodyear tires is made in our own mills. We bought these mills because we wanted to use better fabric than we could buy on the open market. In a single year we spin 36,225 miles of cotton yarn—enough to reach one and one-half times around the earth, or twelve times across the continent from New York to San Francisco.

"All our fabrics are minutely inspected for imperfections. We are awake to the necessity of using only the very best, and take pride in the fact that we are producing one of the strongest and finest automobile tire fabrics that has yet appeared in tire manufacture."

Largest Auto Shipment Ever Made, Overland

Nearly a Quarter of Million Worth of Overlands Leave Toledo Factory Consigned to Distributors for Greater New York

What is probably the largest single shipment of automobiles ever made leaves the big Toledo factory of the Willys-Overland company on Friday.

The entire shipment, which has a total valuation considerably in excess of one-third of a million dollars, is consigned to the C. T. Silver Motor company, Overland distributors for Greater New York and the metropolitan district.

The longest "through" freight train known in the history of railroading will be required to carry the automobiles. It will consist of more than 125 freight cars and from end to end will be more than a mile and a quarter in length. Two of the largest modern "mogul" engines will be used to haul the train.

The tremendous shipment is indicative of the growing demand for cars which the Overland company is striving to meet. During the week ending May 29, shipments were made of 1,906 cars from the Toledo plant. During the present week it is probable that this number will be exceeded by at least 100.

Reports from the company state that orders now on hand for immediate shipment are approximately 17,000 in excess of shipments. This is in spite of the fact that many departments of the factory are working both night and day in an effort to make the supply meet the demand. More than 9,200 men are now being employed at the Overland factory.

New buildings, which are just being completed will add seventeen acres of floor space to the plant, giving it a total area of 75 acres of floor space. With this additional space available, John N. Willys, president of the company, declares he will be able to build and ship an average of 600 cars per day. This will be the production of the Willys-Overland company during the coming season.

Gibson Forms New Motor Co.

Cecil E. Gibson, formerly treasurer of the Gibson Automobile company, of Indianapolis, and until recently general manager and one of the owners of the Empire Automobile company of the same city, has disposed of his interest in those concerns and formed the Madison Motors company to manufacture four and six-cylinder cars.

A splendid plant, with a large tract of land, has been purchased at Anderson, Ind., and already six-cylinder models at $1,375 are being manufactured and shipped. A 112-inch wheel base four at $750 will follow in a few weeks. A heavy production of these fours is planned and bare newspaper announcements of their advent into the market have brought a flood of inquiries from all parts of the country.

Gibson is one of the well known manufacturers and is rated as a designer of rare ability. His hobby, if it may be called that, has been strength of car and service to the customer. At a recent manufacturers' dinner he said:

"The motor car maker who wishes to stay in the business must paste in his hat "satisfy the owner," and live up to the requirements of that slogan every minute of the day. Otherwise he is slated for the discard. A little added strength in transmissions, differentials, rear axels and other places where strength is needed costs the manufacturer more money, it is true, but take it from me it pays wonderful dividends in the long run. Shoddy never got anybody anywhere; and a desire to grab unholy profits, leaving the public to hold the bag, has burned the brand of failure on many a deluded organization which thought it saw in the motor car industry a royal road to riches. The public may no longer be damned—it must be served."

Hower, Motor Expert, Joins Overland Forces

Henry H. Hower, for the past eight years with the F. B. Stearns company, is the latest Knight motor expert to join the forces of the Knight division of the Willys-Overland company. He started his new duties June 1.

Mr. Mower is regarded as one of the best informed Knight engine men in the industry. While with the Stearns company he was, successively, service manager, advertising manager and sales manger. In securing his services John N. Willys has added another strong link to the cotaine of experienced Knight men in this new branch of his organization.

In addition to Mr. Mower, the Knight division has acquired the services of Lawrence T. Wagner, former manager of the Argonaut Motors company, San Francisco, distributors for the Stearns and Pathfinder cars. Mr. Wagner will make his permanent headquarters at San Francisco.

Costs Dough to Land Collegians

Major League Scouts Find It Necessary to Dig Up Freely to Sign College Baseball Stars

BOSTON, June 10.—Major league scouts, coming up for air after their spring tours, report with much anguish the development of an entirely new branch of the baseball business, one which is apt to give Connie Mack and others managers addicted to the college ball player many a sorrowful hour. That it is an entirely unnecessary and probably a very grave violation of the ethics of pure amateurism does not tend to reconcile club owners to it.

In the pass major league clubs have found it a camparatively simple thing to transact their business with college players deemed capable of playing major league ball. Either they wanted to go in for the professional game and could be signed off hand, or they didn't. Now and then it has been found necessary to overcome parental objection, but not very often.

Now, however, it is no such easy matter. In possibly half a dozen cases this spring scouts have found, upon locating their young collegians, that they must first do business with the athlete's coach or manager. Time after time this spring scouts have unearthed young men of rare promise only to discover, upon offering contracts, that the youngster had already authorized his coach to auction him off to the highest bidder, agreeing to give the coach anywhere from $50 to $1,000 for his services.

As a result the college player now costs the major league club as much as would an athlete who has had experience in a minor league, for in every instance it is the club, not the player, which stands the coach bonus. Last year and in other years most college players could be inveigled into the professional game by an offer of, say, $2,500. Now the player holds out for it that he is given a salary, sees to it that he is given a non-release contract and sees to it that his coach "gets his."

This new development will not drive many clubs into bankruptcy, for not more than a very few college players are picked up by the major leagues each year. The professional magnates are getting all worked up over it, however, for they claim that the middle man is as unnecessary as he is expensive. No college player worthy of a major league trial for long escapes the notice of the scouts, who feel that they are quite capable of landing the men they want without any assistance from a coach.

NEW BUICK "SIX" REACHES DEALERS

In the cars are Paul Crawford, Buick dealer of Decatur, Ala., in the first car; Fred Joyce, of Chattanooga, in the second car, and standing between is W. L. Marr, the engineer who designed the Buick valve-in-head motor. The 1916 models of this popular car just bing delivered to dealers.

The new Buick Six, the car that all Buick dealers says going to make history is now getting into the dealers' hands all over the country, and will soon be on demonstration in every town of the south. In the photograph shown above art two dealers, one from Decatur, Ala., and the other from Chattanooga, Tenn., who are ready to drive their Buick Sixes to their respective homes. In the center is shown the man who made possible the new Buick car.

Mr. McCutcheon, the man who has put the Buick on the map in the south, feels very enthusiastic about the way in which automobilists and prospective automobile buyers have taken to the new Buick, and he stated yesterday afternoon that he believed the Buick would become the most popular high class car in the entire country. He has had the dealers of the south with him for the past few days and they have all gone away filled to the brim with enthusiasm for their new car. It is really a master model of a great car, and Mr. McCutcheon states that Buick's prophecy that "When better automobiles are built, Buick will build them," has come true, for now he knows Buick is building better cars than Buick has ever built before, and he added, by way of parenthesis, that he believes they were better cars than anyone else had ever built.

GEORGIA T. P. A.'S LEAVE TO ATTEND NATIONAL MEETING

Will Urge Dr. Belk for Chaplain, R. A. Broyles for Railroad Chairman, and Max Banner for Hotel Chairman

Editor Firing Line: The month of June usually intensifies the otherwise dormant energy of the Travelers Protective association, not only in Georgia, but in the thirty-five states of this union that have divisions forming a part of the national association. This interest is made manifest because of the national convention, the law-making body that controls the association everywhere, which now numbers more than 60,000 as its total strength.

At these conventions there are always burning questions of legislation, as well as political questions that enter into the government of the state bodies, the same as there would be in the election of state or municipal officers.

At this convention, which meets in Omaha, Neb., Monday the 14th instant, Georgia will have the right to 21 votes, and I am informed that we will have our full strength on the floor of the convention, who go instructed by our state convention held in this city, April 8 and 9, to elect Dr. S. R. Belk, presiding elder of the Gainesville district, to the position of national chaplain. Dr. Belk's friends in Georgia are going to the convention determined if possible, to place him at the head of the national association as their spiritual adviser. Dr. Belk has attended a number of these conventions and is well and favorably known in the convention.

Our delegates are also instructed to elect R. A. Broyles railroad chairman of the Southeastern Passenger association. Under the present law of the association there is one national chairman of the railroad committee elected from each of the five passenger associations, and it is believed that Mr. Broyles will be elected to this responsible position.

Mr. Max Banner, of Columbus, is the national chairman of the hotel committee, and will be a candidate for re-election, which will doubtless be accomplished, and if our delegates to the convention are successful in landing all of these honors for Georgia they will be awarded prizes for their ability to combat the opposition that they are bound to encounter in great numbers.

Aside from the business features of these conventions they always furnish a rare opportunity for enjoyment that is almost without a precedent and not obtainable under different circumstances.

The delegates represent Post B, of Atlanta, will be R. A. Broyles, E. D. McDonald, P. C. Cashman, E. A. Hartsock, and J. F. Hollis, who will be joined by the delegates from other posts in the state here today, and they will leave in a special car of the Dixie Flyer going by way of Chicago, and will arrive in Omaha Monday morning for the opening ceremonies of the convention.

The convention will be in session until Friday night, Saturday usually being devoted to some special entertainment, and the delegates will leave Saturday night and Sunday for their homes.

Yours very truly,
J. H. ANDREWS,
State Press Chairman.

DOBBS & WEY PREPARED FOR FRUIT JAR SEASON

Jars This Year Higher and Scarce--Firm Ready to Meet Demands

Dobbs & Wey report that a big fruit jar season is in prospect. They declare that one of the biggest fruit crops that has ever been known will be on hand this year. Notwithstanding the fact that fruit jars are scarce and also higher in price than last season, this company states that they are prepared by reason of favorably placed contracts to supply all the demands of their trade. The firm handles the Queen and E-Z Seal glass topped hermetically sealed jars.

"Business may be stated as being conservative, though active," said W. L. Percy, of this firm. "I also note that a number of our merchants are discounting their bills—a thing that they have not done since the beginning of the war. This is certainly an indication of a healthy trade condition."

KENAN TELLS OF TRIP TO MODEL CIGAR FACTORY

Makes Visit to Gonzalez & San Chez Factory at Jacksonville, Fla.

I. K. Kenan, city salesman in the cigar department of the Lamar & Rankin Drug company, returned last week from a trip to Jacksonville, Fla., where he made a visit to the factory of the Gonzales & Sanchez company, for whose cigars the Lamar & Rankin Drug company are distributors in this territory.

Mr. Kenan's trip was for the purpose of familiarizing himself with the factory operations and particularly with the sanitary conditions under which the Gonzales & Sanchez cigars are made. It was at the suggestion of G. W. Hardee, secretary and treasurer of the Gonzalez & Sanchez company, to Lynn Fort, of the Lamar & Rankin Drug company, that Mr. Kenan was sent on a visit of inspection.

"The popular opinion has been heretofore that cigar factories are places not noted for their cleanliness and sanitation," said Mr. Kenan, "but my trip to the Gonzalez & Sanchez plant at Jacksonville, was indeed a revelation. This firm has a big, light, airy factory, situated near the St. John's river. It has no buildings immediately next to it, and on one side has a big flower and palm garden; beyond this is the St. John's river, from which come at all times refreshing and wholesome salt breezes. The factory is spick and span throughout. Indeed I marvelled at its cleanliness. In walking through it I was smoking a cigar and so elegant and so spotless was it that it never entered my head that cigar ashes might be dropped upon the floor, but that a holder or cuspidor must be found for this purpose.

"One of the reasons why some cigar factories are not clean is the fact that their leaf tobacco is kept stacked on the bare floors. This leaf tobacco is watered and the water stains the floors. In the Gonzalez & Sanchez factory, however, all the leaf tobacco is kept in immense humidors and there are positively no stains or unsanitary conditions resulting from this cause.

"The cigar makers have their rooms in light, airy quarters on the second floor. Every door and window is screened. No flies or mosquitoes can enter.

"The Gonzales & Sanchez cigars have had a wonderfully increased popularity in the Atlanta territory, and in Jacksonville they are considered by the dealers there as the biggest sellers yet.

"Manuel Trelles, who is one of the owners of the plant, personally inspects the cigars, and after they are boxed personally inspects each box, and in this is placed the certificate of sanitation from the sanitary department of the city of Jacksonville. This certificate is signed by O. C. Floyd, chief sanitary inspector of Jacksonville, and reads as follows:

"'Gonzales & Sanchez Company,
'Jacksonville, Fla.

"'It gives me pleasure to testify to the high standard maintained at your factory in the matter of sanitation. In the course of my official duties I have visited your plant many times without previous notice and can cordially state that I have seldom seen a place of business so perfectly clean and wholesome in every detail from roof to cellar.'"

Atlanta-Made Pencils Go to Far-Off Siberia

Last week a big shipment of Atlanta-made pencils went to Vladivostok, Siberia. The shipment was made by the National Pencil company in connection with a number of other shipments to Russian points. The orders for the pencils came through the company's New York commission agent. The pencils are for business purposes and also for school use.

The National Pencil company sends its goods all over the United States and to foreign countries besides, but this is the first shipment the company has made to far-away Russia.

RED LABEL SYRUP ENJOYS ACTIVE SALES

It Is Put Up in Tins Especially for Summer Trade and Use

At the D. R. Wilder Manufacturing company they are commenting with gratification on the active sales their Red Label brand of Georgia cane syrup is now having. Since the coming of the summer weather sales of Red Label have been large indeed and duplicate orders are coming in right along. This brand of syrup is of the highest grade of Georgia cane and is packed in tins especially for summer trade and use. The Red Label is one of the Wilder company's famous specialities and has a large reputation throughout the southern territory.

While in Atlanta Mr. Wright called on the D. R. Wilder Manufacturing company and gave Luke Cain of that firm an order for a carload of Bonita brand Georgia cane syrup for prompt shipment. "Come again, Mr. Wright," they are saying at the Wilder company.

ROSENFELD CO. TO MAKE FULL MEASURE SHADES

Inaugurates Policy for Trade and Public Followed by Few Shade Plants

The Rosenfeld company in the conduct of its recently installed window shade manufacturing plant have inaugurated the policy of furnishing full measure shades. This is a policy followed by few window shade factories. The Rosenfeld company are satisfied that public opinion and the right course demand that all its shade come up to full measure. Hereafter, therefore, all standard makes of shade turned out by the Rosenfeld company, whether stock sizes or for special order, will measure the full length specified.

It has been the trade custom for a long time to cut the material out of which the shades are made the length specified in the order, but when such shades are completed, they are found to be from four to six inches short, due to the fact that part of the length has been taken up in hemming and stitching. The Rosenfeld company is aware that they are one of the few firms who put full length shades but they are determined that hereafter whoever buys shades from them will get the exact length requested

FULTON COUNCIL HAD BIG PICNIC FROLIC AT JESTER'S MILL

There Was Exciting Baseball Game Between the "Never-Has Beens" and "Never-Will-Bes"--Former Won

Members of Council 505, U. C. T., are still talking about the great time they had on June 5 at the council's annual picnic which was held at Jester's old mill. A party of nearly two hundred persons left the terminal station at 9 o'clock for Darsey's siding where they disembarked and were taken in automobiles one and a half miles to the picnic grounds.

There was a regular bus which carried over a number of the paty and in addition to this, several members of the council had their automobiles on hand ready for the service of the visitors. Those who had automobiles were George P. Byrd, R. L. Wallace and W. McConnell.

The day was an ideal one and as soon as the crowd reached the lake a number of them went in swimming, while some of the ladies who were not able to swim later in the day formed a wading party and enjoyed the delights of the water.

There was dancing throughout the day in the pavilion, boat riding, and fishing, but the biggest time of all was when the entire party gathered under the shade of the trees for a big picnic lunch.

In the afternoon there was an exciting baseball game between two teams, one of which was known as the "Never Has Beens," captained by George Byrd. The other was styled the "Never Will Be's," and was headed by B. B. Baber. The "Never Has Been" won by a score of 7 to 2.

Everybody who attended said it was the best picnic they ever attended. There were an unusually large number of ladies present who highly enjoyed the occasion.

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

J. W. Bates and Russ Bates, of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, last week attended the commencement exercises of the Georgia Normal and Industrial college at Milledgeville, Ga. Their niece, Miss Mary Lowe Bates, was one of the graduates, finishing with high honors.

D. P. McDaniel, of the notions department of John Silvey & Co., has installed his family in summer quarters near Lilburn, Ga., where they will spend the heated term tenting in a summer camp.

S. E. True, the new M. C. Kiser company salesman, who travels North Carolina, with headquarters at Spartanburg, has made all the old salesmen of that company sit up and take notice by the amount of business he is sending in as a new man.

J. S. Cheek, of Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, was in Thursday with a customer. Mr. Cheek has been having a gratifying amount of business throughout the past week.

Themelis rose-tip cigarettes were distributed at the barbecue at Kimballville farm on Wednesday when Farmer Will Zimmer was host to the "Greeters club."

With the arrival of the pickling season, Fain & Stamps report that they have sold nearly a carload of vinegar during the past week, with prospects for handling large quantities from now on.

Mr. George S. Themelis, of the New York office of Themelis Bros. company, reports business is getting better each day for Themelis rose-tip cigarettes in the city of New York and the summer resorts near-by.

The following travelers of the Rosenfeld company, constituting the second division, were at headquarters last week getting their fall samples preparatory to returning to the road: L. L. Dettelbach, otherwise known as "Billy Sunshine," Fred Saloshin, and Alfred Levy. All these travelers are enthusiastic over the company's new line of rugs and house furnishings. The expect to do a very active fall business.

Luke Cain, the able representative of the D. R. Wilder Manufacturing company, was at headquarters last week on special business. He will, however, be at Rome, Ga., during the present week.

Mrs. J. L. Elliott, wife of J. L. Elliott, of McCord-Stewart company, has been quite sick at her home at Oxford, Ga., for some time, but is now reported to be rapidly improving.

E. P. Lewis, of McClure Ten-Cent company, spent Wednesday in Barnesville, Ga.

J. R. Thornton, traveler for the S. P. Richards company, was at headquarters on Wednesday, bringing with him a very sizable bunch of orders.

T. B. Lewis, of the Capital City Tobacco company, will leave today for Columbus, Ohio, where he will attend the supreme council meeting of the United Commercial Travelers of America.

Edwin C. Bell, traveler for the Brower Candy company, spent the week down the West Point road and reports a very successful trip.

O. P. Bennett was out last week, after being detained for two weeks at his home on account of illness in his family. He was given the glad hand by all his old friends, and many orders also.

Hotel Equipment Co. Adds Additional Sales Space

WHAT BRINGS SUCCESS IN MERCHANTILE FIELD?

Lewis Cites Example of Two Merchants Who Won Their Way

BY E. P. LEWIS.

Today I want to explain more fully how the firm referred to in last Sunday's article made such rapid progress.

Although they were handicapped for funds with which to operate business they fought competition by being careful of the smaller things, such as giving careful attention to the window displays and using extreme caution and judgment in buying.

They never bought an item because it was cheap, unless they really needed it. And in addition to careful buying, these people watched the understock, and rather than carry an item from season to season they would place the article on sale for less than cost.

From the beginning their policy has been: "Keep behind the business and live within your means." No man or woman was considered a safe person to keep in their employ if he or she spent more than they earned.

The most remarkable part of the story is that the members of this firm left good paying positions to establish a business on a capital of $400, but took from the business the first two years a salary of only $50 each per month.

This is a true story and shows what can be accomplished by the united efforts of the members of a firm, and the happy realization resulting from self-confidence.

Next Sunday is time to make known the name of the firm and when you have learned it you will wonder why you had not already guessed.

SEWELL ATTAINS GREAT SERV-US REPUTATION

H. A. Sewell, of elley Brothers company, has attained wide reputation as an authority on Serv-Us goods. Mr. Sewell is very enthusiastic about this line handled by his company and his sales on Serv-Us products are very large indeed. Mr. Sewell not long ago received an application from a retailer who lives three hundred miles from Atlanta, asking for exclusive control of Serv-Us goods in that territory. Mr. Sewell referred the application to the heads of his firm, declaring that he was not yet the Serv-Us boss even though he talked and dreamed Serv-Us most of the time.

Takes Over Store Adjoining Their Present Location at 82 Marietta Street--Also Announces Big Sale of Ice Cream Utensils

The Hotel Equipment company have recorded another step in their ever advancing progress. This progressive firm announces the taking over of an additional sales room, namely, 80 Marietta street, next to their present location at 82 Marietta. This will give the firm an increase of sales space of 100 feet front by 150 feet deep. In addition to these enlarged quarters, the firm also has two large warehouses and basements.

The progress of the Hotel Equipment company since its organization has been rapid and steady. It supplies a wide territory in the south with everything in the hotel equipment line and also handles large contracts with jails and other public institutions. A. B. Ware is president and treasurer of the firm and Max Wright is general manager. These gentlemen are among the leading business men of Atlanta and know the equipment business from beginning to end. It has been through the high quality and durability of their goods that they have built up a business that is a credit to any city. In connection with the taking over of the additional space by the firm, they are at present announcing a big sale of goods all suitable for the ice cream trade. They have on hand at present a solid carload of ice cream packing tubs and cans at wholesale, for the manufacturers of ice cream, for hotels, colleges, soda founts, and institutions of like nature. Everything necessary in the making and handling of ice cream can be found at this company's in noteworthy values.

The company also announces that they have over three carloads of refrigerators particularly adapted to the hotel trade.

IRBY NOT YET UNDER RAILROAD COMMISSION

Chris Irby, of the A. M. Robinson company, was at the house last Friday after having had a good week's trade. Mr. Irby makes his calls in a Ford automobile. "It should be stated," said J. E. Morrison, of the Robinson company, that although Mr. Irby is still running a jitney, the railroad commission have not seen fit to assume control of him and his operations. That is, this can be affirmed for the present, but there may be later developments."

LITTLE EXPECTS LARGELY ATTENDED CONVENTION

Meeting of Third Division Dry Goods Men Will Be Interesting

J. R. Little, chairman of the third division of the Southern Wholesale Dry Goods association, declares that the meeting of this division which will be held in Atlanta on June 18, will be largely attended and will be marked by a number of speeches and discussions of interest to all the wholesale trade. "I have sent out letters to all the members of the association in this division and I have already heard from a majority of them accepting the invitation to be on hand at the meeting," said Mr. Little. "We are assured of the presence of R. V. Covington, of Jacksonville, Fla., former president of the association, Murray Brown, also a former president and Frank Bentley, of Tampa, who is one of the leaders in the dry goods world."

Skelley in Jacksonville

J. P. Skelley, widely known in the tobacco world, spent last week working the trade with T. B. Lewis, of the Capital City Tobacco company. Mr. Skelley leaves this week for Jacksonville, Fla., to be gone two weeks, after which he will return to Atlanta.

His Name Is on File---
Read His Letter

The following letter dated "Atlanta, June the fourth 1915," was received by the J. K. Orr Shoe Company and is on their file:

We print it, not to glorify shoes especially, or the crackers, or the overalls mentioned by the writer, but because it is a good sensible letter.

It has the right ring.

It is typical of expressions that are becoming more general every day.

It contains a sound economic principle which we commend to the attention of business men in the South.

Read it:

"THE J. K. ORR SHOE COMPANY,
"Atlanta, Ga.,

"Gentlemen—I am quite sure Atlanta people have never meditated seriously the necessity and benefit of patronizing home institutions.

"October, 1913, I was seized with a patriotic motive. Wanted to buy a pair of Atlanta-made shoes; went into the Red Seal Shoe Store, told the clerk I wanted a good pair with thick soles, etc. I was going to Florida, expected to walk in the swamps, etc., and was subject to colds. I failed to find any with soles as thick as I liked.

"The clerk told me, though, that he could have them made in 36 hours. So he took my measure, and for $5 I got the most comfortable and serviceable shoe I ever had. After wearing them two years, I gave them away without a flaw in them.

"We can get some idea how we would appreciate Home Industries if the United States got into a foreign war and was so unfortunate as to let the enemy capture New England. Then what would SHOES be worth with NO FACTORIES IN THE SOUTH?

"IF EVERYBODY IN ATLANTA WOULD DECIDE ON ONE DAY OF EVERY WEEK, AND EVERY WEEK IN THE YEAR, TO GIVE ATLANTA-MADE GOODS THE PREFERENCE, AND IF THE FORTUNATE ONES WHO HAVE BETTER INCOMES WILL DRINK THIS TRULY PATRIOTIC SPIRIT, HARMONY INSTEAD OF DISCORD WILL PREVAIL, AND THERE WILL NOT BE SO MANY OUT OF EMPLOYMENT.

"Atlanta certainly makes as good CRACKERS as Chicago.

"I saw a blacksmith on the Florida line wearing a pair of A. M. Robinson & Co.'s Overalls. He said they were the best in the world.

Respectfully."
(Letter on file.)—EDITOR FIRING LINE.)

Now this man has "the root of the matter in him."

We print him just as he writes and we don't do it to make invidious distinction.

He is just putting into plain, understandable words the biggest fact that confronts the South today---that she is losing her best opportunity when she fails to patronize her VERY OWN.

Consumers, merchants, students, thinkers. All take note!

Penniless Negro Was Swapped for Lot on Whitehall

Ran Peacock Was Purchase Price 60 Years Ago for a Part of the Connally Corner, at Whitehall and Alabama Streets

By Angus Perkerson

ONCE, his price was a chunk of Whitehall frontage; now it's victuals and a dollar a day.

He is a gray, slow-moving old negro, with nothing much but a smile and the kindliness that somehow seemed a part of his generation.

But sixty years ago things were different.

Whitehall street then was a dab of red clay ambling along through a few shacks and petering out into clumps of woods.

Where there wasn't a faro bank there was a place to quench the thirst; and old-timers tell how at night they carried a lantern in one hand and in the other a pistol as long as your leg.

All in all, Atlanta seemed a likely spot.

Business began to look up, and, above the other noises, rose the buzzz of Jonathan Norcross's slab-mill, telling the world that Atlanta was on the way.

The village began to get the name-changing habit, and ran through a whole series before it reached the present working title that seems good enough for every-day purposes.

It was just concluding with Slabtown, in commemoration of Mr. Norcross's industry, and was settling down to Marthasville, when Ran Peacock broke into the public talk.

Even then Atlanta was getting the real estate fever,with close-in property selling for hundreds of dollars an acre, and the farm lands, beginning at Baker and Peachtree, getting to be very much in demand.

The most sun-baked, unhappy-looking part of the place was the frontage known now as the Connally corner, at Whitehall and Alabama streets, and not known then in particular as anything.

Ran had a sleek heartiness, a twenty-year-old vigor that gave him a high estimate as human property went. He was appraised at $1,200 and he had descended, with other holdings, to Thomas W. Connally, father of Dr. Thomas W. Connally, one of Atlanta's best-loved men.

Ran came as an inheritance, and he occupied that mixed position of southern negroes before the war. As far as values went, he was classed as property; but in the way of kindness and care he was a member of the household.

But business is business. A part of the Whitehall street frontage now included in the Connally corner was put up for sale. Thomas W. Connally thought the land was a likely investment, he saw a future for Atlanta, and —there was Ran.

Today are in existence deeds which show how Ran, twenty years old, valued at $1,200, served as the purchase price for a part of the Whitehall frontage, now valued at $10,000 a front foot and being used as the site for an office building.

Business men of the town wondered. Tom Connally had exchanged a twenty-year-old farm hand for a shack on the side of the road! Poor Tom. For years they joked him.

Then, the property began to grow in value and Ran began to turn gray. The strip of land now is part of one of the most valuable holdings in Atlanta, and Ran has become a bent, hobbling old negro, with accumulating patches on the hind part of his pants and an increasing smile.

The red clump of clay that once was a site for nothing better than a shack at the roadside is being laid with the foundations of what is to be an office building.

And Ran—he is helping in his rather pottering way with the "crops" on Mr. Suttles' place between College Park and Ben Hill.

The dirt that people have made important by building around it has increased until a foot would sell for more than Ran could conceive. Meantime, the kindly, whimsical old negro, with the twinkling eyes and the chuckling "Yassir, boss," has decreased in valuation to patched clothes and very plain food.

He and the Whitehall street frontage ran a race, but toward different goals: the dirt toward money and Ran toward old age.

Now and then he comes to town, most often to visit Dr. Connally whose kindness is one of Ran's assets; and, as he goes out, smiling that thank-you-boss smile, he very often turns to the left and sows up Whitehall street past the fenced-in corner where a hole is being dug down into the inside of the earth for foundations for the new building.

Tapping along with a hickory stick he goes by the spot, just as thousands of others pass every day; and probably there's very little difference in his feelings. But it is strange, isn't it?

This old, gray, bent negro working by the dollar a day was once swapped for a good part of the property over on the other side of the fence—property worth $10,000 a front foot today. All he can jingle in his pocket is two-bits, likely; and every chunk of dirt heaved up by the steam shovels on the other side is worth more.

But he smiles, taps along, nods to everyone who looks his way, and even busy people turn to smile back, and follow the bent humorous, kindly old figure.

Dressing In A 1000-Year-Old Fashion

Started For Frisco; Reached Athens

COMMERCE, Ga.—Linton Cooper, Joe Hardman and Max Pinson, three Commerce youngsters, have decided not to visit Universal City, California. This decision was reached early Wednesday morning when they were taken in tow within three miles of Athens by Colquitt Hardman and C. K. Cooper, after hoofing it down the road early in the night on the first lap of a 3,500-mile journey to the "Golden West."

For a month, these adventurous youths had been planning to visit California, having been inspired by motion pictures, to make the trip out where Billie Ritchie, Mary Fuller, King Baggot, Frances Bushman and other film stars pose for the entertainment of millions of people. With a crocus sack as their baggage, they left home, friends and the old town Tuesday night, at 8:30. Whey they failed to turn in at a reasonable hour the parents just concluded that the boys were off on a fishing trip, such an outing having been talked of for several days.

Someone returning from Athens during the night, passed the boys on the road. Early Wednesday morning a report was made of the fact, resulting in a search for the youths. They were found happy on their way, after a comfortable night's sleep in a grass plot on the roadside, and were brought home in an automobile.

It was reported that Max Pinson had slipped the faithful cow out of his mother's lot with the view of selling her in order to get hold of a little change; but an investigation of the premises proved that 'Old Blos" was in her stall.

The boys would not tell how much money they had to finance the expedition, nor, would they answer direct questions asked relative to the anticipated trip.

Now that the youngsters have returned to the parental roof, all is well and the friends of each are glad to know they have decided after due consideration not to go over the hills and far away.

I've Killed 3,000 Germans, Powell Writes Home Folks

Georgia Boy, Serving With Canadian Artillery in France, Says He's Fired 6,000 Shots and He's Sure He Got a Man Every Other Time

"I HAVE fired 6,000 shots, and saying I got one man every other shot, that would give me 3,000 dead Germans."

From Chichester, England, Grady Powell, of Lincolnton, Ga., sends home this message. At the outbreak of the European war, he enlisted with the Canadian artillery, and served in France against the Germans until he was wounded recently at Ypres. A shell, falling back of his gun, blew him fifteen feet into the air and a fragment of metal cut its way round his forehead.

From the military hospital at Chichester, England, he sends his uncle, Captain John B. Flanigan, a farmer living four miles form Lincolnton, Ga., a description of a man-hunt with five-mile guns.

MILITARY HOSPITAL, Chichester, England, May 18, 1915.—Dear John:—"How are things on your side of the world? I often wonder how it would be back there where you never get shot at and seldom ever get more than half shot.

"How are the crops? And how is your prize melon patch? It is about time for fishing on Savannah river, too, and I wish I could be back there, somewhere about the mouth of Soap creek to put out one more trout line. I have had lots of shooting, but little fishing lately. You talk about shooting birds with a shotgun, well, you should try my gun on the Germans once.

"She has a pretty fair range, too, say from your house to Lincolnton (about four or five miles). Her shells are beauties. They have an arrangement to set before you fire. This causes them to burst and makes things hot at any distance you want.

"I have just left Ypres. I guess you have heard of it. Well, I was up pretty close to them there (2,500 yards), and could see them quite plainly through my telescopic sights, and let me tell you, it beats bird hunting all to pieces. If you see your shell "break" a little to the right or to the left or too high, why all you have to do is just move a little traversing wheel and the next one will make them "bite the dust."

"I have been figuring it up since I have been here in the hospital and trying to decide how many notches to file in my gun. Here's what it is: I have fired about 6,000 shots (I have that pretty accurate), and each shot, when it bursts, spits 365 round lead bullets about the size of a pigeon egg. Then, of course, there are the fragments of the shell, making at the very least 500 little missiles of love for the Germans. This makes three millions of shots, any one of which would entitle me to file another notch on my gun. But, let's say I only got one man every other burst (though in fact, I know I get more than that, for once, at least, I know I got forty-three at one shot) but let's say I get one every other shot; that would give me 3,000 dead Germans—quite a bunch to be proud of, dont' you think?

"Every time I drop one in their trenches and see a bunch of legs and arms fly about twenty feet up in the air, I can't help feeling mighty nice about it, for I know that at least fifteen or twenty of them will knock off killing women and children.

"I have never but once got so low down as to shoot at one man. This guy I just shot at to try out some new ammunition. The ammunition was o. k.

"Write me all the news and I will get your letter when I get back in Belgium again.

"Respectfully,
BOMBADIER J. G. POWELL,
First Battery, First Brigade Divisional Artillery, First Canadian Contingent, British Expeditionary Force, France.

Dead Man's Will Was Used to Convict His Slayer

IN THE little town of Salem, Oconee county, Georgia, then Clarke county, there lived Peter Perry, a well known planter and merchant, and Thos. Wells, also a well known merchant, who had a very beautiful wife.

It seems that Perry and Mrs. Wells were intentionally together, or accidentally thrown together more than is ordinary for one man's wife to be in company with another man, so there came to be a great deal of talk in the community about it. After a time Wells began to notice this and after an exchange or so of correspondence, Wells met Perry on the street and shot him. Of course there was a great deal of commotion in the community but no one ever blamed Wells in the least for every one seemed to understand that he shot Perry for ruining his home. This happened on August 24, 1820.

But going on with the story:

The will of Peter Perry was probated on September 10, 1820. It reads as follows:

"The Last Will and Testament of Peter Perry, Salem, August 14, 1820.

"To my friends Henry Davenport, Thos. Hancock, Julius Alford, Wm. Clark and Maj. Jno. Nunnally: You are the persons whom I wish summoned as witnesses against Thos. Wells should he assassinate me, an attempt which I expect daily. Enclosed are his several letters from 3d of June up to the 13th of August, 1820. He couched them in words too intolerable to be borne and followed with an interchange of words equally as abusive. I only answered by saying, "'give me a laconic call and I will give a laconic reply.'

"We settled the affair and it was reopened by his letter of August 13. After hearing of my getting religion and no doubt would not denounce his abuse, he has since the 14th of August been exceedingly polite to me and expects that I would not fight him anyway; in that he is very correct for I would not, by the help of God, touch one hair of his head and intend to pray for him to be convinced of his error, for I speak it in the face of Heaven that I know no more of his wife (than that I know her to be a lady as far as I ever saw or believed) than I do of the woman I never saw. If this expression is not the truth I hope not to see the face of my Maker in peace.

"If Wells assassinates me I want my friends to prosecute him with the utmost vigor and should he be convicted and condemned to death, I want the court to give him as much levity, or rather time, as he needs to repent.

"Given under my hand this 14th day of August, in the year of our Lord, 1820."

The grand jury took up the case and indicted Wells and the following is the court record:

COURT RECORD.

The State vs. Thos. Wells. Arraigned and pleaded not guilty.

The following verdict was given out:

"On the 6th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1820, we the jury do find the prisoner at the bar guilty of wilful murder.

(Signed) "JOHN JACKSON,
"Foreman."

Here the court adjourned till the morrow.

And on the following morning the judge made this sentence which was duly carried out:

"You Thomas Wells shall be taken from the bar of this court to the place from which you last came, where you shall remain until Saturday, 21st of present month, October, and on that day you shall be taken from thence by the sheriff of the County of Clarke, or his lawful Deputy, with a rope about your neck and be by him conducted to the common place of execution at, or near, the town of Watkinsville, and then and there, between hours of ten o'clock in the forenoon and two o'clock in the afternoon of that day, you shall, by the officers aforesaid, on a gallows to be erected for the purpose, be hanged by the neck until you are dead, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

This is the only case on record where a murderer has been convicted on the will of the dead person alone.—By E. E. C., in the Athens Banner.

ATLANTA'S BOY REPUBLIC

United States Government Is Reproduced Here in Miniature. President, His Cabinet, and Congress Are Elected. Schools Represent the Different States.

A BOY'S government has been set up in Atlanta. It now has 100 members, and will be increased to 1,200.

Officials of this government include a president, his cabinet, judges of the superior court, lesser federal courts, senators, representatives, governors, state judges and other state officials.

There are now hardly enough members to fill all offices.

The president of the miniature United States is Charles Austin, Jr., of 73 Alexander street, a student at Marist college. The vice president is Charles Platt, of 141 Spring street.

The idea of a government of boys modelled after the federal government was proposed by Edward K. Blair, of 100 Crumley street, for years a teacher in the Sunday school of the Baptist Tabernacle.

His plan is new. Nothing of the sort has been tried before. The purpose of it is to teach the duties of citizenship and to encourage an interest in religion.

Meetings of the boys' republic will be held Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock at the Tabernacle, at which both religious duties and the affairs of the republic will be discussed.

The new government in some ways seems to go to extremes, but these peculiarities, says Mr. Blair, will further its purposes. Each member must always carry with him a pocket Testament. He must make it as much an abiding part of himself as tops and frog-sticking knives.

"That rule," admitted Mr. Blair last week, "may seem peculiar. But if we can get every boy to realize the common sense of the New Testament and follow out its teachings, we will make him exactly the sort of man we need. For a boy to carry in his pocket a Testament is a good thing, and not foolish and extreme. Another rule is that he must attend Sunday school weekly.

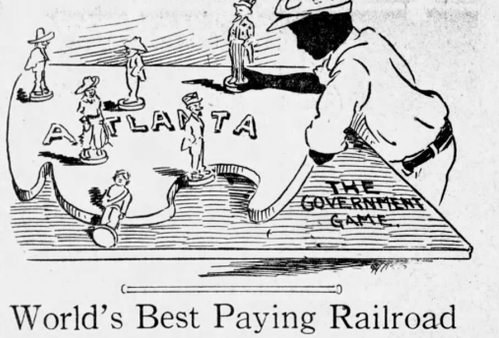

"The idea for a boys' republic occurred to me last April when children of the Tabernacle had a parade to protest against the European war. I was impressed with the need of an organization which would be made up of children and would get them interested in serious things. As I thought it over, I began to believe that a boys' republic, modelled after the United States government, would be the best means of teaching boys the duties of citizenship and of getting at them in a religious way. Finally, I called a meeting two weeks ago at the Tabernacle, and we organized with a membership of 60, which we will increase to 1,200."

Each school district in Atlanta is to be a part of the new republic, and is to be considered a state. The Jackie Street school district probably will be Georgia, but names for the others have not been considered.

The schools, however, will not be connected with the republic; the states will be confined to the school districts, because that will be the easiest way to make the divisions.

Each state will elect its own governor and its other officials. It will also elect United States senators and representatives. As far as possible both the state and the federal machinery of government will be imitated.

When laws of the republic are violated, trials by jury will follow. When new laws are needed, state and federal law-making bodies will meet for the purpose of enacting them. Taxes will be levied, regulations will be enforced, all the details of government will be observed.

31-Pound Baby, Age 15 Months, Weighed Only 4 Pounds at Its Birth

Mrs. O. W. Badger and Her Fifteen-months-old Son.

Open-Air Is Believed By Mrs. O. W. Badger, of 480 Ponce de Leon Avenue, to Be the Reason For Her Baby's Increase in Size and Strength. He Sleeps Out in All Weather

THE 15-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. O. W. Badger, of 480 Ponce de Leon avenue, weighs 31 pound, and probably is the largest baby for its age in Atlanta.

At birth this baby weighed only four pounds, and at five months its weight was but little over six pounds. It then began to improve, and since that time has gained extraordinarily.

The mother attributes the little one's improvement and its present size to open air. During almost the whole day and night the baby is out-of-doors. It slept outside all last winter, and now is in-doors seldom a moment.

The baby's measurements are:
Weight, 31 pounds.
Height, 33 inches.
Circumference of thigh, 13 inches.
Calf, 9 inches.
Waist, 25 inches.
Chest, 20 inches.
Wrist, 6 inches.
Head, 18 inches.
Forearm, 8 inches.

The baby's foot is only 4 inches long, and its back is 8 inches broad.

Oren Hampton Badger is the name of the prodigy. In the eyes of the baby is the twinkle of good humor that comes from a body well-nourished and free from aches.

If there is another baby in Atlanta to compare to Oren Hampton in size, there certainly is none other comparable in sunniness of disposition.

"Since July," said his mother last week, "he hasn't been sick a minute. Up till that time he had been sickly all the while. At first he was very weak and very small, and no one ever thought he would be well and strong. I think he began to improve when we changed the way of feeding him; keeping him in the open air caused the improvement to continue.

"My advice to all mothers who wish their babies to be rosy and well is: keep them in the open air. Let them sleep there, let them play there, don't bring them in-doors except when you just have to.

"Raise your children to be open-air fiends, and later on they'll bless you for it. Don't ever think the weather's too cold for the baby to be outside. Just see that it's well wrapped up (make absolutely sure that it's warm), and then let it stay outside.

"Don't you think it's remarkable that a baby weighing only four pounds at birth, increases so in weight and strength that at 15 months it weighs 31 pounds? The chief reason for this gain is open air. Proper feeding was the thing that started the improvement, but open air is what makes the baby weigh 31 pounds now.

"I don't think he could sleep indoors. He's got so used to the open air that nothing else would do him. I'm sure he's going to grow up to be an open-air fiend. I'd rather have him that than anything else."

At Tifton, Ga., is an 8-months-old baby that weighs 27 pounds. It is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Clemons. Bristol, Tenn., boasts of a baby a little over a year old which weighs 30 pounds.

ATLANTA IS THE SOUTH'S MOST "NERVOUS CITY"

Walk faster.
Eat faster.
Sleep less.
Dance more.

The streets are noisier; people wear the intent or frowning look of "nerves;" they brush against you; they are always in a hurry; they will risk their necks in crossing before street cars and automobiles, rather than wait; elevators move faster, they rush you up and drop you down; there's more dyspepsia, more life, more hurry-scurry and less rest in Atlanta than in any other city of the south.

This is what a well known nerve specialist here says. He was quite willing to be interview last week, and went into details, but, for ethical reasons, he refused to allow the use of his name. He is better acquainted with the nerves of Atlanta than any other physician, treats more sufferers from nervous strain and is better able to diagnose Atlanta's nerve condition than any other authority.

"In the north," he said, "you'll find cities that move a step faster than we do. But in the south you'll find none so nervously energetic, so overworked, so over-hurried as Atlanta. We have more 'nerves' than any other city in the south and we suffer more with insomnia and more with nervous indigestion.

"It is in the atmosphere here to hurry. Everyone seems to be a little behind and trying to catch up. I think people start working later and quit earlier than they once did. But while they are about their affairs they are pushing more, hurrying more. And, then, the bed-time hour is being set forward all the while.

"But I don't agree that dancing adds to our nervousness. I think, on the other hand, it does us good. Dancing, from a physical standpoint, is not objectionable, except when it keeps you up too late and makes you lose sleep.

"The great trouble here is that we don't rest enough. This is true in a lesser degree of other southern cities and in a greater degree of all northern cities. We work too much, we stay up too much at night, we don't sleep enough, and we never relax. We are always pushing, pushing. We are fighting to save time. We are hurrying when there is no need to hurry. And we are convinced that we need more money than we do.

"All Americans could take a lesson from Orientals in how to avoid money-madness. In the Eastern countries people work enough to get what they need and live happily and quietly on that little. They never have neurasthenia trying to get more money than they can possibly have any use for.

"This is also true in Europe. Although people there are very wretched now, there are a great many ways, in times of peace, in which they live more sensibly than we do. In the matter of money, for instance, they are content with so much less than we are. They are not always striving to get more and more. They are industrious and they are economical, but when they have enough for their comforts, they quit work and live.

"Europe, just now, though, is contributing to our nerves. Financial depression always means more sick people. People never are really healthy except when they are really happy. Worry is the great cause of nervousness, and in the last twelve months there has been a great deal of worry. But, with the betterment of the times, our nerves have grown better."

Another effect of the war has been an increase in insomnia. "War dreams" have not been confined merely to the soldiers in Europe. Dispatches from there say that men in the trenches suffer horribly from nightmares in which they live over the dangers of battle. Now, such dreams are afflicting people far from scene of the fighting.

A great many have become obsessed with the subject of war, particularly with submarine warfare. The patient suffering from insomnia complains that he dreams of battle, with countless numbers of soldiers marching across his bed. But most of all, he dreams of submarines engaged in strange and horrible deeds of destruction.

"The remedies for Atlanta's nerves," says the specialist quoted here, "are rest, more sleep, more exercise and the cultivation of that state of mind that enables you to work intently and industriously without hurry and vexation."

Death-Dealing Weapons of All Sorts in Savannah Collection

AN old sword believed to have been among the possessions of the early settlers; cutlasses supposed to have been used by the pirates who infested Blackbeard island on the south Atlantic coast; a double-edged sword which is said to have seen service in the Mexican war; several muzzle-loading guns of amazing barrel length, and a dueling pistol such as was used in the days of early American settlements are included in a collection of old weapons owned by D. J. Jordan of Gregg street, Thunderbolt, Savannah, Ga.

Some of the relics, undoubtedly genuine, were found by Mr. Jordan, whose hobby is relic hunting; others were purchased.

One of the weapons is a rusty sword five feet in length, curved shaped, on which is stamped the figures 1760. The guard is of iron, from which the covering has long since disappeared, but the blade is of good steel. This sword was dug up in an old field. Another sword highly prized by Mr. Jordan is one which still retains its ancient leather-covered handle grip, probably a relic of the early revolutionary days, which was dug out of the earth in the old fort below Savannah, the present site of Fort Jackson. The owner says he found this while digging bait for a fishing trip. It is four feet in length and is straight.

The weapon with which some of the Blackbeard island pirates may have slit the throat of defenseless people on the sea was found by Mr. Jordan in a long abandoned hut on Blackbeard island, while prospecting for relics. The contrivance has two cutting edges the blade being composed of a very fair quality of steel, but the guard is in the form of a wide sweeping curve and is of brass. There still clings to it small portions of rotted leather, which was used in forming a grip for the wielder. The tumble-down shanty in which Mr. Jordan secured the cutlass is supposed to be haunted by the few negroes on the island. Mr. Jordan thought some one had made a "plant" for his benefit when he found the old weapon several months ago lying on one of the logs forming the old wall, but the hilt crumbled under his grasp.

From the Port Royal section was secured some time ago an old sword of the straight double-edged type, which is twenty-four inches long and two inches wide. This is believed to have seen service in the Mexican war about the early 30s. At least two swords of very pecular design, which are unlike anything made in hundreds of years, are items in the Jordan collection. They are of the straight Roman-like fashion and are believed by the owner to be at least a thousand years old. They are very similar in appearance to the weapons used by the ancient gladiators in Rome. These were picked up from negroes who could give no connected account as to how they came into their possession.

Blackbeard island also contributed to the collection a sword which seems to be the most ancient and certainly the crudest of the lot. It is simply a huge knife and the handle is without protection to the hand which grasped it and is in fact only two pieces of bone attached to either side of the rusted steel blade in regulation later day "jackknife" fashion. This was found by the owner on the island while prospecting.

The Port Royal section contributed to the collection a sword which is stamped "1754" in very minute figures near the hilt. An old negro "over home" unearthed it while working for the government when the dredging was being done for the Port Royal navy dry dock, which was subsequently moved. The darky held the sword in his possession for thirty years before selling it.

Flint lock muskets of the early days are represented in Mr. Jordan's collection by a rusted weapon 7 feet 4 inches in length. It is believed to date back to the year 1600. A single-barrel muzzle-loading pistol of the dueling type is also shown in the collection. It is nine inches long and corresponds to the present day .38 calibre weapon. This was discovered near an old church in the Savannah river. The hammer is gone, but the nipple on which the cap was fired is still in place. Mr. Jordan believes the pistol was used in a duel, since tradition has it that the party who killed his adversary on the field of honor always knocked off the hammer of the weapon employed and buried it before leaving the dueling place. The contrivance may be 200 years old.

A target pistol with an immense length of barrel—probably 20 inches—is of modern design. It is a breech-loader, single-barrel, but the owner in reloading was forced to partly list and slide the barrel in a half circle to clear the firing pin attached to the hammer.

One cutlass owned by Mr. Jordan has been in the family for several generations. It is a perfectly straight double-edged weapon of great weight on which is stamped the American eagle. The handle is straight and is guiltless of suspicion of a guard to the hilt. This formidable killer was used in the Mexican war by Greene D. Jordan, grandfather of the owner; was used by Daniel J. Jordan, father of the present owner, in the Seminole war, and Dan Jordan made a great effort to carry the historic old weapon with him when he volunteered for the Spanish-American war, but this the federal government would not allow. His brother, Turner L. Jordan, who was a southern defender, used the weapon in the civil war.

A number of old rotted leather scabbards to shield the once razor-like blades are retained by Mr. Jordan, who has also a number of old Roman swords and other items of value and rarity.—Savannah (Ga.) Press.

World's Best Paying Railroad Is 3 1-2 Mile Georgia Line

SANDERSVILLE, Ga.—The best paying railroad in the world, according to length is the Sandersville road running from this city to Tennille, a distance of 3½ miles. In 1913 and 1914 a 20 per cent dividend was declared, while in some years 40 per cent has been made on the capital stock. The road's rolling stock consists of two locomotives and two coaches. Freight cars are used on the per diem basis. It makes four round trips daily and hauls practically all the freight coming to Sandersville.

Indian Runner Duck Has Three Good Fset

LYERLY, Ga.—Mrs. W. H. Napier, of Harrisburg, has a week-old white Indian Runner duckling that is a freak of new order, having three feet perfectly developed. This oddity is lively and hearty, growing right along with its two-footed kin. The superstitious may find in this the augury of a future flood in Shinbone, when an extra paddle will not come amiss, says the Walker County (Ga.) Messenger.

Baldwin Merchant Is 12 Years Old

BALDWIN county claims the youngest active merchant in Georgia, actually conducting a store and handling his own business. He is Edmund Bass, not yet twelve years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Bass, of Milledgeville. Each summer the family has been spending two or three months with Mrs. Bass' father at Devereux and last year young Edmund announced his intention of going into business at his grandfather's place and patching up a little store, not much bigger than a play house, he began to sell goods, starting with 50 cents as capital. He turned his money over and over, so in three weeks of operation he had $11.00 net profits.

Then it was back to school at the Georgia Military college in the graded department for Edmund, but he managed to work and accumulate more money, so that when school closed the other day he bought $32.00 worth of goods and didn't lose any time in getting busy, though his father was away in Florida looking after his Irish potato crop. He expects to clear $250 in three months this year.

Swimming Pool Is Saving Sinners

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga.—The Baptists of the little town of Jackson, Ga., have inaugurated something new in church life which would doubtless make the primitive Baptists restless after centuries of sleep in the graves on the green hillside, if they only knew about it. A magnificent edifice which would do credit to any city in the state has just been completed and it combines many features not heretofore found in a church.

One of the big features is the mammoth swimming pool, a popular resort these days, and liberally patronized by almost everybody in the town. Gymnastics are provided for and a Boys' Scout hall takes up another room. The church is made a civic center and everything possible is done to draw people in close touch with the institution.

Unless all signs go awry it will not be long before everybody in and around Jackson will be so in love with the Baptist church that others will have to take cognizance of the innovations introduced and follow in the plans.

2,260 Confederate Veterans Buried in An Ohio Cemetery

GENERAL A. J. West of Atlanta was orator yesterday at the Memorial day exercises for the Confederate dead buried at Camp Chase, Columbus, Ohio.

The invitation to him to speak at the exercises was extended by Mrs. D. B. Uhey, president of the R. E. Lee chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, who lives at Columbus.

It is perhaps known to comparatively few southerners that 2,260 Confederate veterans are buried at the Confederate cemetery at Camp Chase.

The city of Columbus set aside an enclosure, and an arch, with the inscription "Americans," surmounted by the statue of a soldier, is at the entrance.

A boulder inside the arch bears this inscription: "2,260 Confederate soldiers of the war in 1861 buried in this enclosure."

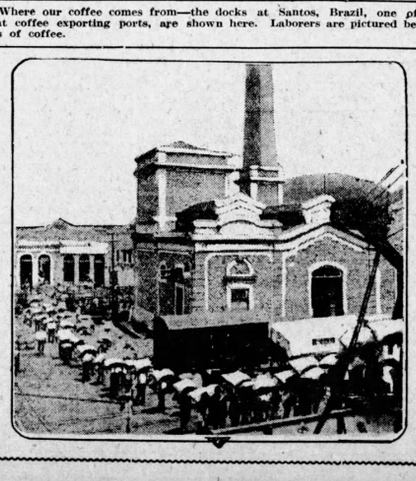

It was appropriate that General West should have been selected as orator on this occasion, which took place in the home state of President McKinley.

At the conclusion of the Spanish-American war a peace jubilee was held in Atlanta, which was attended by President McKinley, his cabinet, and the generals and admirals of the war.

General West was appointed grand marshal for the occasion, and it was his official duty to introduce President McKinley.

President McKinley on that occasion went over the battlefields of the 20th of July and located the spot where General West's gallantry in that battle won for him the rank of major.

Half The World Is Afire Because Of Greed

Bloody and Blasting Warfare in Europe Has Sprung From the Worst Passions of the Human Heart

By Bishop Warren A. Candler.

THE war in Europe is the most terrible mankind has ever seen. It involves half the world, including some of the nations which have been regarded as the most cultured and civilized peoples on the globe.

The amount of property destroyed is beyond all computation, and the destruction of human life is appalling. Not since men began to live on the earth have so many souls been driven in one year into the spiritual world.

We may well ask, why has this desolating conflict come to pass? A just answer to this question contains lessons which the human race should never forget.

This bloody and blasting warfare has sprung from the worst passions of the human heart. It is the outcome of covetousness. However other issues may have been drawn into the conflict, its originating cause is found in national ambition for political aggrandizement and in greed for commercial gains. Ambition and avarice lie at the bottom of it. The brutal contests of savages for pasture lands, flocks and herds, in the early history of the race, were not morally of a different, or worse character than this war of the nations of Europe.

It is clear, therefore, that what men call civilization has nothing in itself to safeguard its existence. The civilized man, when he takes leave of conscience and sets aside the moral law, is no better than the savage. His passions are the same, and he is capable of acting with the same unscrupulous disregard of all high principles and noble purposes. A godless civilization, however apparently refined on the surface, is nothing better than veneered barbarism. The red Indians of North America never perpetrated more horrible acts of murder, rapine and lust than have some of the belligerents of these most civilized nations of the world.

Let us not overlook the fact also that commerce has no power to compose nations into conditions of peace and brotherliness. It is folly to expect that commerce, born of selfishness, should hesitate to pursue selfish ends at all costs. Commercialism neither purifies nor pacifies nations. It may inspire invention, increase material resources and enhance power; but it can not cleanse men of harmful hostilities and disgraceful machinations. In the domestic commerce of our own country we see constantly tendencies in men to overreach one another, to defraud and to oppress the helpless in order to secure material gains. Let the men who are inspired by no higher motive than thoughts of commercialism understand that their system of thought is an exploded heresy. They boast of being "practical men," but their system has showed itself utterly impractical. Commercialism has been piling up treasures in Europe for the last generation, and now its heaps of material goods are burning up in flames which have burst forth from their own internal fires. The tendency of commercialism is always to spontaneous combustion; and the larger its accumulations, the greater is its conflagration when once it takes fire.

It is obvious also that mere intellectual culture alone is not sufficient to assure the peace of the world. This war was not brought on by the peasantry of Europe, but by the men who have had the best educational advantages and who have reached the highest intellectual attainments. Philosophical writers like Treitschke, Kuno, Fischer, Heine and Neitzsche have taught moral doctrines out of which this fearful conflict has come. From their principles, men like Bernhardi have not only inferred "The right to make war," but "The duty to make war."

Goethe proclaimed a doctrine of war in these words:

"Dreams of a peaceful day?
Let him dream who may!
War is our rallying cry,
Onward to victory!"

Schiller also sang in the same warlike strain:

"Man is stunted by peaceful days,
In idle repose his courage decays.
Law is the weakling's game,
Law makes the world the same.
But in war man's strength is seen:
War ennobles all that is mean;
Even the coward belies his name."

The inevitable fruit of such teaching is just such a war as has been brought to pass. The operation of the law of gravity is no more certain and inexorable than are the consequences of such utterances.

Some have expressed amazement that this war should have occurred in the twentieth century; but of all the centuries, the present is the very era in which such a conflict might have been anticipated. When men who have been raised to the highest power by the processes of education are controlled by selfish motives, we may expect with certainty that conflicts will arise of a most terrific and bloody character. Why not? An evil disposition, supplied with power, is equal to any crime.

A judgment of condemnation upon that intellectual culture, which is without moral purity and religious faith, has been written in flaming lines upon the sky, that the dullest man in the remotest and darkest corner of the earth may read and understand. But will men be warned by the awful lesson which is thus written in this conflagration of nations? It is to be feared they will not. The people of our country are adopting the same principles, which have wrought ruin in Europe; and if they continue on the lines upon which they are now proceeding, we must look for the same results in the end. A pronounced tendency prevails in the United States to secularize education. The institutions of secular learning in which rationalism in religion and liberalism in conduct prevail, are the wealthiest institutions of our country. The secularists seem more willing to invest money in secularism than the religious people are ready to establish and endow institutions of learning in which a pure faith and a lofty morality are expounded and enforced. It is time for men professing and calling themselves christians to awaken from their slumber in this matter. They can save our civilization if they will; for God has given them the means with which to do it. But if they will not, then let them understand that they and their posterity and their possessions will sooner or later be overwhelmed in remedless ruin.

The time is at hand when the world must be a religious world or cease to be at all. And the kind of education given in the colleges and universities of the United States will have much to do with determining whether the world shall be Christianized and saved, or secularized and ruined.

War in Europe has sprung from covetousness.

"Winning Farrar" For The Movies At $2.00 A Minute

Morris Gest Tells How He Induced Prima Donna to Sign Contract Which She Announced Here This Spring

GERALDINE FARRAR, the opera star, while in Atlanta this spring, announced that she had signed a contract to appear in moving pictures this summer in California.

She is to be paid $2 a minute for her work as a moving picture actress, a total of $75,000 for the summer's engagement.

Morris Gest, representative of Lasky's, the big producers of moving pictures, tells in the current issue of the "Photoplay Magazine" how he induced Miss Farrar to sign the contract she announced in Atlanta.

Miss Farrar, Mrs. David Belasco and Mr. and Mrs. Morris Gest were at dinner last winter in New York. The topic of moving pictures was broached. It was suggested that they see Mr. Belasco's "Girl of the Golden West," being shown then for the first time in pictures.

"Miss Farrar," says Mr. Gest, "confessed she had never seen but one picture show in her life—'Quo Vadis,' a year before at the Cinema theater, in Paris.

"'I've been too busy resting or working,' she explained. "No prejudice, I assure you. I rather like them.'

"But once we had entered the picture theater her amazement knew no bounds.

"'Why, it's almost as big as the Metropolitan opera house,' she exclaimed. 'I had no idea so many people went to see moving pictures.'

"'Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing,' I suggested, "for the thousands of people who can never hear you sing, to see you on the screen in great dramatic parts?"

"'Are you serious?' she asked.

"'Never more so in my life,' I said.

"'But I don't believe people would be interested in seeing me in moving pictures,' she objected. 'No. I'm afraid I'd be a failure.'

"I said nothing more then. The subject was not mentioned again until I met Miss Farrar at her birthday party. We were talking of the San Francisco exposition.

"'Let's all go,' urged Mrs. Belasco.

"'Why not make it a business as well as a pleasure trip?' I suggested. "The greatest studios in the world are in Los Angeles.'

"Miss Farrar drew me to one side.

"'I've been thinking seriously over what you said the other night,' she told me. 'I've been looking at other pictures, and I believe a new and a great art has been born. Suppose we make a real business appointment and talk this over.'

"In all my experience of ten years with Hammerstein's Victoria theater, where I had to handle everything from a Caucasus bear to a Russian giant, I had never been so nervous as when I called on Geraldine Farrar the following night.

"We chatted of various affairs, of my play 'Experience' at the Casino—of everything except the subject in hand.

"At length I endeavored to show her what a wonderful thing it would be if her performance of 'Carmen' could be perfected in motion photography.

"There are nine million records of your voice today, I declared, and everyone who owns Farrar records has a 'Carmen' record. Every one of those people, as well as many others, would be more than glad to see you as an actress even as they now hear you as a singer. Your voice is heard in every American town and city of consequence, and yet you've been in comparatively few of these places. Do you think that your actual moving personality would have less appeal?"

"'Do you really think that I would be good in moving pictures?" She asked. 'In music drama,' she added, 'I always give the best that is in me, but this is a new thing. I might be an absolute failure posing before the camera. How can I possibly get up any thrills or enthusiasm before a lot of blinding lights and a man turning a crank?'

"I began to walk up and down the floor in excited fashion. I told her that she was a national character as well as an international artist, and that it was her duty as an American to preserve her art for future American edification. When she protested —weakening—that she would probably be hailed as a bad actress, I indignantly recalled her tremendous impersonation of Tosca, her incomparable Madame Butterfly, her wonderful Manon.

"I slept little that night. The next morning I called up Jesse Lasky, and made an appointment for luncheon at the Hotel Astor. I told Mr. Lasky that I had a very big proposition of which I wished to talk later—meanwhile, I invited him to the Metropolitan that night, to see Miss Farrar in 'Madame Butterfly.'

"'He attended, and was enthusiastic.

"Later, at supper in the Knickerbocker, I said suddenly: 'What would you say if I told you that I could get Miss Farrar for your photoplays?'

"'I should say you were a liar,' returned Mr. Lasky, promptly and cheerfully.

"'Well, what would you do if I did get her?'

"'You put the question wrong. What wouldn't we do?' returned Mr. Lasky.

"'Give me some proposition that I can take to her,' I answered.

"'You can say to Miss Farrar,' continued Mr. Lasky, 'that we will sign her not by the month, or by the week, or by the day, but by the minute, and is necessary by the second. You can tell her that for every minute of daylight she is in southern California, whether she is at the studio or not, I will pay her two dollars—and a royalty, and a share of all profits.'

"Unlike a great many opera stars, Miss Farrar is not mercenary. In all our conversations only the artistic side of her pictures had been discussed.

"'I'll go—provided you and Mrs. Gest go with me on my private car,' she said at length. 'Agreed!' I answered, 'if you will pledge yourself to play me three numbers of Rimsky Korsakoff's "Sheherazade" ballet on the piano, every day.'

"And she agreed."

81 Species of Birds Found On An Island Near Savannah

IN A census just finished by F. N. Irving, federal game warden at Savannah, Ga, and Gilbert R. Rossignol, Jr., a former deputy state warden, eighty-one species of birds, some of which were thought to have been almost entirely extinct, were found breeding in large numbers on Ossabaw island, near Savannah.

Mr. Irving and Mr. Rossignol have just returned from a five-day visit to the island during which time they studied the bird life and compiled a report, copies of which will be furnished Wells M. Cook, assistant biologist, at Washington, and H. D. Weed, one of the owners of Ossabaw.

The census takers found fifteen hundred birds breeding in and around one pond which covers about three or four acres of the island. Seven different varieties of water birds were found nesting in the pond.

The Ossabaw pond, according to Mr. Rossignol and Mr. Irving, is one of the best rookeries in this section of the country and will undoubtedly be the last stand of certain species which are now becoming extinct.

The census showed that there were fifty pairs of American egrets and about thirty of the smaller, "snowy" egrets, breeding in the pond. This is the only place along the coast where this latter species has been found they said, and it had been feared these beautiful birds were extinct.

Another rare species which the census-takers found in large numbers on the island was the pileated woodpecker. This bird is unlike his cousin, the gray woodpecker, in that its body is almost entirely black. It has white under its wings and a very pretty red crest on its head. This crest is considerably smaller in the females than the males. The pileated woodpecker has been seen in very few sections of the country during the last few years and there is almost no other place where it is to be found now.

Mr. Rossignol and Mr. Irving found numbers of cranes and herons, both the blue and the white varieties, and also saw several pairs of white-eyed Towhees, more commonly known in this section as "Jo-rees." These birds were once very plentiful throughout the south, but in the last few years have almost entirely disappeared.

Hawks and eagles of several varieties were seen as were also numbers of wild turkeys. Hundreds of the smaller song birds, such as the wren, cat bird, thrush, song sparrow and mocking bird were noted.—Savannah (Ga.) News.

Cherry-pie Season.—Really, the way to divide the year is according to pies: mince-pie season, apple-tart season, etc. And this is the happy time of red, red cherries.

How Andrews' Raiders Were Hanged in Atlanta, Is Told

By Alex B. Sibley

OCILLA, Ga.—I read in a recent issue of The Atlanta Journal a statement in which it is related that there are five of the celebrated Andrews Raiders yet alive. It may be interesting to know that I was one of the guard that escorted the prisoners to the place of execution, which was in a wood near the road in the outskirts of Atlanta.

The article in question in a recent issue of The Journal gives the number as eight that were executed. It may be true that eight were executed as spies, or otherwise connected with this historic raid, but the number executed at the time and place I witnessed were seven by hanging. They were placed as follows:

Three posts were set up and traps were erected between these posts and our men were placed on the trap between two of the posts and three men were placed on the trap between the second and third posts.

All the men were faced in the same direction, and when everybody was ready, the officer in charge interrogated the first man on the right, asking if he desired to make any statement or send any word to relatives or friends. The reply was, that the condemned man had no statement to make. So answered all until the officer reached Andrews, who stood with his head lowered, seeming to meditate, then raised his head and replied: "I have nothing to say at present."

At a signal black caps were placed over their heads and eyes and the traps, which were a combination, were all sprung at once.

The necks of three, including Andrews, which were on one trap were broken, as also were two of the four men on the other trap, but the ropes of the remaining two broke and the men fell to the ground badly stunned, but they soon revived. While the dead bodies were being removed, these two men were placed with their backs to the scene until they had sufficiently recovered to again take their places on the trap for execution. Before the ropes were again adjusted, the officer in charge once more asked the two men if they desired to send any communication to relatives or friends. One said, "None," the other man who was less hurt by his recent experience, held his head up and said, "I have one request to make —double the ropes," and it was done, and the next leap was into eternity.

CONCERNING HEALTH AND BEAUTY

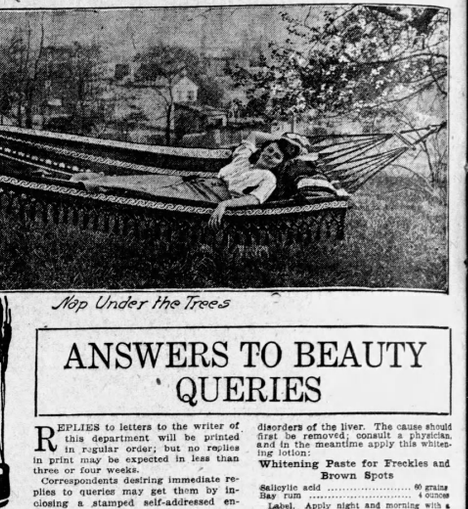

BY MRS. HENRY SYMES

Lunch in the Open

MAKE the MOST of OUTDOORS

Nap Under the Trees

Have a Kitchen Garden in the Back Yard

Let Dry Your Hair in the Sun

Take Many Hikes in the Woods

THE person who can make the most of the thing in hand is the one who is going to get the best out of life. Doubly true is this statement of the woman who is wise enough to make the most of outdoor life. If more women realized the health and happiness to be found outside of the house there would be fewer complaints about headaches, heartaches and the blues.

I know that the suggestion to eat out of doors is a difficult one for the business girl to follow every day, but there are hundreds of girls who are through their work at 12 or 1 o'clock on Saturdays, and will, therefore, have from that hour until Monday morning to stay out in the fresh air as much of their time as possible. I have heard of women living in the crowded city streets who make it a rule to take their children out to nearby parks or squares to eat their noonday meal. The children look forward to this happy hour, and those who are old enough eagerly help to pack the basket with dainty sandwiches, fruit and sometimes lemonade. It is not necessary to pack a large luncheon, for usually in the hot weather it is best to eat less food than one is accustomed to eating during the winter months.

Too much emphasis cannot be laid on the importance of taking hikes in the woods. The close touch with nature will do much to restore tired nerves and to clear the mind for the following week's work. Mothers of families should read and digest this statement. It is important that they get out in the open more frequently. Don't say that you haven't time. Plan your work so that you will have twenty or thirty minutes to call your own. You will be much the better for it and will be able to do twice as much work. Why, do you know that plenty of fresh air and exercise will bring good looks and a sweet temper? These results, aside from the healthful benefits derived, should be sufficient to make every woman want to rush out right away and take a hike as long as her strength holds out. Here I must add that the woman who has never done much walking should begin the treatment in small doses. By going too far at first you will do more harm than good. At first walk until you begin to feel tired, and always remember that you have to cover the ground twice in order to get back home. Sunday is convenient for you to hop on a car. Each day you will be able to increase the distance covered the previous day.

Now is the time of year when it is perfectly safe for one to sit out in the open to dry one's hair. In the cold months it is best to sit indoors, but in the sunshine, to do the work. While the hair is drying rub it with the palms, so that it will have an attractive luster. And then rub the scalp, to give it and the hair vitality and new life. This treatment stimulates the circulation in the little arteries feeding the hair roots and relieves the tension. Even after the hair is dry it is well to continue the massage of the scalp until it fairly glows. If the hair is inclined to be too dry, it is a splendid time to apply a little vaseline, so that the pores, which have been opened by the shampoo, will absorb the ointment. Do not be afraid to wash your hair too often. It collects the same amount of dirt and dust as does your body, and is, therefore, just as much in need of a thorough cleaning. Always be sure, however, to dry the scalp and hair thoroughly after each shampoo. It is injurious to the hair to do otherwise.

If you are one of the women who will not go outdoors unless you have some cause to take you out, get an interest in something that will necessitate your getting away from the four walls of your home. If convenient, have a little garden in your back yard. In this yard raise sufficient vegetables to provide your little family. Getting familiar with a hoe, a rake and the earth will improve the circulation of the blood and exercise your muscles. This treatment is really better than massage, and is surely much cheaper. It will cure a torpid liver and will do much to improve the complexion. Another thing, the praise which you will get from your family when you place before them the vegetables cultivated by your own hands will do wonders toward making you happy. Every one is much the better for a few words of praise or encouragement. Flowers substituted for the vegetables will have the same beneficial effects, if one prefers to raise them instead.

A splendid way to get great benefit from outdoors is to nap in the open whenever you have the opportunity. Hang a hammock beneath the trees or on the porch and there wend your way into dreamland while the lungs are being filled with fresh, pure air.

Follow these suggestions once or twice and you will be so delighted with the physical and psychological change that you will want to think of your house as being merely a shelter in the time of storm.

A splendid way to get a delightful change is to give a luncheon. No one likes a series of hot dishes in June, especially young people whose appetites have become jaded from excitement and protracted feasting during the commencement festivities. Large California cherries dipped in water, then in powdered sugar and chilled may be served in tall glasses and will prove a pleasant change from the usual grapefruit cocktail. If you wish your luncheon somewhat elaborate, you may follow with a jellied bouillon, then creamed chicken in patty cups served with potato balls, hot biscuits, vegetable salad in chilled tomato cups, frozen strawberries, small cakes and candies.

Lemon Juice for Hair

My dear Mrs. Symes:

Will lemon juice bleach the hair? How should it be used?

I have been using lemon juice to bleach my hair for two weeks, but it does not seem to have any effect. How long must I use it before I can see any results? Does it injure the skin?

Will you please give me something harmless for large pores? Should I discontinue using it after the pores have become reduced?

My eyebrows are short and straight. How can I increase the length and make them curl up? I have used vaseline, but it gets into my eyes and makes them smart.

How can one make cucumber cream?

I am 17 years old. Do you think I should use cream and powder on my face? My mother objects, for she says I am too young; but my cheeks are never red unless I do.

BLUE EYES.

The juice of one lemon strained into the last water in which you rinse your hair after washing will bleach it and give it a beautiful lustre.

You should be patient and use the lemon juice regularly until the freckles appear lighter. The pure lemon juice has a drying tendency, and if your skin is too dry after using dilute it with glycerin or apply a cream to the face.

Large pores may be corrected to a great extent by taking care to rinse the face with plenty of cold water. You may also use the following lotion until the skin seems finer:

Lotion for Enlarged Pores

Boric acid	1 dram
Distilled witch hazel	4 ounces

Apply with a piece of old linen or a bit of absorbent cotton.

You may try the following eyelash grower, but be extremely careful in applying it, using but the very smallest quantity, so that no excess oil will enter the eye. If the lashes are longer they may curl naturally, but there is nothing that will make the lashes curl.

Eyebrow and Eyelash Grower

Vaseline	2 ounces
Tincture of cantharides	¼ ounce
Oil of lavender	30 drops
Oil of rosemary	15 drops

Mix thoroughly and apply to the eyebrows with a tiny toothbrush once a day until the growth is sufficiently stimulated, then less often.

The ointment may be used for the eyelashes also. In this case it should be very carefully applied, as it will inflame the eyes if it gets into them.

I would not advise you to make the cucumber cream with the milk, as it would have to be made fresh at every using. The following cucumber wash is as effective and can be kept for some time:

Cucumber Wash

Cut 1 or 2 cucumbers into rather small chunks without peeling. Put these into a stone jar and pound with a pestle or use a heavy potato masher and a heavy earthenware bowl) until the mass is pulpless in consistency. Now filter this through a piece of cheesecloth or very coarse muslin, squeezing out as much of the juice as you can. Now put the rinse and filtered juice into a clean enameled saucepan and simmer (don't boil) for ten minutes.

Then re-strain and when cold add alcohol to the proportion of a tablespoon to half a pint of the strained liquid. Bottle and use to sponge your face instead of washing it during the day.

The alcohol should preserve the juice.

You are entirely too young to use make-up. Young girls of 17 should have enough natural color without the use of rouge. Take plenty of exercise and sleep as much as you can, especially before midnight. Late hours and disregard of nourishing food will keep the natural color from your face.

Deep Breathing

My dear Mrs. Symes:

I am a young girl who works in an office. I try to take plenty of exercise outside of office hours and get plenty of sleep, yet often during the day I get so sleepy that I can hardly keep awake at my work. Is this healthy? What do you think is the trouble?

STENOGRAPHER.

If you are healthy and take plenty of exercise, the trouble must be in the air of the office. Probably there is not enough ventilation in the room. Try throwing open the window for a few minutes and taking long, deep breaths from the abdomen, and you will find that this will rest you quicker than anything.

Superfluous Hair on the Face

My dear Mrs. Symes:

Kindly publish in your column some formula that will destroy the growth of superfluous hair on the face without injuring the skin. I have heard that ammonia and peroxide will bleach the hair, but will not destroy the growth.

ANNA.

There is nothing that will destroy the growth of superfluous hair except the electric needle, and this is apt to be dangerous unless handled by an expert. Ammonia, some people say, will rot the hair in time; but at least the ammonia and peroxide will bleach, and the hair growth is not so prominent when it is light.

Brown Spots on the Face

My dear Mrs. Symes:

I have my hands and also on my neck and arms several brown spots, some are quite large. Please tell me what causes these and suggest a remedy.

My hair is getting thin and falling out rapidly. Some people tell me not to brush it too much and others say not to use soap when washing. I have used the egg shampoo, but the hair still falls out. I have some dandruff.

What can I do for red hands? I do very little housework, but my hands are so red they embarrass me.

A DAILY READER.

The brown spots are probably liver spots, and are caused or aggravated by disorders of the liver. The cause should first be removed, consult a physician, and in the meantime apply this whitening lotion:

Whitening Paste for Freckles and Brown Spots

Salicylic acid	60 grains
Bay rum	4 ounces

Label. Apply night and morning with a soft cloth or sponge. This lotion soon produces a slight roughness of the skin, which should be subdued by the use of glycerin or starch.

The following may also be tried in cases of obstinate freckles:

Lactic acid	5 ounces
Glycerin	4 ounces
Rosewater	1 ounce

This is to be gently applied by means of a camel's-hair brush. If the skin becomes irritated or sore, omit one or two days' treatment.

Try the following sulphur remedy for dandruff, and rub into the scalp each night a small quantity of castor oil. Your scalp is probably too dry. Massage and brushing will keep the hair in a healthy state.

A Remedy for Dandruff

To an ounce of sulphur add a quart of soft water and during intervals of several days agitate the mixture repeatedly. After the sulphur has settled to the bottom of the receptacle use the clear liquid. Saturate the head with it every morning, and in a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will have disappeared. The hair will become soft and glossy, and there will be no return of the old trouble.

This remedy, however, will darken light hair.

Hands that are naturally red should not be washed in very hot water. The cosmetic given to be worn at night is often effective. The formula for these gloves is as follows:

To Make Cosmetic Gloves

Use soft, large leather gloves, three or four sizes too large. Rip them open and spread the inside with the following preparation, then sew the ripped seams up:

Cosmetic Glove Paste

Ground barley, the white of an egg, a teaspoonful of glycerin and 1 ounce of honey.

It is also a good habit to steep with the head down, the head to drain the blood from the hands.

For a Red Nose

My dear Mrs. Symes:

Kindly publish some formula that will relieve a red nose. Mine is red continually whether I have a cold or not.

AFFLICTED.

Lotion for Red Nose

Powdered camphor	1 dram
Zinc oxide	20 grains
Glycerin	1 ounce
Cherry laurel water	4 ounces

This lotion should be well shaken before it is rubbed on the nose. It may be used both morning and evening.

Blotches on Face

My dear Mrs. Symes:

I am a young man of 18 years and come to you for advice. I am greatly troubled with red blotches which appear on my face after shaving. I try to be as careful as possible, using a good shaving soap. Could you advise something to use after shaving?

A McKEESPORT BOY.

Probably the soap you use is irritating to the skin, or too drying. You may try the following healing lotion, or apply the witch hazel cream:

Witch Hazel Cold Cream

White wax	1 ounce
Spermaceti	½ ounce
Oil of almonds	¼ pint

Melt; pour into a mortar which has been heated by being immersed some time in boiling water. Very gradually add 3 ounces of rosewater and 1 ounce of witch hazel, and continue to stir the mixture until the emulsion is nearly cold, and afterward until the mixture is nearly cold.

This cream is particularly useful to heal sore or stretched skin.

Inflamed Skin

Boracic acid	1 dram
Distilled witch hazel	2 ounces
Rosewater	2 ounces

Oxide of zinc ointment may also be used.

For a Roughness of the Neck

My dear Mrs. Symes:

Please publish some remedy for a rough neck. Mine is rough and dark, and I also like to know something to keep my hair light.

C. C. W.

To keep your hair light, add the juice of a lemon to the last rinse water after washing the head. For the rough, dark neck, use the following lotions:

To Whiten the Skin

A teaspoonful of the tincture of benzoin to a tablespoonful of lemon juice. This is a well known lotion, which is excellent for whitening the skin.

Almond Lotion

Bitter almonds, blanched	4 ounces
Orange-flower water	2 ounces
Curd soap (any fine toilet soap)	½ ounce
Oil of bergamot	10 drops
Oil of canelle	10 drops
Oil of almonds	10 drops
Alcohol	4 ounces

For Superfluous Hair

My dear Mrs. Symes:

I have a growth of hair on my upper lip. Will you please tell me through your columns what will remove it? Isn't there some paste I could make up at home for it, and that will not grow hair again? Living in a small town I can consult no electric expert.

What will keep the hands soft and white even though doing housework?

READER.

I would not advise you to use a depilatory on the face. It will not remove the hairs permanently, and the growth will only be worse in time. Why not bleach the hair with peroxide or try the peroxide and ammonia in the proportion of one part of ammonia and six of peroxide? The hair will not be so noticeable when light. The following hand lotion, if kept within easy reach and applied after washing the hands, will keep them white and soft:

Lotion to Whiten and Soften Hands

Put into a bottle 2 ounces of glycerin, 2 ounces of water, 4 tablespoonfuls of lemon juice and a dram of ammonia. Cork and shake well. After washing and drying the hands, rub a little of the mixture into them.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

ENTERTAINING THE GIRL GRADUATE

BRIDES and sweet girl graduates share the honors during the rosy month of June, and most of the entertaining during this month is for these happy maids and matrons-to-be. While entertaining for the bride may take many forms, that for the girl graduate is usually in the form of a luncheon. Often the girl herself wishes to entertain her class before they shall separate for the summer and sometimes for years. In either case, whether she is hostess or guest of honor, the class will form the whole or part of her list of invited guests.

Invitations may be mere informal notes or they may be uniquely rolled diplomawise and tied with a knot of ribbon in the class colors. The latter would necessitate delivery by messenger or mailing in small cardboard tubes. Probably the best time for entertaining at a class luncheon is the day after commencement. The momentous day itself is so filled with excitement and the presence of many friends that the day following is to be preferred for the last reunion of the classmates. The luncheon should be ready to be served at 1:30 exactly.

As there will be so much to chat about and talk over from the commencement festivities, it is doubtful whether any special form of entertainment would be appreciated, so the hostess may expend her energies upon the decorations and the luncheon itself. If the weather permits and the hostess has such a thing, the porch offers an excellent setting for the luncheon table. Not more than ten or twelve at the most should be seated at one table; should the class number more than this, small tables should be called into use. Card tables will answer the purpose beautifully if first covered with an old folded tablecloth and then with a pretty luncheon cloth. Often small tables are more attractive than one large table, even when the number of guests does not require such an expedient.

Procure as many as possible of the class and school pennants. These may be thrown over the screens which will be needed to shield the porch luncheon from the gaze of passersby if vines are not thick enough, or to place before the kitchen doorway, so that the door may be left open and an easy progress made for the entrance of maid or waitress. If possible, the floral centerpiece of each table should be of the class flower. If these are out of season, American beauties, always associated with commencement times, can be substituted. A very few of these large roses, posed in the tall silver or glass "bud" vases, will be far prettier than any attempt at massing them into an elaborate floral centerpiece.

The class colors should be introduced into the table decorations unless, of course, they are of too gaudy or ugly a combination, as is too often the case with school colors. Place cards, and very attractive ones, can be made from white bristol board. Make them about five inches long by two wide and at the upper left-hand corner sketch in black ink a mortarboard cap, making it all black, silhouette fashion. At top and bottom of the has cut with a sharp knife a small slit, and through this slip a roll of paper, upon which has been written a quotation about wisdom or books. A tassel of black silk can be sewed through the cap and a name of a guest written on the card. Between courses have the guests guess the names of the authors of the various quotations, which should be numbered and passed around the table to the left until all have been seen. The answers may be written upon a separate card and the award may be a volume of familiar quotations.

For refreshments aim to make things as cool as possible. No one likes a series of hot dishes in June, especially young people whose appetites have become jaded from excitement and protracted feasting during the commencement festivities. Large California cherries dipped in water, then in powdered sugar and chilled may be served in tall glasses and will prove a pleasant change from the usual grapefruit cocktail. If you wish your luncheon somewhat elaborate, you may follow with a jellied bouillon, then creamed chicken in patty cups served with potato balls, hot biscuits, vegetable salad in chilled tomato cups, frozen strawberries, small cakes and candies.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Trying to Improve Her Manners

DEAR Mrs. Adams:

Is it proper to take olives from the serving dish with the fingers, or should a fork be provided?

On which side of a toy should a girl sit at a table when in an ice cream parlor?

How should an invitation to a musical recital be worded when you do not want the person invited to feel compelled to attend?

Is it proper for a girl to use colored writing paper?

What should one say when a person thanks you for an invitation to visit at your home when they intend to come?

I have a common school education, but lately have come to know some high school and college boys and girls. They are always correcting their own mistakes in grammar, and I feel as if they were laughing at me. It is very hard not to make mistakes, although I read and study and try to improve. What would you advise me to do? Stay with this crowd of boys and girls or go down a "notch" and go with a crowd that is more common?

CALIFORNIA.

Olives are usually served without a fork, and may be removed with the fingers.

It makes no difference which side the girl chooses to sit at a public table, unless there is a preferable side, such as near a window, or out of a draught.

A formal invitation may be accepted or not, as the invited one sees fit, so that the formal wording would be better for the case you mention.

While colored writing paper is not incorrect, white paper is always the safer choice, unless you can afford to change your stationery very often.

Say that you are very glad your invitation has been able to accept your invitation.

Unless you are very much at odds with the crowd of high school people, there should be no reason why you should drop them. You probably imagine that they are laughing at you. All other things being considered, if they like you, an occasional slip in grammar will not make any difference in their regard. Keep up your study and reading.

To Lillian

TO LILLIAN—I would not advise anything so public as a breach-of-promise suit. A girl who brings herself to such measures for revenge deserves all that the public will say of her. Ignore the invitation or announcement by the man's wedding and keep your disappointment and heartbreak to yourself.

A Stranger in Town

My dear Mrs. Adams:

I have been in this town but a short time. Last week two ladies called upon me and, as I was out, they left their cards. As I have never met these ladies, I am in doubt as to what to do. Shall I call upon them and introduce myself, or shall I merely wait for them to repeat their call?

NEWLYWED.

The ladies have discharged their duty by leaving cards, so that you will have to return their call within a fortnight, and if they are at home introduce yourself.

Worried About the Other Men

My dear Mrs. Adams:

I wish you would give me your advice in regard to a lady friend who is going with other men. She says she loves no one else but me, but when I ask her anything about the other men she never tells me the truth.

C. B.

If you are positive that the young lady is lying to you, she is certainly not to be trusted or loved. On the other hand, she may only be indulging in the fibs that many girls tell to lead you on. In that case I would overlook them, and unless you are engaged to be married, I would not question her about the other men.

What Shall She Say?

My dear Mrs. Adams:

When a young man tells me I am cute or pretty, what must I say?

When a young man calls me to make a date and it is impossible for me to go, what shall I say? If I could go, what would be proper for me to say?

When entering a church or a picture show, should the man or girl lead the way?

When leaving a young man at the door, what shall I say when he tells me he enjoyed being with me?

Is it proper for a young man to hold your arm all the way to church or wherever you are going?

When a young man brings you a box of candy, what should you say to him, and must you open it as soon as he gives it to you?

IGNORANT.

There are no fixed rules for what a girl should say under the circumstances you enumerate. Say what you think you ought to say; that is, you know the young man ought to be thanked for an invitation, a pleasure trip or candy, so say: "Thank you, I enjoyed the trip very much," or, "Aren't you good to bring this candy? We'll open it right away." A compliment is not an easy matter to receive gracefully. Smile and say something like, "That sounds very well," or, "I wish I could believe you", if you are able to accept an invitation, say: "Thank you. I know I shall enjoy it; it was good of you to think of me." If you cannot accept, say: "I'm more than sorry, but I have another engagement. I hope you will not forget me when you are planning another pleasure like this."

In entering any public place, a girl precedes, unless there is no usher to point out the seats, when the man takes the lead to avoid confusion.

A man takes a woman's arm only when there is need for protection, as at night or in a crowd.

Likes the Brother Better

My dear Mrs. Adams:

There is a young man who has been calling on me for the last two weeks. I do not like him at all. I have never met his brother, but I believe I would like him better. Please tell me how I can get rid of the other fellow, and how to meet his brother. Is it proper that I should make a call on his sister? They have recently moved in my neighborhood.

OUIDA.

The first young man may improve on acquaintance, so that I would not be hasty in sending him away. You might ask him to bring his brother to call some evening, asking another girl to make a little party. If you are accustomed to welcome new neighbors with a call, you might call on the sister, and then entertain them at some evening at your own home.

Addressing a Man in a Letter

My dear Mrs. Adams:

To settle a little discussion, will you please tell me whether it is correct or not when writing to a young man to say "My dear Mr. Brown," and is it correct to begin "dear" with a capital letter?

ANNE.

"My dear Mr. Brown" is the proper salutation when writing to a man.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND.

MAKING CITY HOME COMFORTABLE IN SUMMER.

WE talked last week of plans for going to the country, and I urged the desirability of making such a change whenever possible. I am not going back on those statements this week, and yet I would be unfair to a large proportion of my constituency did I fail to recognize the needs of those who cannot get away from home in the hot weather.

In the families where there are little children a sojourn in the pure country air is almost an essential. As I have said before, it is undoubtedly beneficial to children and adults alike. Yet if a man's business keeps him in the city all during the heated term; if there are no delicate persons in the family, no babies or growing boys and girls, it sometimes seems wiser for the rural expedition to be given up and for the housekeeper to abide at her post and look after the members of the household who must stand to their work, no matter what the temperature.

Possibly the house is to be kept open during the season and the different persons making up the family may take their vacations in relays, one or two at a time. The home cannot be closed, as in cases where every one goes away at once. Those who stay must be fed and made comfortable and the best plan is for the housekeeper to make ready for this by the time the hot weather is fairly upon her.

For the house that is attractive and cozy during the winter may be unspeakably stuffy and close in summer for the very reasons that render it pleasant when the mercury is low down in the tube. The handsome upholstered chairs, the rich and heavy hangings, the thick rugs and carpets all help to create and preserve an impression of warmth and lack of airiness. To render the house a fair substitute for a vacation outing certain decided changes must be made.

The owner of a long purse and plenty of space has no difficulty in compassing radical alterations. If there are carpets on the floor mattings can be laid down over these; when the floors are bare and polished the heavy rugs may be banished and their places taken by others of lighter quality. Light wicker and willow furniture may be substituted for the upholstered articles, and similar cooling changes made throughout the establishment.

Few of us are able to do this, however, and so we must set our brains to work to see what can be done with a small amount of money and labor to produce this same effect of airiness and lightness that may be won by the means just outlined.

The floors first. Most of the rugs can be taken up. The bare floors may show dust, but this is more easily removed with a hair broom than dirt is swept and beaten out of rugs or carpets. In the bedrooms, especially, no rugs should be left except a strip of carpet or matting by the bed and another before the dresser. Matting rugs come at low figures and the rag rugs which can be washed when soiled are excellent for summer use and cooler in appearance than those of wool.

The polished hardwood floor is, of course, the ideal; but even plain board floors, if well laid and rubbed with crude oil and turpentine to a smooth and even surface, are better than those covered with carpets which harbor dust and provide a breeding place for moths and other vermin.

Next as to the hangings. Portières must come down, not only that they may be put away and kept from dust and moth but also because their absence permits a freer sweep of air through the house. Curtains which will be injured by the alternate dampness and dustiness of the summer must be removed, the dirt washed out of them, and the draperies laid away, rough dry and without starch, until it is time to do them up or send them to the cleaners in the fall.

In many homes that I have known curtains are never left up during the summer. The ordinary shades take their place and draperies of all kinds are conspicuous by their absence. This plan has its advantages, and yet I confess to a liking for the daintiness of appearance imparted by light curtains at the windows. These may be purchased now at so small a figure that they cannot be called an extravagance unless there are many windows to be draped or the materials of which the hangings are made are destructible.

The woman who is ready with her sewing machine can buy sheer fabrics which will not be injured by washing and run them up in a brief space of time. Or she can find curtains ready made which require no work except that of running a rod or a tape through the place prepared for it and cost little or no more than the unmade material. I have in my own room now curtains which cost $1.50 a pair that have been in use for two or three years and go into the tub whenever they need it, as would a soiled white petticoat or an apron.

Such curtains are better made without ruffles or frills. They may have an edge of heavy linen lace, or be finished simply with a hemstitching or a wide hem. Scrim always wears well, and madras possesses the great advantage of demanding no ironing after washing. Until one looks into the matter one has no idea of how many pretty and inexpensive curtains are on the market, either made in the old way to which we are all accustomed or in the more recent Dutch style, which permits the curtains to hang straight, with an open space in the middle, finished off at the top by a ruffle which runs the width of the window.

The furniture is a good deal of a problem in hot weather to those who are not fortunate in attics or extra rooms in which to store large and heavy pieces. Lacking such resources and the ability to put wicker furniture in the place of the stuffed articles, covers of linen or duck or cretonne should be made for the latter. These are more than an aid to producing a cool effect or to rendering the chairs and sofas more comfortable. They protect the more expensive furniture material from dust and dirt and keep it from fading. Such coverings cannot be called an extravagance; rather they are a genuine economy.

Furniture makers manufacture such slips to order, but the woman who is clever with her needle can make them for herself at a good saving of cost. Materials should be chosen which will wear well and not fade, and a set of the coverings will last for years. There is no reason why the slips should be as ugly as they sometimes are, any more than there is an excuse for their always justifying their name by slipping and sliding off the chairs they profess to cover. If they are properly made and fastened on securely they may be neat as well as economical.

All unnecessary ornaments should be taken down, wiped, wrapped, and put out of the way for the summer. Left out, they not only catch the dirt, but add greatly to the work of the woman who takes care of the house, increasing her dusting and cleaning. Moreover, they make the house look hotter. There is a refreshment to the eye and spirit in the sight of bare and empty spaces instead of cumbered and cluttered shelves, tables, and bookcases.

I confess that the books are more or less of a problem in the summer. Unless one is possessed of closed cases the volumes are injured by the constant accumulation of dust upon them. They cannot all be wiped off every day or even every week. Yet the sight of books covered with papers or cloths is not cheering to those who must share the rooms with them during the whole summer. A substitute may be found perhaps in curtains which run on a rod and can be kept closed. Such curtains may be of attractive material, and the books are in a measure protected by them. In rooms which are not in constant use papers or cotton cloth should serve to cover the volumes closely and keep out as much dust as possible.

I have spoken of banishing ornaments, but this does not mean that a few pieces may not be left to impart a lived-in look to the room. Such articles should be of glass or porcelain rather than of metal, which will have to be cleaned and kept bright. The dampness we have in summer and which the necessity for open windows permits to enter the house tarnishes and clouds silver and brass. Better not to have them about at all than to have them dingy and soiled. On the same account silver should not be left to stand on the sideboard and blacken.

Several sensible housekeepers I know pack off their solid silver to the bank with the beginning of summer and use only plated ware. Then they can go away for a few days with no fear of damage that might be done by sneak thieves and the peace of mind thus gained is worth much more than the enjoyment of their pretty belongings.

A number of little touches may be given to produce the effect of coolness to which I have referred two or three times. Handsome table covers and scarfs should be beaten, brushed, and folded away and their place taken by white linen or grass cloth which can be thrown into the tub when soiled. Lace frills which cannot be easily laundered should be eliminated, along with ribbons, bows, tassels, and the like. All these are well enough in their place, but that is not in a city house during the dust and heat of the summer. The effort should be to have, so far as possible, only such articles as can be submitted to soap and water without injury.

Pictures are a little of a puzzle. I own to disliking exceedingly to see them shrouded in cloth and paper and I think I like even less the sight of mosquito netting with which some careful housekeepers protect them from the flies. I believe that personally I would rather take the pictures down altogether and have the bare walls.

Yet this is not necessary in many cases. Pictures with gilt frames may be injured by flies and dust, but those in wooden frames are not likely to be hurt. A rubbing with a damp or oiled cloth in the fall will restore them with little trouble or expense. Such pictures may be left in place and the others removed, to be brought forth when the cooler weather comes and give almost the joy of a new possession. The work of taking down and of rehanging, like the other efforts I have advised, will pay for themselves in the comfort and attractiveness won by the expenditure of time and labor.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"MORE than two years ago a letter was published in the Corner by the mother of several girls. She wrote of the happiness they had in their home and the kindness shown by her husband and children. Judging from your comments on the letter, I am sure you will not think me conceited if I speak of my apparent success in rearing my one child, a daughter now of the age of 19.

"I had been trying to bring her up in the old fashioned way, not 'sparing the rod and spoiling the child,' and was endeavoring to teach her to stay at home and work. Often we were both very unhappy. Then it was that I read an article written by the mother of boys. Her way with them was to throw them on their own responsibility and reason with them. She taught them that if they sinned they alone suffered and that sin brings its own punishment with it. She advised them what to do and they did as they thought best. Sometimes she made mistakes, and then she frankly admitted it; sometimes the children were wrong, and they naturally avoided making the same mistake again.

"My girl was about 8 years old at this time and I began to take this mother's advice. I have followed it for eleven years, so that I feel I can safely recommend it. Not long ago when an acquaintance was speaking of the good qualities my daughter possesses, I said, 'I take no credit to myself.' Then I told her of my way of managing. She is a mother of five bright little children, and when she said, 'I wonder if it would do in all cases?' I had some misgivings, as I thought of the mischief I had noticed in the eldest girl, but from certain things the mother told me of various points in the child's character I concluded it would be a good thing to give the children more freedom rather than less. MOTHER OF ONE."

This letter has interested me, for I am always glad to hear of the methods employed in the government of children. I am at a loss to know exactly what the writer means when she refers to the old fashioned way of bringing up children. So far as my experience went, there was a good deal in that method besides the use of the switch, teaching the children to stay at home and to work. There was implicit obedience required, but there was also instruction in the law of cause and effect so far as sin and consequent suffering were concerned, an effort to win and hold the confidence of the child, the study of strict justice and fairness and an attempt to inculcate a sense of responsibility in the child both to his parents and to God, as well as to his own character.

Perhaps my old fashioned theories and the principles on which the "Mother of One" has brought up her daughter may not be so far apart after all. In any case, the proof of the system is the success it achieves, and if the writer has comfort and pride and peace in her daughter her method undoubtedly worked properly.

Have other mothers tried this plan, and, if so, how has it worked? I think it would be not only interesting but helpful if mothers would compare their experience in the way of training their children. There are many methods of bringing up the little ones and each may have its merits as well as its drawbacks.

Needs a Baby Buggy.

"I am writing to ask a great favor of the Corner. Is there any one who has a baby buggy or go-cart to give away? I am not able to buy one, and, as I live out of town, I am not able to carry my baby back and forth every Sunday when I wish to attend Sunday school and church. I would be grateful to any Cornerite who has such an article as this with which to help me. MRS. M. L. P."

The writer of this lives in a small place, which makes it more difficult to comply with her wish than if her home were in a large city. Still, I trust her desire may be granted.

Keeps Hair Brush Clean.

"I see that Mrs. W. S. asks how to keep hair brushes clean. I have solved this problem and would like to pass my method along if it will help anyone else. Occasionally I wash the brush with warm water and ammonia. However, I believe frequent washings ruin the brush, and I keep mine clean by brushing out the lint and dust with an old whisk broom which I keep for that purpose. I have a stiff bristled hair brush. I also keep my oil floor mop clean with an old whisk broom, brushing out the dust and fluff each day after use. MRS. H. C. P."

This answer will be helpful to some of the rest of us who have discovered that frequent washing and soaking of brushes tends to soften and loosen the bristles. I am sure that if the hair is kept clean the regular and thorough brushing recommended will take the place of many washings. The suggestion is as valuable for the floor mop as for the hair brush.

To Finish a Quilt.

"I would like a few light and dark calicoes to finish a quilt I am making. If any of the Cornerites has some stray pieces to spare to me for that purpose.

"MRS. W. M."

I am sure some one must have some fragments of calico or gingham to give this correspondent. I have her name on file and will send it on application.

In Government Bulletin.

"If A. R., who inserted a query in a recent issue of the Corner, will write to Washington for Part F, Bulletin No. 36, the publications of the United States National museum, she will find full directions given there for collecting and preserving insects of all kinds.

"E. B."

I hope A. R. will see this and I am sure she will be grateful for the information given. Only those who follow the work done by our government in issuing free bulletins which are of value to the people at large know how great is the scope of the information given and which can be obtained by a simple request.

Working for Her Children.

"I am writing to ask a great favor of the Corner. I am the mother of nine children, and have to work to help out as that my children can go to school, as I want them to have a good education. I have been doing laundry work, but if I could get an incubator I could raise chickens on shares and make as much money as I can by washing. I can see that my health is failing and that I must find something else to do which is not quite so heavy. I do not care how old the incubator is. If some one has such an article for which there is no further use I will gladly pay the charges on it and O, how glad and thankful I would be! I can hardly expect such a boon, I suppose, but after all, who knows what the Corner can do? I have some papers and magazines that I will gladly give to any one who will pay the cost for sending them. MRS. A. M. R."

I hope the writer may get what she wishes and have a means for making money easier than standing at the washtub and the ironing table—a hard enough task for a well woman, but too much for one in failing health. Certainly the object for which she is trying to earn money—to give her children an education—is one which will appeal to mothers and fathers alike and I hope may bring the boon she craves. Her offer of papers and magazines will doubtless be promptly accepted.

Want Reading Matter.

"I would be glad to get some of the magazines offered by a kind woman in a recent number of the Corner. My husband and I both love to read magazines, but as we are poor and my husband was out of work for a whole month and even now barely makes enough for our living, and a poor one at that, we cannot afford to buy reading matter. MRS. J. K."

Unfortunately the writer made the common error of omitting to give the signature of the friend who offered the magazines, and so we are unable to bring giver and applicant in touch with one another. I trust that some one else with magazines to bestow may see this request and answer it. The woman who makes it would be glad not only of periodicals but of a little assistance in garments for her two small boys, aged respectively 3 and 2 years.

How to Can Mushrooms.

"I would be greatly obliged if you or your Cornerites would tell me in the paper how to can mushrooms. MRS. J. P. S."

The only recipe I have in my possession for canning mushrooms is not one which I can conscientiously recommend as absolutely trustworthy. It orders that the mushrooms shall be picked over, stemmed and peeled, packed into jars, these set over the fire in a boiler and surrounded with hot water, cooked until smoking hot, the liquid in the jars increased by boiling salted water until the jars are filled to overflowing, when the tops are screwed down tight. This has been given to me and I pass it on, but, as I say, I am afraid it is not absolutely to be depended upon. I therefore appeal to those of my Cornerites who may have had experience in canning mushrooms and ask if they can give me directions which will insure success and that I may print in the Corner.

Polish Formula for Floors.

"Will you kindly give me a recipe for a polish for a cedar mop to be used on hard wood floors? I have fifty rooms to take care of and cannot possibly afford to buy the polishes on the market. I would like something like a liquid veneer. I have a recipe calling for equal parts each of linseed oil, turpentine, and vinegar, but I find it too heavy and it has made all my mops and floors sticky and greasy. MRS. R. S."

In my own house I never use a fluid on hard wood floors. Twice a year I have the floors gone over by a man who understands waxing or oiling them. I am told that one of the best formulas for an application used at such times calls for one part of turpentine and two parts of crude linseed oil, to which common salt is added in the proportion of a tablespoonful to a gallon of fluid. This mixture must be rubbed well into the wood and the floor must not be walked on for several hours afterward, when it may be rubbed again with a dry, soft cloth. When this treatment has been given the floor must be dusted every day with one of the hair brushes or "dustless mops," which come for the purpose, or gone over with a broom wrapped with a cloth. No water must touch the boards unless a spot must be removed, in which case little water is used and a small amount of oil is rubbed into the washed spot as soon as it is dry. With such care as this there is no need for using an oiled mop on a well prepared floor and the housekeeper is thereby saved labor and cost. I am always open to conviction, however, and if some of our workers have better methods than this to recommend I shall be happy to receive them and to give them a place in the Corner for the benefit of this special correspondent and others.

Need Almost Everything.

"I cannot refrain any longer from writing to you, for I have received so much good from the Corner that I must say a word of thanks. When I read of the little blind girl and her separation from her anxious mother I could not keep back the tears, for, I, too, owing to bad health, have been separated many times from my children and I know what she must have to suffer. I have had rheumatism for years and at times I am so crippled with it that I am not able to dress myself. I have two boys, aged 16 and 14, and one girl, 9 years old. How many things we need! Like many others, I will not ask for anything especially, but will just trust that some kind friend will send such objects as will be of help to a mother with three bright children. We need almost everything. I am able to sew only a little at a time and am not able really to hire it done, because of the smallness of our income. I have some books I would be glad to give to any one who would pay the postage on them. I also send a recipe for ambrosia that I often use and that is really fine: Select four large oranges, two apples, one pineapple, and five bananas. Peel the fruit, cut it up small, and grate half a cocoanut fine. Put all the fruit together in a bowl, strewing the cocoanut over it, and sprinkling with a cup and a half of fine sugar. Let all stand together for three hours before serving. A pretty way to serve this is to cut the oranges crosswise, remove the pulp without breaking the skin, and use the halved peels to hold the ambrosia.

"MRS. W. S. M."

I am glad the Corner has been so much help to this correspondent and I hope some one may be found who will be able to send her what she needs for her family. The wants of such a household are many. The ambrosia for which she gives a recipe is good, although to my mind it is better if not allowed to stand quite so long before serving. The sugar has a tendency to toughen the fruit and this withers if cut up for such a length of time before eating. The apple and bananas also discolor when peeled and sliced.

Two Sides to Servant Problem.

"I enjoyed your recent talk on dishwashing so much, because you uphold using the mop, not only on the cups but on all the china. I employ every modern method to lighten the work, so that it does not become drudgery, but remains a good way to exercise one's self and 'sweet' while doing so. The mistress and the maid business is a big subject, which has two sides to it and when both employer and employed have common sense and a fair sense of justice, there is no 'servant problem.' C. H. M."

I am grateful for the words of approval of my method of dishwashing. I am also interested in C. H. M.'s attitude towards the servant problem and agree with her in her point of view. Common sense and justice help to smooth and rectify most strained situations.

Bran Muffins.

"I give the following recipe for bran muffins, which are good and wholesome: Break together two eggs, one teaspoon of salt, one tablespoon of sugar; add two cups of white flour, one large teaspoon of baking powder, half a teaspoon of soda, two tablespoons of warmed butter, one cup of sour milk. Beat together well; have the muffin tins hot and well greased. These are delicious. MRS. P. J. P."

This recipe will be welcome to all lovers of the coarse and wholesome breads.

$10,000 for 1,000 Words or Less

"THE DIAMOND FROM THE SKY"

The American Film Manufacturing Company's Picturized Romantic Novel in Chapters.

This contest is open to any man, woman or child who is not connected directly or indirectly with the Film Company or the newspapers publishing the continued story.

You are advised to see the continued photoplay in the theaters, read the story as it runs every week, and then send in your suggestion. By following the narrative in print and observing the action on the screen, you will be given a splendid opportunity to supply a suggestion for a sequel.

A board of three judges will decide which of the suggestions received is most acceptable. The judgment of that board will be absolute and final.

SPECIAL NOTICE:

Suggestions for a sequel will be accepted up to and including February 20, 1916. As it is the IDEA that is wanted, no attention will be paid to literary style. Contestants must confine their contributions to 1,000 words or less.

Send all suggestions to THE AMERICAN FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY, 6227 BROADWAY, CHICAGO, ILL.

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

A bitter feud, engendered over an heirloom, "the diamond from the sky," fomd in a meteor by an ancestor, has existed between Col. Arthur Stanley and his cousin, Judge Lamar Stanley. The feud is augmented by the fact that the succession to the Stanley earldom in England may come to an American family. When his wife dies after having given birth to a daughter Col. Stanley buys and substitutes as heir a new born gypsy boy. Three years later the gypsy mother steals the colonel's daughter, who is being reared in secret, and obtains possession of the "diamond from the sky" and a document that holds the secret of the false heir.

When the daughter, Esther Stanley, whom Hagar has grown to love, grows up Hagar returns to Virginia with her, hoping to right the wrong done her and that she has done. She obtains the consent of Dr. Lee, Col. Stanley's old friend, to adopt Esther as his daughter in the hope that Hagar's son, the supposed Arthur Stanley II. will fall in love with Esther and so she will become mistress of Stanley hall, which is her right. Dr. Lee exacts as his condition that he keep in custody the fateful diamond. Dr. Lee warns Hagar that her son is a profligate, unfit for Esther, but she hopes for the best. Arthur falls in love with Esther, as does his boon companion, Blair Stanley, the cousin, who would be the rightful heir to the earldom were the secret known.

In endeavoring to steal the diamond from Dr. Lee, Blair causes the death of the old doctor. On leaving the house after the deed he encounters Arthur, and to divert suspicion infers he has left Esther's room. A duel follows, in which Arthur is victor. Arthur takes the diamond from Blair's breast and leaves his victim for dead. Accused of the murder of Dr. Lee, Arthur flees to Richmond, where he lives under an assumed name. Blair, too, having recovered from the blow, goes to Richmond. Blair is forced to visit a pawnshop through his riotous gambling, and Arthur, running out of funds, is forced to pawn the "diamond from the sky." They meet and, after explanations about the death of Dr. Lee, agree to stand by each other and to spend one jolly night together at a ball at which a supposed New York society woman is the guest of honor. The society belle in reality is an adventuress, and she, through the gambler who has won Blair's money, obtains the loan of the "diamond from the sky" from the pawnbroker, who is the gambler's brother. Hagar also attends the ball to tell fortunes. Blair, Hagar, and Arthur are mutually dumfounded to find the diamond on the breast of Vivian Marsten, the "belle." Under the pretense of telling her fortune, Hagar seats the adventuress near a curtain, from behind which a hand reached out first to throttle Vivian and then to steal the "diamond from the sky."

It is Luke Lovell, a gyper, who has stolen the diamond, and, about to be caught red handed by the police, he drops the diamond in a mail box. In the uproar that follows at the ball a sheriff suddenly appears and demands the surrender of Arthur on the charge of murder of Dr. Lee. Arthur remembers the pledge to Blair and, knocking down the police, makes his escape by riding the brakes of an outgoing freight train. The "diamond from the sky" in the meantime has been swept by the mail carrier into a mail bag and, one of the prongs of its setting having caught on the bag, is left inside when the mail is dumped at the postoffice. Later the bag drops from the wagon and a passing hunchback organ grinder first calls to the driver and then examines the bag to find in it the diamond. Dreaming dreams of wealth, of plenty to eat for himself and his monkey, the organ grinder camps on the outskirts of the city. But during the night the monkey climbs the tree with the diamond and, finding a bird's egg in a nest, takes the egg and leaves the diamond in its place. Arthur, in the meantime, is attacked by hoboes when the train stops, robbed of his money and his evening clothes, but, fortunately, is left with the tattered outfit of one of the tramps. No longer likely to excite suspicion by his appearance, he asks for work at a farmside. Learning there is to be a tournament in Richmond at which the riders are to be masked, Arthur borrows a horse from the farmer, meets Esther alone, and informs her he is going to ride in the tourney and will crown her Queen of Love and Beauty. Blair also has promised Vivian Marsten he will win and crown her. Blair is unseated by Arthur, who wins the tilt, and in his rage and discomfiture, having recognized Arthur, he discloses to the sheriff Arthur's identity. Quabba, the organ grinder, facilitates Arthur's escape by clapping the handcuffs of the sheriff on Blair and the sheriff.

THE MONTICELLO CLUB HOLDING A FOX HUNT

[Copyright: 1915: By Roy L. McCardell.]

CHAPTER VII.

"THE FOX AND THE PIG."

THE knights of the tournament, now frenzied with excitement, pressed on Arthur, effectually barring his way to the gate. These hot headed young Virginians had been the friends, comrades, and admirers of Arthur from boyhood up, but the death of Dr. Lee and Arthur's flight had filled them with bitter resentment against their former companion. Everybody in Fairfax had loved Dr. Lee.

There was none who had been the recipient of his genial kindnesses more than Arthur. Hence, when to shield Blair, because he believed he had wronged him in being the usurper heir of Stanley, Arthur had by his flight and disappearance accepted the onus of guilt, all Fairfax was in anger heat against him.

The struggle of the young horsemen seeking to stay and capture the now betrayed and unmasked Arthur took place directly in front of the grand stand. The excited crowd watched the titan struggle of the centaurs in tense silence for a brief moment, but above the sounds of struggle rose the hoarse voice of the sheriff as he struggled excitedly to loosen himself from the handcuffs with which the tricky Quabba had bound him to Blair. On his part, Blair held back, as though the steel manacle on his wrist was a prophetic stigma.

The bold eyes of Vivian Marston were directed in frank admiration toward the superb feats of horsemanship and strength of his own efforts with which Arthur Stanley fought off the encircling cavaliers.

Fascinated also, as they watched the struggle below them, Esther and Hagar had forgotten the sting of the humiliation they had been subjected to in being snubbed and ignored by Mrs. Lamar Stanley, her cousin, Mrs. Randolph, the society leader from Richmond, and Vivian Marston, just at the moment when Arthur, as the masked victorious knight, had come to crown Esther as Queen of Love and Beauty.

A wild cry rose in unison from the crowded stand and men, women, and children arose excitedly and shrieked as Arthur suddenly wheeled his horse and drove it to the far end of the grand stand and up the lower stairs and right in among the spectators.

When his horse reached the center aisle, the crowd in panic breaking the seats and benches as they gave way before horse and rider, Arthur turned the gallant Starlight up this central passage, waved to Esther and Hagar as he thundered by, then, breasting his horse at the back rail of the stand, he plunged with Starlight down from the back of the stand to the ground, some fifteen feet below. Never had such a wild feat of horsemanship been beheld in Fairfax, home of wild riders.

As with one accord the panic passed and a tumult of curiosity succeeded. Men and women who had shrank in alarm from the hoofs reverberating through the wooden ways of the grand stand now rushed in one accord up the aisles and over the benches and in wonderment beheld steed and rider, the dizzy leap made in safety, disappearing in the distance.

Among those who had rushed up the aisle were Mrs. Judge Stanley's party and Hagar and Esther. As the gallant horse and rider disappeared in a cloud of dust down the road, Vivian Marston turned and with heaving breast and flashing eyes openly voiced her admiration.

"There is a man," she cried, "who is worth a woman's while!"

Esther shrank back at the word, spoken, as it seemed, to her. She felt a chill at her heart, and from that moment she realized that this woman had crossed her path in life and Arthur's like some baleful yet beautiful serpent.

The mounted knights charged through the gateway in pursuit; the sheriff, tossing the key of the handcuffs to Blair, had gained his horse and had followed after the pursuers. Shielding and hiding the dangling handcuff as best he could, for in his nervousness he could not open the lock upon his wrist, Blair cursed Quappa, the grinning hunchback organ grinder, and rejoined his mother and her friends. He had loosened the handcuff at last, but the mocking Vivian had insisted it be retained as a souvenir of what she termed "The Leap of the White Knight."

So ended the last masked tournament of the knights of Fairfax, and the excited dowagers and maidens were driven to their homes recounting the exciting events of the day, while their husbands, brothers, and fathers, who had come on horseback, were far on their way in pursuit of the fugitive.

The day had been too much for Mrs. Burton Randolph's "poor nerves," as she expressed it. She regarded her Fairfax relatives with smoldering animosity. What had the Fairfax Stanleys done but break up her ball in Richmond with a shameful attendant notoriety? And now when she had come to Fairfax to forget, another horrid contretemps had occurred to further rack her already shattered nervous system. She resolved to return to Richmond and seek seclusion and, if possible, forgetfulness, there.

Some twenty miles away the Monticello hunt was riding to hounds. The Monticello hunt, a rival social organization of the next county, made it a point to hold a fox hunt always upon the day that the élite of Fairfax county held their masked old time tournament. If you were socially prominent in Monticello you must consider that no such thing as the Fairfax tournament ever took place. In turn, the old families of Fairfax likewise ignored the Monticello hunt.

Arthur's daring and dramatic escape had given him considerable lead over his pursuers. This lead he increased considerably, and he had quieted Starlight to a less strenuous pace on an unfrequented road some fifteen miles from Fairfax when he beheld the Monticello hunt in full cry after a wary old dog fox, crossing the fields some several hundred yards ahead. Starlight was an old fox hunter.

Roused to renewed life and his fatigue passing from him at the baying of the hounds and the crying of the huntsmen, Arthur's no longer jaded horse turned briskly from the road and made after the chase. Arthur let Starlight follow his bent, noting that the way he was taking across the fields was a shorter route to the safety and shelter of the Smith farm.

A small colored boy driving a fractious pig beheld with much interest and some alarm the travel stained man and the horse join in the fox chase, as he had drawn to the side of the road to let Arthur pass. The colored lad had been nearly bowled over by the hunt-stirred Starlight when that eager animal's legs had encountered the rope which was attached to the hind lock of the fractious pig.

Just ahead of him, in a hollow at the bottom of the field by a sunken fence, Arthur beheld the last of the huntsmen make a leap upon his horse, only to come a nasty cropper and to lay in a huddled heap, strangely still, against a storm felled old tree. The hunter's horse stopped with an abrupt jerk as the fallen reins caught and held him tightly by one of its gnarled branches.

Arthur rode over and dismounted. The hunter was dead, his face bruised and disfigured where it had struck the log, breaking his neck.

Then Arthur remembered the colored boy with the pig and the pursuit that he had outdistanced. The colored boy would tell which way he had gone. He had been a fool to leave the highway.

Then a wild idea seized Arthur. This man was dead and beyond all aid. He hurriedly changed his coat, with its white stock of Italian stock. A word in Romany fell on his astonished ear from the lips of the grande dame at the portals of this grand house, as she gave orders to Luke that Quabba be cared for at the kitchen of Stanley hall. This done, Hagar was prepared to go upon her mysterious errand with, as Esther noticed, the black flat portfolio the strange man from Richmond had brought that day, when her keen gypsy eye noticed that the horse was slightly lame.

"I am not going so very far, so it doesn't matter if I walk," said Hagar, and kissed Esther again and went upon her way. Little did Esther dream of the strange return this secretive yet kind woman whom she deemed her mother was to make to Stanley hall!

At Mrs. Lamar Stanley's house that austere woman sat upon her piazza, rocking and waiting for Blair to return from inside the house. She had more to say to her son, and as she reflected upon the bitter phrasing of the words she would speak her heart ached dully.

What was the use? she kept saying to herself, What was the use? What use the ambition, the cold, calculating ambition that had darkened her life and had caused the tragic death of her husband eighteen long years ago?

What was the use to scheme and plot and hope and hate for a bauble that had disappeared—the Diamond from the Sky—and an earldom farther away than even distant Warwickshire?

The Diamond from the Sky and the earldom were not for her. They were never to be the possessions of the son of her body, either, it would seem. Dead men lay between, and a living man, a wanderer and a fugitive, and the earl, old and feeble, a helpless invalid for years, still lingered on. And Arthur Stanley proscribed as a murderer though he was, bore a charmed life that stood between her son and the earldom and the Diamond from the Sky!

The Diamond from the Sky itself was gone, vanished from the sight of man. As for her son, that son was infatuated with a worthless woman. Vivian Marston would make a fit mate for Blair Stanley, son she had born and reared!

But bitter as all these reflections were, the Stanley pride was strong in the breast of Blair's mother. Bad as he was, she thought, it were better he never possess the Diamond from the Sky or the Stanley earldom with such a woman to share these great possessions!

And then the judge's widow saw coming toward her Hagar Harding, the present mistress of Stanley hall.

At the sight of Hagar, Mrs. Stanley stiffened and instinctively all the old hopes and all the old hatreds leaped again within her withered breast. She rose as if to enter her house and ignore Hagar, but Hagar stayed her with a gesture.

"Do not go, Mrs. Stanley," said Hagar in even tones. "I have with me the proofs that your son, and not Arthur Stanley, is guilty of the murder of Dr. Henry Lee," and she indicated with a meaning gesture the flat, black portfolio she carried, the same portfolio Detective Blake had brought from Richmond.

"Hush!" whispered the judge's widow tensely. "Come inside!" And she led her strange guest within the portals of her home and up to the living room. Here Hagar without a further word showed her the photographs of the thumb prints left by the murderer in Dr. Lee's study and the photograph of the returned dishonored check, with the fatal inky thumb print of Blair Stanley resting against his signature, as though he had attested to it.

"I will get my son, he is somewhere about the house!" cried Mrs. Judge Stanley. "What is the price you ask for your silence? I cannot think you would come here except to bargain."

"My price is an easy one," replied Hagar. "I ask that you and all your friends receive my daughter Esther and myself in Fairfax. I have only this to say: Deem me whom you may, my daughter Esther is of as high birth and blood as the proudest families of Fairfax!"

"What you ask can be arranged, I feel sure," said the judge's widow, regaining her cold composure. "Wait here till I find my son!" And Mrs. Stanley bowed and hurried down to the porch, where she called loudly for Blair, thinking perhaps he was in the garden or at the stable.

Meanwhile Blair, in the "Tory hiding place" behind the chimney, had heard every word that had been uttered in the room. In his hands he clutched a mass of bank notes. Thrusting them into his pocket, he touched the spring and pushed aside the swinging fireplace noiselessly.

Hagar stood by the table, her back to the fireplace, watching the door. In her hands were the incriminating photographs of the thumb prints of Blair Stanley. As she turned at the sound of Blair's advance he struck her down with the heavy iron poker and she fell to the floor as though lifeless, in a crumpled heap.

As Blair stooped to seize the photographs of his guilty thumb prints that had fallen to the floor a gleam of steel on the table caught his eye. It was the sheriff's handcuffs that Vivian Marston had brought to the house with her and left for Blair, as she said, mockingly, "as a souvenir of the White Knight's leap!"

Hagar moaned and stirred. Blair could hear his mother calling him in the hallway now. He seized the handcuffs and clasped them on the unresisting wrists of Hagar. Picking her up, he thrust her in the "Tory's hiding place" and hastily swung the wall back in position, leaving the unconscious woman in darkness of Hagar imprisoned by the broken open chest in the darkened niche.

At this instant he heard his mother on the threshold and hastily closed with the photographs and the stolen money by the door that led to the inner rooms and is gone.

HAGAR SHOWED HER THE PHOTOGRAPHS OF THE THUMB PRINTS

Far away a colored boy, who had been driving a pig the day the gentlefolk of Fairfax held their vaunted tournament, is playing he is a hunter after eagles.

He has a wooden gun, this colored boy who herds pigs while gentle white folk ride to tournament and to chase the fox, and with his wooden gun he plays a part in the destinies of those concerned in this strange story.

For beneath a wayside tree he finds a handful of feathers. "Owls up dar!" says the mimic hunter, and he drops the rude wooden gun and climbs the tree. An owl flies from its nest with a querulous screech.

That evening an obscure negro urchin, whose lot it is that he must attend to swine, leans over a noisesome stye, and dangles before an unappreciative pig, gorging at his swill, the Diamond from the Sky!

Fairfax and never return.

"You have been under enough evil influences in following the promptings of your own unfortunate ways," says his mother coldly. "This Vivian Marston cannot deceive me for a moment, as she seems to have completely deceived our society leader relative of Richmond. And," she added bitterly, "as she seems to have also completely deceived and infatuated you!

"You shall have no money of my saving to waste upon an adventuress such as I feel sure this Vivian Marston is. Stay here with me and turn your hand to more useful work than wasting the little money I yet possess."

Blair made no reply, but inwardly he felt wild curses mounting to his lips, and he flung himself into the house, leaving his mother alone on the porch ere he might utter them.

But he was resolved to leave Fairfax, and he was resolved to again see and regain the favor of Vivian Marston, who had woven her spells around him.

There was no time like the present, was his thought. Blair went rapidly up the steps and into the living room on the second floor, while his mother remained in bitter contemplation on the piazza. He nerved himself to his desperate undertaking. He closed the door of the living room behind him. He pressed the spring, and the "Tory hiding place" behind the chimney opened.

Taking the heavy poker from the fireplace that now was swung outward into the room, Blair stepped into the recess and closed the hiding place after him. Here he lit a candle and furiously pried at the old iron-bound chest where, among his father's papers, his mother kept the ready money which she, like her husband had before her, lent out at heavy interest to such unfortunates as fell into her meshes—when their security was good.

Luke Lovell, who spent his time at Stanley hall partly, and partly as headman under Hagar at the gypsy rendezvous some dozen miles away in a hidden fastness of the Blue Ridge, brought around the horse and buggy to the front of Stanley hall. At this instant a diversion was caused by the appearance of a hunchback organ grinder hurrying up the driveway. It was Quabba, his monkey, shrieking with fright, clinging closely to his master's breast. Behind them came Sheriff Sam Swain on horseback, lashing the unfortunate Quabba with his riding whip.

"He's lucky I am only chasing him out of the county!" explained the irate sheriff. "But for the trick he played upon me yesterday I would have caught Arthur Stanley. Do you know what this organ grinding, monkey toting imp of Satan did? Why, he handcuffed me to Blair Stanley, and Arthur Stanley, the murderer, who had the nerve to come riding at the mask tournament, got away! I could have this organ grinder for the rifled cash box and the dead doctor's throat, and one other is the reproduction of the plain mark of his ink stained thumb, stained by a leaky fountain pen, made on the bad check he passed on Abe Bloom, gambling den keeper of Richmond.

The check has come back to the vindictive, angry gambler, marked "No funds," and when Abe Bloom has called upon the Blake Detective agency to aid him to recover the amount of the check the wily Tom Blake has in his possession the convincing identification he has been seeking—the duplicate thumb print of the murderer of Dr. Lee. The thumb print of Blair Stanley!

The astute if not overscrupulous detective is working only for his client, Hagar Harding, who pays him well. There is no reward offered for the apprehension of Blair Stanley or any other man save the innocent Arthur Stanley. Detective Blake knows that Hagar will use the evidence he brings her in her own time and in her own way. It concerns him no further, for the present at least, and he takes his fee and returns to Richmond, strangely enough on the same train that bears Mrs. Burton Randolph, "in a state of nervous depression," and the ever vivacious Vivian Marston. He sits behind them and smiles grimly as he hears them utter the name of Blair Stanley, "such a dear boy!"

Blair and his mother have returned from the little station at Fairfax, after seeing their late guests to the train. Blair and his mother are at daggers drawn. He asks that she give him money and let him go upon his way in the world, as he wishes to leave

Just Before That They Began Crowing Like Chickens About 2 a.m. They Also Interfered With Mr. Cal Hall's Fishing

NEWTON, Ga.—The mosquito crop in this section is fine. The other morning we woke up and thought we heard the chickens crowing, so we got up and lit a lamp to dress. We looked at the clock and it was just 2 a. m. We hadn't heard a chicken at all; it was the mosquitoes singing. Last Saturday night Messrs. W. F. Norris and H. E. Davis left here for Albany. They got a few miles out and the gasoline gave out. They switched on all the lights and in a few minutes enough mosquitoes had gathered around the car to push them back to Newton. Mr. Cal Hall went bobbing on the river, and when he would cast his bob so many mosquitoes would light on it before it hit the water that the trout would think the bob was a barrel of rosin and would not strike. The mosquitoes have done so many queer things lately that if we told you of them all you might suspicion that we were lying.

Hen is Mothering a Litter of Kittens

MIAMI, Fla.—Thomas Gaynor, of Punta Gorda, Fla., near Carpinteria, has a hen which has taken possession of a litter of kittens and is attracting a great amount of attention. The kittens are two weeks old now, but they have been under the care of Biddy since their birth.

Biddy was sitting on eggs when the mother cat gave birth to the kittens in the same manger with her. She immediately left the eggs and hovered the kittens. The only way the kittens have of gaining sustenance is by sneaking away from the hen to their mother who keeps a safe distance away from Biddy.

On occasions, the hen takes the litter out for a scratch in the dirt, but while they appear to take a great interest in what she is doing, they are unable to find any food matter in the earth she tears up.

"Shep," Homesick Dog, Travels 1,700 Miles

YAZOO CITY, Miss.—A few months ago G. R. Bolen, of Nebraska, moved to Yazoo county to make his home, bringing with him a fine shepherd dog. He expected to embark quite extensively in the sheep-raising business and the dog was trained to assist at that work. However, "Shep" was not satisfied and longed for his old home on the plains of Nebraska. One morning the dog was missing and his master was greatly worried, supposing he had wandered away or that he had been stolen by somebody who knew of his valuable qualities. In a few days Mr. Bolen received a telgram from his old home in Nebraska informing him the dog had returned to his old home, a distance of 1,700 miles. He was returned to Yazoo county by express and is now herding sheep in his new home as if reconciled.

Meanest Thief Steals Setting Hen and Eggs

COLDWATER, Miss.—The meanest thief in this section is doubtless the one who visited the home of Joe Poag and took a hen and the eggs upon which she was setting. Poag and his family were spending the night with his father, who was thought to be in a dying condition. When they returned home they found that some one had taken advantage of their absence and stolen the hen and the eggs. Next day the hen returned home, having refused to stay upon the eggs in their new location.

Twin Catfish are Caught at Biloxi

BILOXI, Miss.—John Aggregaard, of this city, has a curiosity in the form of a twin catfish which he caught July 22, 1912, and which he has preserved in alcohol. The fish are small, not more than two and a half inches long, but are perfectly formed and joined together like the Siamese twins. Mr. Aggregaard believes he has the only specimen of the kind ever caught.

JEDGE JOHNSING'S POLICE MATINEE

By Ward Greene.

Taking the Kinks Out

In messin' roun' dis world an' all,
hit's mos'ly been mah luck,
(The Person I am quoting was Daniel Dempsey Buck),
Ter fin' out whar er nigger's wool am classed as ornament
Dat bacon mixed wid axle grease do mek er pow'ful scent.
—Reveries of a Burhead.

SOME sport was Ebenezer Angel. His shirts snatched their hues from the rainbow and his coat and trousers were processionals in black and white. On his feet were shoes of vivid tan, a necktie flamed crimson from its celluloid collar and the little straw hat Ebenezer wore would have ravished the soul of a chorus man.

Above all Ebenezer was redolent with perfume. It mattered not that its scent partook strangely of the essence of frying bacon. He was redolent with it, he floated in a cloud of it, gloried in its strength—which was the main idea with Ebenezer.

"Ebenezer Angel!" thundered the court, and Ebenezer stepped forth in all his splendor to answer the allegations of his wife. She was a hard-fisted woman—a "high yaller"—and she chewed on a snuff stick while she glared at Ebenezer.

"Dat's him! Dar he is!" she shrilled, giving Ebenezer a minute inspection. "Ain't dat er sweet spec'men fo' er husban'! I could love him ter death wid er rollin' pin. Hones' ter goodness, Jedge Johnsing, am dat er man or er hickey?"

The court disclaimed all knowledge of Ebenezer's specie and sternly ordered Dora to proceed with her complaint.

"I ain't got no com-plaint," said

Dora, shaking her kinky head, "Not sence de chilblains leab' me las' fall. But I sho'ly got er kick 'bout dat piece er spiled turnip standin' dar. I'se er hard wukkin' 'oman, jedge, but dat man pester me ter death stealin' mah lard. Come home at night, git ready ter cook supper, look in de lard can—ain't nothin' dar. Dat nigger done clean it plum out! Git me lard, lock de do', nigger clim' in de winder, tek it eb'y bit. Ain't no keepin' lard an' dat man at de same time."

"What does he do with it, Dora?" asked the judge.

Dora took one long sniff.

"Kain't you smell it, jedge? Dat's what he do wid it. He sech er bifalutin' nigger he's boun' ter slick his ha'r down an' he do it wid mah lard. He say he don't lak kinky ha'r an' hit teks fo' buckets er week ter keep his ha'r straight. An' dat am too much!"

"I agree with you, Dora," pronounced the judge. "But I'll discharge Ebenezer this time with the promise that if he ever gets up here again I'll stick something to him that didn't come out of the lard can."

Musical Itch

All erbout Chris'mus comin' in June;
Nebber griev, mah lady, nebber let er sigh,
All erbout Janniwary's Fo'fun July!
—Mixed Months.

RASTUS BROWN, a "bifalutin' nigger" so the neighbors said, had aroused the enmity of Helt's Half Acre by insistent communion with the banjo at all hours of the night. He struck the opening chord at sunset, they declared, and welcomed the dawn with a burst of melody.

His devotion to the Muse was interfering with family slumber all up and down Raspberry lane. First they had tried requests, then force. Articles of household furniture hurled at the Brown residence had no effect on the singer and his song; so, as a last resort, they had Rastus pulled.

Even in court he refused to be separated from his banjo, carrying it jealously under one arm the while he addressed the recorder.

"Jedge," he declaimed, "I'se er musical man. When er chune gits ter wukkin' in mah bones I'se 'bleeged ter git it out, an' hit do seem lak de chune itch git me eb'ry night come dark."

"You're a composer, are you, Rastus?" inquired the judge.

"Naw, suh, I wuks in er steam laundery," replied Rastus.

"You don't understand. I mean to say you write music. Do you?"

"Well, suh," said Rastus, soberly, scratching his head. "I don't e'zactly write it. Nah, suh. But I do feel hit some way an'ur. Now, I'd be right pleased ter knock yo' all off er chune heah in de co't."

This was what Rastus sang:

"'Tater pie, O 'tater pie,
You sut'inly do strike mah eye;
In de springtime, in de fall,
Ah loves you, 'tater, best ob all!"

"Does you wanter 'nudder song, jedge?" asked Rastus suddenly, opening his eyes. The judge nodded his consent. Rastus again proceeded with his formula and lit into what he termed "De 'Lanter Blues."

Dem lovin', 'lanter blo-o-oes!
Git you in de liver an' git you in de back;
Nebber want no licker, nebber want no snack.
When I heah 'em callin' I mus' hit de ole-time track;
I gotter go ter ole Frisco

With a bang and a flourish, Rastus ended, whirled on his heels and grinned at the judge.

"How's dat, boss?" he asked.

The judge applauded.

"Rastus," he said, "I'll let you go this time. Your music is too good to waste on the stockade."

A Stumbling Block

—Songs of Summer.

WHEN spring crept over the city and tender shoots of green made a thick carpet on bank and lawn, Paul and Silas took notice thereof and hied them forth with scythe and lawn mower to reap grass and rich profit.

But the sun shone hot, and Paul was aweary, and the time drawing on toward the noon hour, he betook himself to a shady covert, where Silas, sweating with the sickle anon, found him slumbering, and was much wroth thereat. So that he possessed himself of the lawn mower and did come down upon Paul even as the Assyrian of old. And Paul, thus rudely awakened from his siesta, did seize half bricks and propel them toward his partner with such unerring aim that Silas was constrained to make moan. Whereupon a policeman harkened and laid hands on the pair as disturbers of the public peace.

And it came to pass that about the ninth hour there appeared Paul and Silas before Judge Johnson, who called upon them to make speech why they should not be regarded as evildoers in the sight of the Lord. And Paul arose and spake as follows:

"Jedge Johnsing, I'se er peaceful nigger mos' gin'rally, but when er low-down rascal dat ain't fitten ter 'sociate wid polecats come rampagin' at me wid er lawn mo' I'se gwiner mek him he'p hisse'f fo' sartain. An' dat's what I done."

Then spoke Silas:

"Low down nigger yo'se'f, yo' li'l bunch er rabbit ha'r! Ef I wuz lazy as you I'd er done kick myse'f ter death fo' now. Jedge, you know whut dat nigger done? Do you know whut he do-one? I ain't min' him goin' ter sleep so much, but when he stick dat haid er his'n in de way ob de lawn mo' when I go ter wak him up—I protest! Jedge, de lawn mo' bruk spang off right in de middle kaze dat nigger gotter haid you could poun' bricks wid eight days outen de week!"

But the judge heeded not the words of Paul and Silas, and dark days fell upon them and all their people. And the number of these days was one score and ten.

Curiosity Satisfied

"Whar am you gwine, you colored maid?"
"I'm gwine ter swat you, suh," she said.
—Darktown Mother Goose.

STRANGE indeed was the appearance of Nancy Love when she waddled to the front in recorder's court, muttering to herself and jerking her shoulders back and forth as if she wanted to hit something.

Nancy's appearance was strange because she was spotty. Ordinarily a shimmering black, her face was gay with colors, a streak of light blue trailing coquettishly across her nose, a flah of crimson behind one ear and more crimson and blue mingling on her chest.

"What's the matter with your face, Nancy?" queried the court. "Did you eat something that disagreed with you?"

"Who is Moses Cawn?"

"He am er painter, jedge. Yestiddy mawnin' he wuz paintin' on er house next do' ter me. He holler ter me ter come out, dat he got some'n ter tell me. I stick mah haid outen de do', an' he drap er bucket ob raid paint all ober me. Well, suh, he say hit was accidental, so I don't do nothin' but cuss him."

"But the blue paint—where did you acquire that?" interrupted his honor.

"Well, suh, atter I gone back in de house I heah him holler ergin. 'Come out heah; I got some'n ter tell you!' he say. I s'pose I wuz er bawn fool fo' list'nen ter him, but I wuz pow'ful anxious ter heah whut dat nigger hatter say. So I stick mah haid outen de do' ergin, an' I'se blessed ef dat man don't drap an'ur bucket ob paint on me—and dis time hit was blue. An' dat's hoccume I git 'rested, fo' I ebberlastin'ly beat de debbil outen him."

"Nancy Love, you had some provocation," said the recorder, "for you are the coloredest colored woman I ever saw. On your way, Nancy; on your way."

His Sleeping Porch

Hot time in de ole town t'night, dey shout,
Betcher life, nigger, hot inside an' out;
Lookin' fo' er cool place high an' low,
—Bar Beast Ballads.

THE sleeping porch fashion invaded Darktown last week. As a result Delia and Daniel Brown were arrested. The porch had come to the Brown mansion Tuesday afternoon; Delia and Daniel had come to blows shortly afterward.

"Us buil' us er sleepin' po'ch, jedge," simpered Delia. "Dat commence de rucus."

The judge ordered Delia to elucidate. She did so. According to her tale, she had been working for some "white folks" that had a sleeping porch. Its benefits were so forcibly impressed on her that she had suggested to Daniel the case with which their front piazza might be converted into one. Daniel had agreed enthusiastically. So far, so good. The porch was built. And then entered trouble.

"De po'ch warn't big 'nough fo' bofe ob us," recited Delia, "an' Dan'l done tek it fo' hisse'f. He run me inside de house. Well, suh, I ain't min' dat so much, but dat ain't all. Terreckly he come inside an' grabe all de cloze offen mah bald. 'What de matter, nigger, am you cole?' I sing out. 'Gimme mah cloze back.' But he ain't pay no 'tention ter me, jest grab de cloze an' off wid 'em. Jedge, you know whut dat nigger done? He tekken all de cloze an' stider puttin' 'em on de baid he use 'em fo' curtains."

Daniel regarded the judge with injured eyes. "Warn't dat all right, jedge?" he whined. "Hoccume I sleep on de po'ch 'lessen it's screened? I'se 'bleeged ter proteck mahse'f t'um de folks passin' 'long."

"And hoccume I gwiner sleep widout no baidcloze?" asked Delia indignantly.

It was indeed a ticklish question, but the recorder solved it by sending Daniel to a place where the city furnished all necessities of life, including bedding.

Veteran, Age 76, Walked to Virginia

FORSYTH, Ga.—One of the most interesting figures at the recent Confederate reunion in Richmond was Geo. W. Sheram of this county, who walked the entire distance from Forsyth to Richmond. Mr. Sheram, who is over seventy-six years of age, left Forsyth on May 4th, and after covering the entire distance on foot, walked into Richmond on Wednesday, May 26. Mr. Sheram visited many interesting places along the route, where, as a Confederate soldier in the 60s, he had many an interesting and trying experience. Mr. Sheram, with his long white hair falling over his shoulders, is a most picturesque figure and he was royally received along the route and after his arrival in Richmond. Mr. Sheram, despite his advanced age, is quite a walker. Several times he has walked from this county to various Florida points.

Dan Hall Catches 86-Pound Catfish

HATTIESBURG, Miss.—What is believed to be the biggest cat-fish ever caught in this section of the country was landed today by Dan Hall, who lives at Rebecca avenue and Court street. The fish was captured near Owen's Bluff in Leaf river, a few miles from Hattiesburg. It weighed 86 punds and measured 7½ inches between the eyes.

"I weighed the fish," Mr. Hall, who is a veteran fisherman, said, "on some old-fashioned cotton scales, which means that the weight was absolutely exact. It is the biggest cat-fish I ever have seen in this part of the country, and the biggest I have ever landed from any stream."

In spite of the enormous size of the fish, he had but little trouble landing it, Mr. Hall said. "I used a hook one size larger than the regular trout hook, and once it had been swallowed by the fish, it was an easy matter to pull it through the water to the side of the boat, and then to lift it in.'

Silver Plated Frogs For Bait

Critters Around Plating Shop Have a Covering of Silver and Can Be Seen a Mile Off by Any Fish

EAGLE LAKE, Miss.—Joe Lochowitz has put one over on Bud Fleming this year. Bud is trying to compromise and is willing right now to call a halt on a contest for the championship of this county, but Bud says he has got to stick to his wager, which is a $20 bill and a feed for all the boys.

Last year Bud beat Joe in the fishing championship. Immediately after the season was over, Joe made a discovery. He runs a plating works down near the lake, and in the fall he noticed that the frogs were getting chilly and moving up to get into the warm water that flows from his shop. Since then he has been mighty mysterious and experimenting all the time.

It seems that the frogs kept coming closer and closer, following up the warm water until they got right under the plating shop. Then Joe discovered that the stuff in the water from the sinks was silver-plating the frogs. He caught a big bunch of them in the solution and now he has about four dozen of the finest silver-plated frogs in the world. A bass can see them shining in the water for a mile and there doesn't seem to be any hope for Bud.

First Open-Air School Closes Scholastic Year

FORSYTH, Ga.—The Pine Crest Home School of Forsyth has closed for the year. This was the first open-air school to be organized in Georgia and it has closed a most successful year. The teaching, which is along the Montessori method, is all done out of doors or on the spacious porches of the new school building, particular attention being given to nature study.

The school closed with a delightful Mother Goose pageant, with a real Bo Peep, a truly Boy blue, a Hungry Jack Horner, a frightened Miss Muffet, a contrary Miss Mary and all the other characters of Goose Land so familiar to children.

The school has been in charge of Miss Annie Sneed and Miss Helen Jones.

Three Judges Have Each Died Suddenly

FORSYTH, Ga.—The death of Judge Charles S. Reid of the Stone Mountain circuit in Decatur has caused many people to remark over the queer coincidence that each of the judges who presided over Monroe superior court in the past two years has died a sudden death.

Judge K. J. Hawkins, of the Dublin circuit, who, because of the illness of Judge R. T. Daniel of this circuit, presided over the August, 1913 term, died shortly thereafter of heart failure. Judge R. T. Daniel, himself, was suddenly stricken with apoplexy at the recent Odd Fellows' convention in Fitzgerald and Judge Charles S. Reid of the Stone Mountain circuit who presided over the last term of Monroe superior court, in the absence of Judge Daniel, died of heart failure. These are the only three jurists who have presided in the superior court in this county in the last two years.

Calf-Catching Auto Owned by Dr. Downing

BESSEMER, Ala.—Dr. J. H. Downing several months ago made a trip to Grassella in his auto, and on returning caught a small calf on the front gear of his machine and brought it to Bessemer, a distance of about four miles. He did not know that the calf was there until he stopped the machine in front of the Pegram-Patton Drug store in this city. On last Sunday Dr. Downing had a call to West End, which is just above Grassella, but the neighbors at Grassella got wind of the doctor's coming and not only drove the calves off the public road, but gathered in their chickens as well, so the doctor will have to try some other territory, as Grassella is onto the calf-catching auto.

Does Atlanta Pay a Man to Keep Him From Suicide?

This Queer Story Has Been Printed and Reprinted Throughout the Country. What is the Truth of this Strange Situation?

An old man works for the city of Atlanta, who, all unknown to himself, has been made the subject of a curious story that seems to have spread everywhere.

This old fellow, so it was said, is paid $10 a week by the city to keep him from committing suicide.

He is employed in the city's hospital for contagious diseases, at 52 College street, but his name isn't going to be given here, for a reason to be brought out later. The story of this old man starts years ago.

He was hopelessly addicted to drugs, and the city had just passed an ordinance which was being enforced so vigorously that the sale of narcotics was almost stopped. There was a great deal of suffering among a class of unfortunates, and in the number was this old fellow, but not really so old then.

A group were taken to the almshouse to be treated, and he was was one of them. The others stayed only a short while and, then, drifted back to town and to their old ways. But he tried harder and seemed almost to have shaken off the habit.

Anything he was given to do he did with his best effort and he got to be a valuable part of the place. He worked hard and he was apt at a good many things. But, somehow, the old habit began to come back on him.

It was about this time he got out from under the city's care for awhile, and he seemed to run out of money and strength and courage. At any rate when an emergency call was received at Grady hospital it was found that this old man was the badly injured patient who was brought in.

It was said that he had tried to kill himself in a downtown store, and it was certain that he was very low-spirited and miserable even after his recovery was assured.

It was then he got the job at the contagious hospital that he has had ever since. He isn't strong, he is about sixty-five years old, and it's certain that he hasn't much longer to live. But he earns the $10 a week he is paid. He tries very hard, and everyone at the hospital looks on him as one to be helped and protected.

Because of this a special plea was made for him when the finance sheet was being prepared. The suggestion had been offered that the old fellow be cut off from the payroll. One of the city physicians then explained to the finance committee what the old fellow's condition is.

"If we discharge him," said this physician, "he'll either die or kill himself. What else could he do?"

This was what caused the story that Atlanta is paying $10 a week to a man to keep him from committing suicide. It was reprinted first in the New York World and spread from there to paper after paper.

But the old man heard nothing of all this. He went on pottering around at odd jobs, taking longer over them than anyone else would, but doing them a little better. He seems to have grown a good deal feebler in the last year, but if anything, he has grown cheerier, along with his increasing weakness.

He whistles about his work, he nods rather brightly, and he is always ready to help. When any little thing is to be done, they send for him. He is very handy.

But he doesn't read much, for his eyes are not good, and no one spoke to him of the queer comment he has aroused. He won't see this. He did't see the other news items. And everyone at the hospital seemed to realize instantly that it shouldn't be mentioned to him.

Last week when the request was made to see the old man it was denied. A nurse explained why.

"He's very old," she said. "He hasn't a great deal longer to live, and he's right happy now. What's the good of bothering him? Don't print his name. Don't say anything unkind about him."

CAMPAIGN FOR PERFECT CHILDREN

At the top, Frances Braselton, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos Braselton, of 340 Ponce de Leon avenue; in the center, showing only the head, Clarence Woodward Blosser, Jr., 2 1-2 years old, son of Dr. and Mrs. Blosser, of 192 Myrtle street; on the left at the bottom, siting down, Moselle Thomas Burke, 3-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Burke, of 508 W. Peachtree; on the right at the bottom, Orman House, 16-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Y. House.

These are among the "perfect" children in Atlanta. They have the health, the strength, the beauty that the Atlanta branch of the Mothers' congress wishes to secure for all Atlanta children.

A campaign of education has been begun by which the congress hopes to prevent sickness among babies, and to make older children more vigorous.

During the summer this splendid effort will be largely confined to securing pure milk for all children. To this end a fund is being raised to establish two milk depots, from which pure milk will be sold at a minimum price or will be given away. Five hundred dollars is needed for the establishment of this depot.

The congress will also co-operate with the children's bureau, of the United States department of labor, in educating mothers in the care of babies. Particular attention is called by the Mothers' congress to the following directions issued recently by the bureau:

"A baby must be kept as cool as possible in summer. Even breast-fed babies find it hard to resist the weakening effects of excessive heat. Records show that thousands of babies, most of whom are bottle-fed, die every year in July and August, because of the direct or indirect effects of the heat. Next in importance to right food in summer are measures for keeping the baby cool and comfortable; frequent baths, light clothing, and the selection of the coolest available place for him to play and sleep.

"A baby should have a full tub bath every morning. If he is restless and the weather is very hot, he may have in addition one or two sponge baths a day. A cool bath at bedtime sometimes makes the baby sleep more comfortably. For a young baby the water should be tepid, that is, it should feel neither hot nor cold to the mother's elbow. For an older baby it may be slightly cooler, but should not be cold enough to chill or frighten him.

"When the bath is finished the baby should be patted dry, and the mother should take great care to see that the folds and creases of the skin are dry. use a little pure talcum powder or sifted corn starch under the arms and in the groin to prevent chafing. If any redness, chafing, or eruption like prickly heat, develops on the skin, no soap at all should be used in the bath. Sometimes a starch, or bran, or soda bath will relieve such conditions.

"Bran Bath—Make a little bag of cheesecloth and put a cupful of ordinary bran in it and sew or tie the top. Let this bag soak in the bath, squeezing it until the water is milky.

"Starch Bath.—Use a cupful of ordinary cooked starch to a gallon of water. (If the laundry starch has had anything added to it, such as salt, lard, oil, bluing, it must not be used for this purpose.)

"Soda Bath.—Dissolve a tablespoonful of ordinary baking soda in a little water, and add it to four quarts of water.

"Cotton garments are best for the baby in summer. All-wool bands, shirts and stockings should not be worn at any time of the year, and in hot summer weather only the thinnest all-cotton clothing should touch the baby's skin, unless he is sick, when a very light part-wool band may be needed. In general, neither wool nor starch should be allowed in the baby's clothing in summer. Wool is too hot and irritating, and starched garments scratch the baby's flesh.

"A screened porch on the shady side of the house is a boon to every mother, affording a cool, secure place for the baby to play and also to sleep. Let him have his daytime naps on the porch, and sleep there at night during the heat.

"Do not be afraid of fresh air for the baby. He cannot have too much of it. Night air is sometimes even better than day air, because it has been cooled and cleansed of dust by the dew.

"Lost in Battle" Ends Romance Of Georgia Girl

Miss Lucy Hilton, Who Had Gone to London to Be Near Charles Tennant, Her Fiance, Learns of His Death in Battle

"CHARLES TENNANT, killed in action."

From "somewhere" in France came this message to a Georgia girl, waiting in London, scanning the fatality lists, dreading just such news.

From Savannah, Ga., she had traveled the distance to London, by way of the Lusitania on the trip before its sinking by German torpedoes; and was in training for a Red Cross nurse to be near the man she was to marry.

Months before, Miss Lucy Hilton, daughter of the wealthy Savannah lumberman, of the Hilton-Dodge lumber company, met Charles Tennant on shipboard, bound for South America, both members of parties bent on touring the great country to the south of the Panama canal.

Through wonderful days and evenings as soft as the twilight along the Mediterranean this southward-bound steamer took its way, and firmer and firmer became the friendship between the handsome bronzed Englishman and the pretty southern girl.

He told her she spoke her words like the winsome maids in quaint English towns where the old customs of speech and of manner remain. And to her he was like a figure in a story book.

No romance could have been sweeter, none could have held greater promise of happiness than this meeting and this love-making of pretty Miss Hilton, of Savannah, and handsome Charles Tennant, of the English army.

But Europe's business of murder and rapine has had no time to smooth a way for romances. How many have been the good-byes, the days of waiting, and the news "killed in action!" Weeping with the Savannah girl in London are sisters in sorrow.

Scarcely had she and Charles Tennant become engaged when the war clouds broke. For him there was nothing but good-bye and the next ship back to England. For her there seemed only the bitter torture of waiting, with every day bringing the possibility of sad news.

But Miss Hilton chose another course. She determined to enlist as a nurse in the Red Cross that she might be near Charles Tennant.

She had the fanciful notion that if he was wounded she might be allowed to nurse him. The wounded in Europe, of course, are sent to the nearest hospitals, and are handled with the same method that characterizes every other aspect of this savage and businesslike war.

But it was her fond hope that if she were in France she could help him. At least, it would be better than having the sea between them; and, they would meet again before he left for the front.

When she sailed, Tennant, an officer in the Seaforth Highlanders, a crack Scottish regiment, was in training camp in England. When she arrived, Kitchener, hurrying to increase the British forces at the front, had sent the Seaforth Highlanders across the channel; and Tennant was with his men.

Miss Hilton had planned how he would be at the dock in Manchester to greet her; how he would assure her the war would soon be ended and he would return; how he would coax her out of the fears and dreads that had made the long voyage a nightmare.

Instead, she stepped ashore, on strange soil with none to help her. She went to London to begin at once her study as a Red Cross nurse, that she might lose no time in going to the front.

The English papers were full of the news of bitter fighting, and every day appeared long lists "Dead on the Field of Honor."

The work of the German submarines was talked on all sides, and America friends suggested that her voyage over on the Lusitania had not been without danger. Time passed. Little news came directly from the battlefields; and then—a stunning announcement.

The Lusitania on which she had crossed, and which had returned safely to America, lay sunken off the Irish coast, men and women were dead, and one of the striking and heartrending catastrophes of the war had been enacted.

Then, like a trickle of bad news, like a whispered aftermath, came a five-word message:

"Charles Tennant, killed in action."

Late last month Miss Hilton cabled to her relatives in Savannah of Tennant's death. Since then no news has been received from her.

Family Parrot is Perry's Companion

The parrot, just over two years old, is a great pet, and whenever Mrs. Perry is away from home Mr. Perry takes Pol around with him. He has never found it necessary to have a cage for his pet. At the station Monday evening the parrot got off Mr. Perry's shoulder and strutted around a few minutes, taking in Waycross as much as possible from the station. Incidentally it dined on a cracker some friend had given it on the incoming A. B. & A. train.

When leaving Fitzgerald Mr. Perry had an unusual experience. Some children in the coach evidently frightened the parrot and without warning the bird flew from the window. Mr. Perry had the train stopped and went back for his pet. Pol was sitting on a crosstie and Mr. Perry said when he got near it the parrot began to show its delight in every imaginable way. "Come here," called the parrot. And when Mr. Perry obeyed the parrot eyed him approvingly and said "alright, let's go." And they went back to the train and came on to Waycross.

The parrot is considered a very valuable one and has frequently appeared in moving pictures made in Jacksonville.

Is War Forecast By Hen at Rome?

ROME, Ga.—A hen's egg, laid Saturday on the Lewis farm, leased by T. B. Peyton, about three miles from Rome, on the River road, was brought to the Tribune-Herald office last night by H. L. Barnes. The egg is colored peculiarly and a part of the coloring is the distinct outline of a warship. The letter K is also outlined on the egg. Just what the significance of this incident may be is not known but it is hardly probable that the hen which laid the egg intended to warn us here, in Georgia, of the possibility of a naval war between this country and Germany.

Hosbach's Bird Dog Scents Three Thieves

HENDERSON, Ky.—Fred Ellis, former councilman; Alfred Nelson and Bernie Dodson, were held under $200 bond to await the action of the September grand jury on the charge of breaking into Oliver Hosbach's saloon last Friday night and stealing a case of whiskey. Hosbach's bird dog furnished the officers a clew, as the animal followed the men and lay in wait on the outside of an old stable.
